JURY DEADLOCKED ON FURCH

ROW IN SENATE PUTS ROOSEVELT ON DEFENSIVE

Hands Off Policy Is Forced by Foes.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt tonight was forced to back down from his sponsorship of Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky for the Democratic leadership, vacated by the death of Senator Joseph T. Robinson, and Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi appeared to be the probable winner.

Pat Harrison.

The President told Senator Harrison at a White House conference that his letter to Senator Barkley last night, commissioning "Dear Alben" to carry on the fight for passage of the Supreme court packing measure at this session of congress was "misinterpreted," that the administration had no intention of interfering in the leadership contest.

To Stay Out of Fight.

"The President gave me absolute assurance that neither he nor the administration would take any part in the contest," Harrison said.

With indignation over the President's letter to Barkley, accepted as an indorsement of his leadership candidacy, raging in the senate, Mr. Roosevelt at noon summoned Harrison to a White House conference at five o'clock.

Harrison supporters were more indignant, for they assumed that the President planned to urge him to withdraw. The senator was prepared to tell Mr. Roosevelt that he had no intention of eliminating himself and that he bitterly resented being asked to do so.

Letter Helps Harrison

However, before Harrison reached the White House, the President conferred with Postmaster General James A. Farley, Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina and Senator Carl A. Hatch of New Mexico. Mr. Roosevelt was told that his letter was having a most unfavorable reaction and would help Harrison rather than Barkley.

Senator Byrnes, particularly, a third candidate for the leadership who withdrew this afternoon in Harrison's favor, protested the President's open espousal of the Barkley candidacy.

Thus confronted with the possibility of being defeated and alienating the next majority leader of the senate at the same time, Mr. Roosevelt beat a strategic retreat and was unexpectedly cordial to Harrison.

Urges Early Settlement

Harrison also announced that he had told Barkley that the leadership contest should be settled as quickly as possible after Senator Robinson's funeral in Little Rock Sunday. Barkley agreed and a Democratic caucus was scheduled for Wednesday.

Senate leaders expressed the opinion that the President's "hands off" attitude of today would not detract from his previously indicated preference for Barkley, but that it would foreclose the White House from further activity in the race. For this reason, best informed observers predicted a victory for Senator Harrison.

Such a victory, however, will not heal the bitter animosities already engendered in the violent struggle for supremacy in the Democratic party, senators declare. Not only court packers and anti-court packers but Roosevelt and anti-Roosevelt Democrats are engaged in a showdown fight, the outcome of which may divide, if it does not ultimately wreck, the Democratic party.

Oldsters for Mississippian.

All Democrats of the old school, traditionally conservative by inclination, whether or not they have "gone along" with the President for reason of party regularity, are backing Senator Harrison, chairman of the finance committee and a veteran of 18 years in the senate.

Senator Barkley, proclaimed "the acting majority leader in the senate" by Mr. Roosevelt in his letter last night, is the choice of the Democratic radicals, the Roosevelt coat-

Painters Surprise Her and Do Half Job; Wrong Flat

St. Louis, Mo., July 16.—(AP)—Mrs. E. G. Heine's suburban flat appeared bright on one side today, but drab on the other. Painters came and she smiled as they set to work. Later, however, one of them told her "we are sorry, but we have made a mistake." So they left, having painted the window frames on one side of the flat, a side door, and the back porch. The right address was a block away.

WAR NEAR! JAPS WARN; NANKING RUSHES TROOPS

Tokio Calls Hopes for Peace Futile.

U. S. Sounds Warning

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Secretary of State Hull warns Japan and China against going to war. China appeals to United States and other signatories of nine power treaty to intervene. Page 2.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, July 17 (Saturday).—(AP)—The Japanese government today announced the situation in North China "does not permit further procrastination" and declared that Japan had decided "to accelerate negotiations" in the Sino-Japanese crisis. The government did not disclose what measures were planned.

Officials of the war, navy, and foreign offices were in conference. A meeting of five ministers, including the premier, Prince Fumimaro Konoe, was scheduled for tomorow to be followed by a cabinet session.

PEIPING, China, July 16.—(AP)—The main armies of the empire of Japan and the central government of China tonight appeared about to be drawn into the vortex of the North China conflict, hitherto confined to local clashes.

"More than one" of Nanking's crack, German-trained divisions was said to have reached the vicinity of Paotingfu, 90 miles southwest of Peiping.

This was received by northern Chinese as the first trustworthy evidence that forces belonging to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, dictator of China, were coming north to oppose what the Chinese say is Japan's purpose to sever the northern provinces from the rest of China.

See Possible 'Provocation.'

Foreign observers said the approach of the Nanking divisions might prove the provocation they believed the Japanese are awaiting to launch major warlike operations.

Japanese military leaders in Tokio warned the nation tonight the preservation of peace in China was becoming hopeless. They said they feared the outbreak of major hostilities "at any moment." Emergency war precautions were ordered and some special reserves were called to the colors.

Troops from Japan's homeland divisions are known to be on the way to China. Reliable reports from Tientsin said preparations were being made at Tangshan, railway town 70 miles northeast of Tientsin, to receive a Japanese army corps from Corea.

At Nanking a government spokesman said China had "unimpeachable information" that five Japanese divisions, "totaling 100,000 men," were on the way to China. He named the divisions as the Fifth, Sixth, Tenth, Twelfth, and Sixteenth.

New Clashes Near Peiping.

New clashes were reported today between Chinese and Japanese troops moving by railway and roadway to concentrations around Peiping.

The latest of the mounting series of battles, which began on July 7 with a clash between night maneuvering Japanese troops and Chinese 10 miles west of Peiping, were reported from Huangtsun, about 12 miles south of here on the Peiping-

Court Decides Mae West Is Mrs. Wallace

Los Angeles, Cal., July 16.—(AP)—The Superior court ruled here today that Mae West is the wife of Frank Wallace, and that she has to pay the costs of the suit he filed to prove it.

Mrs. Frank Wallace.

Superior Judge Robert Kenny closed the case today by his ruling that the "Diamond Lil" of the movies has been Mrs. Frank Wallace ever since 1911.

The court's decision was sudden and none too welcome to attorneys for either side.

Protest Paying Costs.

The vaudeville hoofer's counsel, Lawyers Avery M. Blount and Betty B. Gillette, protested they were not ready to end the case.

Miss West's attorneys protested against her paying the costs of the suit, but the judge said the husband had been "put to considerable trouble in bringing the action" and ordered his counsel to present an itemized bill for the actress to pay.

Mae West recently went into hiding after filing answer to the Wallace suit with the sensational admission that she had married him in 1911, but they never lived together.

Judge Cuts It Short.

About this the judge said:

"I don't see that the question of whether the parties consummated the marriage has anything to do with the case before us. It might be of historical interest, but certainly not of legal interest."

The suit was closed over protests of the attorneys for Wallace who have sought to bring Miss West into court as a witness.

JIMMY MURPHY IS A LEVY NOW; COURT MAKES IT OFFICIAL

Inwood, N. Y., July 16.—[Special.]—A Murphy has changed his name to Levy.

The new addition to the Levys is James Levy, 23, a truck driver, of 323 Doughty boulevard, born Murphy.

He was given permission Wednesday by Judge Courtland Johnson in County court to make the change. He explained that his mother, Mrs. Helen Murphy, married Irving Levy 20 years ago and that his stepfather was so good to him that he came to regard him as his real father.

His application to the judge said that he had used the name of Levy as long as he could remember. He finally made up his mind to apply to court, he said, because he wanted the name question cleared up before he married Eleanor Myer. The wedding will take place on Aug. 23.

Miss Millie and Miss Dorothy Johnson, twin sisters, 22 years old, were fatally injured and three young men were also hurt, one probably beyond recovery, when their automobile crashed into a Pere Marquette railroad switch engine on the Belt railway tracks at 74th street, Maplewood avenue, and the Southwest highway late last night. The twins were the daughters of Julius Johnson, 3342 West 62d place, master mechanic at the Corn Products Refining company, Argo.

The injured companions of the Johnson girls were Brendan Carroll, 20 years old, a chief mechanic for the Keeshin Motor Transport company, living at 6511 South Maplewood avenue; his brother, William Carroll Jr., of the same address, a coffee company employé, and Cyril McDonald, 20, of 6449 South Rockwell street, a clerk for Cuneo Press, Inc. They are at the Holy Cross hospital. Brendan Carroll is expected to die.

The twin sisters and the young men were driving northeast in the Southwest highway, with McDonald at the wheel, when they ran into the engine, which was going west at a slow speed. Miss Millie Johnson died en route to the hospital and her sister died two hours later this morning. Police said the crossing signal lights were working.

Brick Moron Beats, Rapes Guest in Hotel

Mrs. Betty Bryant, 28 years old, wife of Hardy Bryant, a traveling hotel man, was raped by a colored moron in her room in the Lorraine hotel, 411 South Wabash avenue, early today. She was sleeping when he stole into her room, and he wakened her by striking her on the head with a brick.

The rapist's use of this weapon recalled the fact that terrorists last year beat three women to death in the loop and near loop district, two of the killers using bricks.

A similar attack occurred in the Lorraine hotel in October, 1935, when Mrs. Rose London of San Diego, Cal., was raped and beaten in her room.

Enters by Fire Escape.

Mrs. Bryant was alone in her room, on the fifth floor of the hotel, when the rapist climbed the fire escape to her window and entered. She awoke at a sudden pain in her head about 2 o'clock. She found blood. Looking up, she beheld the intruder, a man six feet tall. He raised a brick over her head.

"Now, Betty," he warned, "don't scream or I'll kill you."

How he knew her first name puzzled police this morning since there was nothing in the room bearing other than her husband's full name. The moron's conversation indicated, however, that he had seen Mrs. Bryant. Once he admitted he had worked at the hotel.

Remains in Room an Hour.

Mrs. Bryant begged him not to harm her, but he continued to threaten her with death if she resisted. She attempted to resist nevertheless, but, dazed from the blow on the head, she was powerless. He remained in the room an hour, Mrs. Bryant estimated. Still in a daze, Mrs. Bryant told the invader, in reply to a question, that her husband would be out of town again next Thursday. The Negro left, saying he would be back Thursday.

Mrs. Bryant called the hotel clerk after his departure and police were notified. Mrs. Bryant was given medical aid by Dr. L. S. Light and taken to St. Luke's hospital.

One Executed, One in Prison.

The first victim of the brick slayers last year was Mrs. Lillian Guild, 54 years old, beaten to death in her room in the former Y. W. C. A. hotel at 830 South Michigan avenue, on May 29. Thomas Starr, colored, is in prison for this crime. Next was Mrs. Florence Thompson Castle, killed in her room in the Devonshire hotel, 19 East Ohio street, on June 29. The third was Mrs. Mary Louise Trammell, wife of a dining car steward, raped and beaten to death in the State hotel, 553 South State street, on Aug. 6. Rufo Swain was executed for this crime in February.

Doctor Slain in Mystery as He Opens His Door

Providence R. I., July 16.—[Special.]—Dr. George H. W. Webster, prominent obstetrician and former president of the Rhode Island Homeopathic society, was shot and killed early today by a mystery assassin as he stepped into the vestibule of his home in this city's most exclusive residential district.

The murder, for which police late tonight had not the slightest explanation, outrivals a detective thriller. Dr. Webster was only 39 years old. He was a devoted husband and father. He had no known enemies. As far as detectives could determine, there was no apparent motive for his murder.

Yet the strange circumstance—the very lack of the ordinary clews found in almost any killing—suggested the possibility it was a grudge murder.

Pretty Blonde Questioned.

Tonight authorities held a pretty blonde girl, about 19 years old, in connection with the case. They questioned her informally for twenty minutes. Then they placed her in a cell to be held for further examination in the morning. They refused to hint at her identity.

Earlier in the day and also tonight detectives questioned Dr. Webster's office assistant, Miss Dorothea Gilligan, 33 years old, and his widow, Mrs. Kathryn Webster. Mrs. Webster concealed her obvious grief with a remarkable calm, but Miss Gilligan disclosed great strain and collapsed while being examined.

Dr. Webster's family—his wife and their daughter, Marjorie, 9 years old—were absent at the time he was slain. They were at their summer home at fashionable Watch Hill, R. I.

Fence Surrounds Home.

The Webster home is surrounded by a high fence and liberal hedges of shrubbery, and has a definite appearance of seclusion.

Dr. Webster went yesterday to Jamestown, R. I., for consultation with Dr. Richard Arlen, and returned in the evening. From 8 o'clock last night until 1 o'clock this morning, he had been in the drug store of his friend, Horace Simmonds. While there the doctor telephoned his wife.

Shortly after 1 o'clock Dr. Webster drove up to his residence. The house was dark. The street was brightened only by dim street lamps. The doctor locked his car. He walked quietly to the front door. He started to open the door.

Victim Summons Police.

Three shots came in rapid succession before he could open the door fully. Dr. Webster fell back, then staggered forward. He caught a glimpse of his assailant as the latter whirled and ran toward the rear of the house. He eventually escaped through a rear door, which he shut carefully on leaving. Dr. Webster, shot twice in the body, crawled into the house and to a telephone. He called police.

Dr. Webster lifted himself upon a divan, and was lying there when po-

EIGHT VERDICTS POSSIBLE; 6 TO 6 TIE IS REPORTED

State Urges Death; Mad, Says Defense.

Reporting itself deadlocked after less than three hours of deliberation, the jury trying Dr. Frank J. Furch, chiropodist charged with the murder of Mrs. Norma Schmidt, his second divorced wife, was locked up for the night last night on orders of Judge Rudolph F. Desort of the Criminal court.

As the jurors retired from the jury room adjoining the court to their sleeping quarters in another part of the building, it was reported they were divided 6 to 6, but so well did they keep their deliberations secret that it was unknown whether they were divided on the matter of conviction or acquittal, or on the degree of guilt. The only word they issued was that they were in disagreement and tired.

Principals in Court.

Court attachés said they did not expect the jurors to discuss the case further in their quarters before going to bed, believing they would get a night's sleep before trying at 9 o'clock this morning to work out of their deadlock.

Mrs. Myrtle Furch, the defendant's first divorced wife, and her daughter, Joan, 14 years old, remained in the courtroom until the jury was locked up and Dr. Furch, crippled when he shot himself after killing Mrs. Schmidt, was in a wheel chair in an ante room. Mrs. Furch has said she will remarry the chiropodist if he is acquitted.

Hear Death Plea

The jurors went out at 6:30 o'clock last evening, with the plea of Assistant State's Attorney Morris G. Meyers to send Dr. Furch to the electric chair lingering in their ears. The members of the jury spent the next few minutes in organizing themselves—picking a foreman and a clerk, and arranging documentary evidence. Then they had a bite to eat. After this they went into debate and apparently into balloting.

A sharp division came apparently at the first vote, and remained unbroken through several following test votes. That the deadlock was solid in the early hours was indicated by the early request for retirement.

At 9 p. m. they sent word to Judge Desort, who had gone home, through his personal bailif, F. Kolivoda, that there was no hope of an immediate verdict, and that they were fatigued. They asked the judge to permit them to retire until 9 a. m. He sent back word to try for a verdict for another 30 minutes. At 9:30, with the situation unchanged, Judge Desort ordered the jury locked up.

Eight Verdicts Possible.

Judge Desort's instructions to the jury included eight possible verdicts instead of the usual five in murder trials. These are death, life imprisonment, or a prison sentence of not less than 14 years in case of conviction of murder, and one to 14 years if found guilty of manslaughter. Three of the four additional verdicts were added as a result of the emotional insanity defense. They are [1] sane at the time of the killing and insane now; [2] insane then and insane now; [3] insane then and sane now; or [4] not guilty. Either of the first two would mean imprisonment in the psychiatric division of the state penitentiary. The third means liberty.

From 11 a. m. yesterday to 6 p. m. last evening the jury had heard pleas of prosecuting and defense lawyers. Samuel A. Hoffman, chief defense counsel, pictured Dr. Furch as a man goaded to insanity by the indifference of the woman he loved. He went insane and killed her, said Hoffman. Prosecutor Meyers drew a contrasting portrait. Furch, he said, was callous and self-centered the night of Feb. 26 when he killed Mrs. Schmidt and shot her maid and himself in the presence of policemen who had been called to escort him from Mrs. Schmidt's apartment. Meyers pleaded with the jurors to disregard the insanity plea.

Calls Furch One Man Jury.

"This person [Furch] set himself up as a one man judge and jury," Mr. Meyers declared. "There were no witnesses for Norma Schmidt—no lawyers, so presumption of innocence—just a bullet through her heart.

"There were many indications of this man's character, but one stands out. He dropped by the wayside the woman to whom he had been married fourteen years and their two beautiful children. Then he tried to dodge behind them—to escape the consequences of his foul act."

Assistant State's Attorney Eugene Wachowski summed up the state's case in opening the arguments by terming Furch a cad and a wife beater. He also ridiculed the defense plea of temporary madness.

For nearly three hours, Attorney Hoffman, his perspiring face suffused with red through the intensity of his oratory, argued for an acquittal. He likened Dr. Furch to Shakespeare's love-crazed hero, Othello.

Jury's Part in Drama.

"You have a part in a drama as old Shakespeare 300 years ago," he declared. "Like Othello, Dr. Furch loved not wisely but too well, so well that he went crazy and killed his beautiful Desdemona.

"Why? Because Iago came and whispered to him. But here his Iago was jealousy, procrastination, vacillation, postponement and uncertainty."

Throughout the trial Attorney Hoffman contended that Furch loved Mrs. Schmidt, that she often promised to return to him, but that she continually postponed their reconciliation and goaded him to desperation by going out with other men.

Mr. Hoffman's son, Arthur, an attorney, who assisted his father in the trial, also delivered an argument. He contended that the state's witnesses were not sufficiently disinterested to give creditable testimony.

Before the arguments were begun, the state completed the last of its evidence by offering ten letters written by Mrs. Schmidt to her husband from March to October of last year, and a note Furch penned her three months before he killed her.

Most of the travelers were army vacationists from Manila, in the Philippines, who had been warbound in Peiping. DOCTOR SLAIN IN MYSTERY AS HE OPENS HIS DOOR lice arrived. As they began questioning him, he interrupted them.

Gunman's Attack Baffles Rhode Island Police.

"Don't look for clews now," he said. "Get me to a hospital. I'll tell you about it later."

But the later opportunity never came, and if Dr. Webster knew the identity of his slayer he took it with him into death. Police were inclined to believe tonight he had some idea of the assassin's identity.

On the other hand, the doctor was quoted as telling an ambulance attendant on the way to the hospital that the assailant was a robber. Police are almost certain no robbery was involved. They pointed out that $200 in the doctor's pockets was untouched.

Cartridges Give Clew.

The killer lay in wait to execute his scheme. All he left behind were the discharged cartridges ejected from his gun. From these it was found that brass coated bullets were used. This may develop as the best clew.

Dr. Webster himself, before dying, indicated he was mystified at the attack.

"I didn't know I had an enemy in the world," he told his friend, Dr. Robert H. Whitemarsh.

He asked for his wife, and she was notified. She drove down from her summer home alone, but arrived an hour after her husband died. She, too, said the shooting was a complete mystery. Their home life, she related, was happy. Her husband was never a playboy and was greatly interested in his profession, she said.

Work on Grudge Theory.

Working on the theory of a grudge murder, police tonight scanned Dr. Webster's office records, in effect, the private lives of those members of Rhode Island's smart summer colony who were his patients. It was possible, police said, some crazed father or husband had taken a mad form of vengeance for a supposed wrong over the death of a wife or child in childbirth.

Many prominent names of Newport, Narragansett Pier, and Jamestown were found in the doctor's office files. These, Deputy Superintendent James J. Cusick admitted, yielded nothing.

27 NATIONS AGREE 'IN PRINCIPLE' ON NEW SPAIN PLAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 16.—All of the 27 powers concerned agreed "in principle" today to accept as a "basis for discussion" Great Britain's compromise scheme for preventing further foreign intervention in the Spanish civil war.

All made reservations. All want modifications. And indications were that the plan would be no more effective than any of the past ones.

The main points of the British plan are: Renewal of the Spanish frontier patrol, replacement of naval control by observers in Spanish ports, and establishment of control at airport; withdrawal of foreign volunteers; recognition of belligerent rights for both sides in the war.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull receives appeal from China to invoke pact guaranteeing Chinese territorial integrity in Japanese crisis.

[Associated Press Wirephotos.]

Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese ambassador, tells Secretary Hull: "We want the various treaty signatories to take action at once."

HEAD OF JAPAN'S ARMY ADVENTURE IN NO. CHINA DIES

TIENTSIN, July 16. — (AP) — The Domei [Japanese] News Agency today announced the death of Lieut.-Gen. Kanichiro Tashiro, former commander of the Japanese North China garrison.

Gen. Tashiro had been suffering from heart disease. His fatal illness coincided with the outbreak of Chinese-Japanese hostilities last week, and while he lay in a Japanese military hospital here the high command in Tokio named Lieut.-Gen. Kiyoshi Katsuki to fly from Tokio to China to assume direction of what would have been the largest venture of Gen. Tashiro's career.

Indiana Youth, 17, Weds Girl, 13; Police Hold Bride

Kokomo, Ind., July 16.—(AP)—Norman Cohee, 17 years old, living near here, and Frieda Maddox, 13, of Logansport were married tonight by the Rev. George Powell. Mrs. Lavere Maddox, mother of the girl, telephoned police here and asked them to arrest the couple. Officers took the youthful bride into custody. Cohee had been employed as a wood cutter at $2 a day. He said he planned to seek a job in a factory.

U.S. WARNS CHINA AND JAPAN: 'WAR IS OUR BUSINESS'

Hull Speaks After Plea to Powers by Nanking.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—The United States tonight warned Japan and China that they cannot make war in the far east without encroaching upon American and other interests.

The warning was given in a vigorous restatement of the United States' foreign policy by Secretary of State Cordell Hull. No country was named in the diplomatically worded statement, but events of the day clearly demonstrated that it was aimed at Japan and China.

China Appeals to Powers.

In the morning China appealed to the United States and all other signatories except Japan of the nine power treaty of 1922, which guarantees Chinese territorial integrity, to take action in the present Chinese Japanese crisis. Fourteen nations are now adherents of the pact. The plea to the United States was carried to Hull by Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese ambassador. During the afternoon the secretary conferred with his advisers on the far eastern suitation.

Hull in his statement said war or threat of war between nations that are near neighbors concerns not only those nations but the whole world. He therefore listed the principles of the American foreign policy.

This country, he said, advocates national and international self-restraint; abstinence of all nations from use of force and from interference in the internal affairs of other nations; faithful observance of international agreements; modification of treaties when need arises, by orderly processes; respect by all nations for the rights of others; lowering or removing of trade barriers; equality of commercial opportunity; limitation and reduction of armament, although the United States is prepared to increase its armed forces in proportion to increases made by other countries.

Recall Stimson Fiasco.

Dr. Wang on his visit to Hull handed the secretary a memorandum, precrisis and its plea for assistance under the nine power pact.

The pact was invoked in 1932 by former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson in protest against Japanese aggression in Manchuria. In a forceful note the United States invoked both the nine power pact and the Kellogg-Briand anti-war pact.

Other signatories refused to join the United States in its action and this country was left out on a diplomatic limb. The invocation did nothing to protect China against Japanese aggression and resulted only in straining Japanese-American relations.

Since that time the state department has avoided the repetition of the Stimson blunder.

34 Killed, Scores Injured by Rain and Wind in Japan

TOKIO, July 17.—[Saturday]—(AP)—Violent rain and wind storms swept Kanagawa and Gumma perfectures today, killing 34 persons, and injuring scores. Thousands were made homeless.

IS JAPAN AGAIN EXPANDING ITS EMPIRE?

In 1931 the Japanese army by force of arms seized the three Chinese northeastern provinces of Fengtien, Kirin, and Heilungkiang, which made up Manchuria (now Manchukuo). In 1933 the Japanese, again by force of arms, added the Chinese province of Jehol, in Mongolia, to their Manchurian conquest. These areas are indicated on the map by shaded lines. Today Japan and China are again on the verge of war. Chinese leaders charge the Japanese are preparing to carve a huge slice out of North China and Mongolia comprising the provinces of Hopei and Chahar, indicated by black section of the map.

WAR NEAR! JAPS WARN; NANKING RUSHES TROOPS

Tokio Calls Hopes for Peace Futile.

Maj. Takeo Imai, assistant military attaché of the Japanese embassy here, said two Japanese were killed at Huangtsun. One was shot, the other was clubbed by a Chinese infantryman. He said this brought the total Japanese losses since the July 7 clash to 20 dead and 60 wounded and made "proper measures" by the Japanese army imperative.

At Anping—meaning tranquil peace—Chinese behind the town walls were said to have fired on a Japanese column. The Japanese fought back, disarmed 100 Chinese, and routed the rest.

Draw Ring Around City.

When Japanese army men were asked what their troops were doing at Huangtsun and Anping they replied they could not discuss troop movements. Chinese military reports said the Japanese were fortifying a wide semicircle south of Peiping which would cut the city off from the rest of China.

The Chinese said this line stretched from the Yungting river, 10 miles west, to Tungchow, 12 miles east of Peiping, crossing both the city's important railway links with the south.

Chinese versions of what Japan was demanding included these alleged terms:

Enlargement of the autonomous region of North China with a new capital at Tientsin—headquarters of Japan's North China garrison; permission for Japan to establish a naval base at Tangku, 20 miles east of Tientsin; full demilitarization of Peiping and its environs; withdrawal of the anti-Japanese portion of the Chinese 29th army beyond Paoting, 75 miles to the southwest of Peiping; complete eradication of anti-Japanese movements.

Tension Grows at Tsingtao.

Tension was increasing at Tsingtao, port on the Shantung coast where Japan has large interests. Chinese sources said part of the Japanese army would be landed there.

A foreign office spokesman at Nanking said the government was "pessimistic in the face of the steady flow of Japanese troops into North China."

The national government reiterated that it was not participating in Chinese-Japanese negotiations going on at Tientsin. The foreign office said "Tientsin authorities have no authorization to negotiate with the Japanese."

JAPAN'S PREMIER DIRECTS CRISIS FROM SICKBED

TOKIO, July 16.—(AP)—Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoe directed Japan's course in the Chinese crisis today from a sickbed. He was cheered by the homecoming of his son from school in the United States.

The 46-year-old premier, who has been in frail health and has suffered from chronic insomnia for several years, insisted on receiving cabinet officers and other high officials to discuss the national emergency.

The premier's favorite son and heir, Fumitaka Konoe, Princeton university student, returned to Tokio to spend his summer vacation. The youth congratulated his father on his elevation to the premiership and the premier congratulated his son on his success at Princeton, where he was chosen golf team captain.

Cameramen Tell Start of Fatal Battle.

The widely publicized newsreel which includes the end, but not the beginning, of the Memorial day riot in South Chicago was shown yesterday before the coroner's jury investigating the deaths of ten men in the riot.

The two cameramen who made the film described to the jury the scene they did not picture—a crowd of hundreds attacking a slender police line. At that critical moment the lens of the camera was being changed.

"The riot undoubtedly was caused by the rocks and other missils thrown into the police lines by the strikers," declared Orlando Lippert, 7020 Sheridan road, the Paramount News photographer who pushed the camera button to record some of the preliminaries of the march on the Republic Steel corporation mill and the retreat of the mob in hand to hand combat with the police.

"The strikers came directly up to the police line," Lippert testified. "I tried to make some closeups, but needed a different lens. I could see a striker and an officer talking face to face. Suddenly I glanced up and saw stones flying into the police lines.

"At the same time a group of strikers in the rear pushed those in front into the police lines. That's the part of the film that's missing."

Absolves Police of Violence.

Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan took up the questioning.

Q.—Did you up to the time missils were thrown see the police commit any act of violence toward the strikers? A.—No.

Q.—Does the film record all the actions of all the strikers and all the policemen? A.—Absolutely not! The film records action in the center line, a distance of 50 to 60 feet out of a line 300 feet long.

"During the excitement I dropped an extra lens," the cameraman said. "I felt some one tap me on the leg. I looked down to see a policeman with a bloody face. He had picked up the lens to hand to me."

Of the 100 persons injured in the riot 27 were policemen.

Sound Engineer Adds Details.

Lippert's testimony was repeated and elaborated by his sound engineer, Harold A. Witt, 1701 North Linder avenue, who was in the cab of the sound truck. He was questioned by Prosecutor Coghlan, Coroner Frank J. Walsh, and Deputy Coroner James J. Whalen.

Q.—Did you see any weapons in the hands of the rioters? A.—I saw sticks and clubs—about 20 to 25 clubs.

Q.—Did you see any missils in the air? A.—Yes, flying from the strikers to the police.

Q.—Did you hear any shots fired? A.—I heard quite a few. There were about 30 or 40.

After the showing of the film, both at normal speed and slow motion, Prosecutor Coghlan said:

"The film shows that the mob was organized and planned to destroy police opposition. It did not intend to be thwarted in its march to the plant. The police are at a disadvantage in the film, in that they are much closer to the camera than the strikers. Only close observation of the film will show a full measure of action by the strikers."

Run Off After Session.

The film was run off in a private projection room at the Paramount studios, 1306 South Michigan avenue, after the morning session of the inquest held in the Criminal courts building.

The principal witness in the morning session was Dr. Lawrence Jacques, a surgeon of 804 East 58th street, who established a first aid station for the strikers before the start of the riot. He admitted that arrangements had been made three days previously to have him at the scene of the battle.

Dr. Jacques, who was a witness before the La Follette senatorial committee which held a hearing on the riot in Washington, illuminated a point that strike sympathizers have emphasized to put blame on police. Newspaper accounts of that hearing quoted the surgeon as saying that six or seven of the men killed were shot in the back.

Explains Fatal Wounds.

Dr. Jacques said he was misquoted; what he did say was that six or seven men were shot in the posterior. This means to a physician that the wounds were not necessarily made from the back, but entered the body nearer the back than the front. Thus, he explained, the bullets which entered the sides of the victims are often posterior wounds.

The surgeon admitted he had a friend on the Steel Workers Organizing committee which called the strike against the Republic corporation. He said he expected the S. W. O. C. to reimburse him for his services.

"Why did the strikers want to establish this first aid station," Coroner Walsh asked.

"Well," replied the surgeon with a shrug, "it's no state secret that in the course of strikes in the United States people are injured. There was no reason to think that none would be injured in this one."

Asked if he saw any of the marchers carrying clubs, Dr. Jacques said he saw a few. Nevertheless, he added:

"It was a quiet, peaceful Sunday crowd. It was a gathering that you might see on a steel company picnic."

LANSING PRESIDENT OF U.A.W.A. CONVICTED OF MOLESTING WORKER

Lester Washburn.

Lansing, Mich., July 16.—[Special.]—Lester Washburn, president of Lansing local, No. 182, United Automobile Workers of America, was under sentence today to pay $100 costs or serve 30 days in the county jail following conviction on a charge of having interfered with a laborer.

Washburn's arrest followed that of eight other U. A. W. A. members which caused a "labor holiday" here. His conviction followed that of Lawrence Christian, first to be tried for picketing at the scene of the Capitol Wrecking company strike.

REPUBLIC STEEL CITED ON CHARGES BY LABOR BOARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—A formal complaint was issued today by the National Labor Relations board against the Republic Steel Corporation, charging violations of the Wagner Labor Relations Act.

The board ordered the company to appear before it for a formal hearing next Wednesday on charges filed against it by the Committee for Industrial Organization, through its attorney, Lee Pressman, who also represents the steel workers organizing committee.

The C. I. O. complaint covered only Ohio plants of the company and was adopted by the board after an investigation by its staf.

The company was alleged to have discharged 75 workers for joining the C. I. O., and to have threatened other workers with discharge, if they joined the forces of John L. Lewis. It further was charged that violence had been used against union organizers and that additional company police were enrolled during the strike period.

HALT 'CHECKOFF' IN COTTON MILL BY COURT ORDER

Bennettsville, S. C., July 16.—(AP)—A court order was served today upon the Marlboro mills here restraining officials from collecting union dues from employes under a "checkoff" clause in a contract signed May 17 with the textile workers' organizing committee.

N. W. Edens, attorney for the employés, said he obtained the order from Judge E. C. Dennis at Darlington yesterday. No date was set for a hearing, he said, upon the question of making it permanent.

Edens said he represented the 340 employés of the mill here. Employés in four other plants of the same chain at Marlboro are not parties to the litigation, he said.

A. F. of L. Gains 650,000 Members to Offset C. I. O.

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—The American Federation of Labor announced today its counter attack on the Committee for Industrial Organization has netted the federation 650,000 new members, bringing the loyal membership to 3,091,049 workers.

The new members constituted replacement of two-thirds of the membership lost by C. I. O. suspension.

LOYALIST SPAIN BATTLES SPIES BEHIND LINES

Find Rebel Sympathizers a Serious Menace.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 16. — Spies and enemy sympathizers behind the lines form one of the greatest of all menaces for the Spanish government to fight. All possible precautions are being taken and warning posters are visible everywhere.

"Spies have ears!" is the warning appearing across a huge poster picturing a human ear, and "Spies have eyes!" is printed across an enormous picture of a human eye. These posters are seen on every street in Valencia.

Civil war is just made for spies. But even in the American civil war there was at least a rough geographical division. In Spain it is purely a matter of class and politics. Any man anywhere may belong to either side.

Not Sure of Neighbors.

No one is sure of his neighbor, and vital government offices are reported to be honeycombed with active spies or sympathizers with Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish rebel leader, who would be active if they could and dared.

Proof of how serious this point is considered is that before the beginning of the present big loyalist drive, the Madrid telephone service was shut down even for diplomats and Spanish officials. The Madrid censor's office was unable to telephone the Valencia censor's office until after the drive was well under way.

The strictness of the precautions may explain the whirlwind start of the drive and the apparent surprise to the enemy.

Refugees Create Problem.

One difficult problem arose in handling refugees. It was impossible to insist on legal identification papers from people who fled without anything but the clothes they wore.

A leakage of vital information is believed to have been traced to refugee camps for women and children and the government planted trusted women among them. A large group of women thus was caught in Tortosa recently.

One reason why the anarchist trades' union organization, the C. N. T. [the National Confederation of Workers], has fallen into ill repute with the other loyalist elements is said to be that its ranks are honeycombed with Franco sympathizers. Charges that the organization is working with Franco are fantastic, but many members probably are, or would like to be.

Cameras Are Seized.

When a ship enters a port all cameras are taken from members of the crew and observers and are kept under seal until the ship departs.

The government does not make charges, but more than one Spaniard who is not unduly suspicious has told me there is reason to believe some observers are guilty of taking out valuable pictures and information.

Of the horde of American newspaper men and photographers who have poured in and out since the war began, I was able to learn of only two cases of spy arrests. Both later were freed.

REBELS ARE REPULSED

MADRID, July 16.—(AP)—With air bombs and shellfire insurgent forces battered at Madrid today. The government forces in a day of fierce fighting near the village of Villa Franca del Castillo, 12 miles northwest of Madrid, repulsed three insurgent attacks.

After bombing suburban airdromes, insurgent aircraft attempted a night reconnaissance flight over the capital but disappeared when searchlights picked them out. Artillery shelled the outskirts for an hour during the morning.

Loyalist Air Forces Active.

In the Clempozuelos sector, 25 miles south of Madrid, government forces said they had consolidated positions captured at the beginning of their offensive after crossing the Jarama river.

Bombs were dropped on an insurgent airdrome near Toledo, another near Arenas de San Pedro and a third south of Aranda de Duero. A fourth fell near Sepulveda and a fifth south of Avila. The government said all its planes returned from their missions undamaged.

Gen. Jose Miaja, leader of Madrid's defenders, expressed satisfaction over reports that insurgents were concentrating forces to block the government drive.

"That shows the shoe is pinching," he said. "The fight is hard, but we still are holding the initiative."

The war ministry announced that more than 2,000 prisoners have been taken since the drive began 11 days ago, including Moors from French and Spanish Morocco.

Tightens Grip on Raw Materials.

VALENCIA, July 16.—(AP)—The Spanish government took steps today to maintain discipline in its territory and tighten its control over production of raw materials, as well as commerce and industry generally.

It issued a decree authorizing the ministry of finance to acquire raw materials used in the production of goods for export.

The defense ministry provisionally assigned courts of three provinces whose capitals are in insurgent territory to capitals of other provinces for military administrative purposes.

EIGHT INJURED AS C.I.O. PICKETS BATTLE POLICE

New York, July 16.—[Special.]—The bloodiest clash between police and strikers affiliated with the C. I. O. in the shipyards strike, now entering its second month, ended today in the injury of three policemen and five shipyard strikers. One striker was taken to the hospital. Nine strikers were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct.

The battle between police and strikers at the Robins Repair and Drydock company in Brooklyn started soon after 800 workers left the gates of the shipyards at 4 p. m. Opposite the gates of the plant 400 pickets caused no disturbance, but father along the route by which the strikers left the plant under police protection, the police said strikers began hurling stones. When other missils were thrown, police said, they closed in on the pickets.

ASK $2,500 WEEK

[Acme Photo.]
FREDDIE BARTHOLOMEW and AUNT MYLLICENT.

Hollywood, Cal., July 16.—[Special.]—During questioning today of Miss Myllicent Bartholomew, paternal aunt and guardian of Freddie Bartholomew, 12 year old film star, it was brought out that the Englishwoman has been negotiating a new salary arrangement for her charge.

Miss Bartholomew was questioned by Walter Guthrie, her own attorney, and by former Judge Isaac Pacht, representing the Union bank, which has raised a question as to the aunt's adoption proceedings.

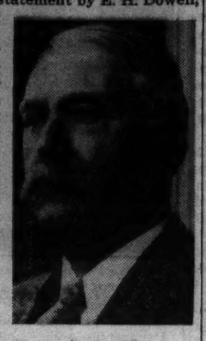
Asked if she had "entered into negotiations with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio whereby it is sought to increase Freddie's earnings from $1,100 to $2,500 a week, and whereby $1,500 would go to him and $1,000 a week to you?" the aunt answered "yes."

She also revealed the studio is paying her $100 a week in connection with the child's work.

LEWIS-MOSCOW LINK IS SEEN IN FUND EVIDENCE

Alleged Communists' Aid Pointed Out as Proof.

New York, July 16.—[Special.]—The recent statement by E. H. Dowell, district organizer for the American Federation of Labor in San Diego, that the department of justice has checks for $750,000 from communistic sources to John L. Lewis supplies the missing piece in the "Lewis-communist" mosaic pattern, Ralph M. Easley of the National Civic federation asserted today in a letter to William Green, president of the A. F. of L.



Ralph M. Easley.

"If the department of justice has the record of the transaction described by your San Diego organizer," Easley observed, "there should be no trouble in placing at Alcatraz the criminal leaders involved in such a diabolical conspiracy against this nation.

"Furthermore, the congress should be called upon to make a thorough investigation and to take adequate action."

Points to Moscow Link.

The "mosaic," Easley asserted, began to form when Fred E. Beal, a communist official, disclosed the change in tactics adopted by Moscow in bringing American workers into the red fold.

"I was in Moscow when the original decision was made in the matter of abandoning the dual system of trade unions," Beal wrote in a magazine article, according to Easley's letter. "All such important decisions are first made behind closed doors, away from the proletariat. It was in the summer of 1933, and I was called from Kharkoff, where I was doing social and political work among foreign workers and specialists, to attend a meeting of the textile section of the comintern [international red union] in Moscow. The American representatives at this meeting were Foster, Browder, Hathaway, Overguard, Clarence Miller, and myself.

Cites Browder Declaration.

"The time had come, said Browder, speaking, of course, for the comintern, to play an entirely new strategy in American labor and politics. The 'rôle' of the party must now be to force industrial unions by any method within means of the party, even 'buying up some of the present A. F. of L. leaders if necessary.

"Subsequently I learned that Francis Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers' union, was the most likely person and that Leon Josephson, head of the GPU communist forces in America, was to arrange for a 'get-together' with Gorman on the proposition.

"Other sections of the comintern met, including the coal and metal sections. I did not attend the meetings of those sections, but the same procedure was followed in all. It was agreed that John L. Lewis was the man to approach in the mining field and that no expense should be spared to accomplish that end."

Key Positions for Reds.

An alleged agreement was that communists were to be given key positions in the C. I. O. and the United Mine Workers of America, Easley's letter continued.

"That this is just what has been done is a notorious fact to which you can attest," Easley wrote. "For example, John Brophy is the executive director of the C. I. O.; Adolph Germer is the general organizer and Powers Hapgood is field representative."

ONE IN ALIMONY ROW MAY GO FREE, BUT 30 ARE IN FOR SUMMER

Of the thirty-one prisoners in alimony row in the county jail, one, Joseph Polaszek, may be freed today. He is to appear before Judge Donald S. McKinlay in the Superior court.

Polaszek was committed to jail for contempt on June 1 for being $210 in arrears in alimony to his divorced wife, Agnes. The judges start their vacation tomorrow and Judge McKinlay ordered Polaszek brought before him today so he would not be compelled to stay in jail during the judicial vacation, if he is entitled to freedom.

If Polaszek promises to try to meet the alimony payments he will be freed, according to the judge. The thirty other prisoners in alimony row were committed by Judges John C. Lewe and Philip Finnegan. Some of them remarked yesterday that the jail is a nice cool place in summer.

INSANE SLAYER OF HIS SON HANGS SELF IN JAIL CELL

Joseph Brazlovitz, 53 years old, found insane by a jury in Criminal court Wednesday in his trial for slaying a son, died in the county jail hospital yesterday after he attempted to hang himself in his cell. He was found unconscious by a guard. Brazlovitz had made a noose of a towel and strips torn from his cot mattress. Last Feb. 12 Brazlovitz shot and killed his son, Joseph Jr., 24, in their home at 942 Wentworth avenue, Calumet City.

ROW IN SENATE PUTS ROOSEVELT ON DEFENSIVE

Forced to Quit Support of Alben Barkley.

tail riders and the so-called "young Turks," such as Senators Lewis D. Schwellenbach of Washington, Sherman Minton of Indiana, Joseph Guffey of Pennsylvania and William Smathers of New Jersey. He is unpopular with the older men of the senate because of his pompous manner and sycophantic amenability to the vaguest whims of the White House.

With interest in the leadership fight paramount, the court packing controversy was held in abeyance.

Opponents of the packing scheme have stopped talking about a motion to send back the bill to the judiciary committee for permanent burial, but they vow that they have sufficient votes to do so and such a motion is believed to be inevitable—early next week.

Indignation among Harrison supporters and anti-court packing Democrats over President Roosevelt's letter to Barkley attained a fury unprecedented in his administration. Some of them declared, in private conversations, that the letter was conclusive evidence of the President's determination to be dictator.

He not only wants to dictate to the judicial branch of the government, but to the legislative branch, even to the extent of interfering with the democratic organization in the senate, members of his party declared. One southern senator said the President's letter was "the act of a desperate man."

"Unfounded in Fact."

Senator Frederick Van Nuys [Dem., Ind.], whose political death was decreed by Gov. M. Clifford Townsend of the McNutt machine on the steps of the White House, after a conference with President Roosevelt on the day of Senator Robinson's death, said:

"The President's letter was wholly uncalled for and unfounded in fact. The opponents of this court packing bill have been longer and better friends of Joe Robinson than any of the proponents. We are observing all the fine sensibilities of the occasion."

By "unfounded in fact," Senator Van Nuys and others had reference to the President's designation of Barkley as "the acting majority leader in the senate," which he is not and holds no elective office in the party caucus; to the President's statement that he at no time insisted that his six judge packing bill was "sacred," when the record shows that the White House repeatedly maintained a "no compromise" stand, and to the President's accusation that opponents of the court packing scheme were taking advantage of Senator Robinson's death, whereas he had a conference on the political and legislative situation with Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.] the day Senator Robinson died.

Letter a Boomerang.

The Barkley letter was expected to act as a boomerang against his candidacy for these reasons and particularly because the President said:

"I am glad you called my attention to certain events of yesterday and today."

This, it was believed, would put Barkley in the position of a tattletale, running to the President with accusations against his fellow senators.

The net result of the President's letter, so far as could be learned today, was that two senators committed to Barkley switched to Harrison and two senators committed to Harrison switched to Barkley.

Supporters of Harrison's candidacy are planning to demand a secret ballot when the caucus is held, so senators will have no reason to fear reprisals from the administration.

RITES FOR ROBINSON

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—In the senate chamber, where his booming voice had arisen during 24 years of service, most of them as the leader of his party, Joseph T. Robinson, the senior senator from Arkansas, lay quietly in his coffin today.

The chamber was packed as it has not been since the last state funeral, that for the late Senator Thomas J. Walsh in 1933. It was only the fifteenth time since the civil war that similar services had been held in the senate.

The President of the United States, his cabinet, the diplomatic corps, representatives of this uniformed forces, some 90 senators and 350 representatives stood pressed against one another on a floor meant to accommodate 96. The galleries were simply jammed with notables, among whom was Mrs. Roosevelt.

The ceremonies were simple and brief. The senate chaplain, the Rev. Zebarney T. Phillips, delivered a short eulogy and the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, house chaplain, offered a prayer. Two hymns, "Abide with Me" and "Lead, Kindly Light," were sung by Miss Helen Howison, unaccompanied by music of any kind.

The only vacant seat in the crowded chamber was the one in the front row of desks on the aile which Robinson as majority leader had occupied. The flower-banked coffin was only a few feet from this desk.

Widow Comes from Arkansas.

President Roosevelt, the last to enter the chamber, sat in a chair in front of Robinson's desk.

Mrs. Robinson, who was in Arkansas when the senate leader was stricken early Wednesday morning, arrived this morning with several relatives. There were no children. Clad in widow's weeds, she sat near the coffin and wept during the prayers.

The body remained in the senate chamber until it was taken to a special train late today. Upon arrival at Little Rock Sunday morning it will lie in state in the state capitol until 4 p. m. when church services will be conducted.

GETS ANNULMENT

[Acme Photo.]
MARIE L. MARKS.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 16.—[Special.]—An annulment of marriage was granted today to Marie L. Marks, stage and screen actress, from Cecil Sillman of Detroit, whom she married in North Castle, N. Y., on April 14, 1936. She is also suing Sillman for $200,000 damages. She testified that they separated soon after their marriage when she learned that Sillman had not been divorced from his first wife, Mrs. Emery Sather Sillman.

Gets Away from Jealous Husband by Divorcing Him

Her husband was so jealous, said Mrs. Kate Fitz, 23 years old, 2308 Melvina avenue, yesterday, that he followed her constantly even to the corner grocery. This lead to quarrels and beatings, she told Attorney Norman Becker. So Judge Philip J. Finnegan granted her a divorce from Edward, a paper mill foreman, custody of Marilyn, 2 years old, and $5 a week.

BACK AUTOGIRO PLAN TO CARRY MAIL TO AIRPORT

Chicago Postal Officials Cite Time Saving.

Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen and other public officials yesterday endorsed a proposal that autogiro planes shuttle mail to and from the city airport and the new postoffice, a distance of nearly 10 miles. The proposal was made in Washington in a house bill that would appropriate $100,000 for development of such a service in large cities.

Postal officials were enthusiastic about the project because they believe it might lead to a realization of a plan to land planes on the roof of the postoffice building. The 13 story structure, completed in 1934, was designed with the possibility of future use as a landing field in mind.

Saving of Half an Hour.

"I hope we get the autogiro service," said Postmaster Kruetgen. "It would be a fine thing for Chicago if we could reduce the travel time of mail between the postoffice and airport from 45 to 15 minutes."

James Cruikshank, in charge of air mail, said the demands upon this service are increasing constantly. To carry the present daily average of 8,000 pounds of air mail, trucks make 27 round trips over the 9.85 miles of streets separating the postoffice and airport, he said.

Recalling his ride over Grant park in an autogiro, City Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt called the proposed service feasible. The city will coöperate in any way it can to carry out the plan, he said, if the expenditure is voted by congress.

Landing Fields Available.

George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the Chicago park district, said there are several Grant park areas available for autogiro landings. Charles E. Miner, WPA administrator for Illinois, in indorsing the plan, pointed out that suitable small landing fields could be found at the north end of Grant park or on Northerly Island. These sites have been graded by WPA workers.

At the postoffice it was said mail trucks could make the trip to Grant park in from three to five minutes, if a ground landing was desirable for the autogiros.

Maj. George Vest, divisional chief of the federal bureau of air commerce, looked forward to use of an autogiro service by passengers once it has been introduced for mail.

Advantage of the Autogiro.

The great advantage held by the autogiro over other planes for such a service is the fact that it can take off and land in a space as small as 25 feet square. The two manufacturers of autogiros in this country, the Pitcairn Manufacturing company and the Kellett Autogiro corporation, both of Philadelphia, have engineers working on improved autogiro models in England. The latest type is a "jumping giro" which can lift itself off the ground and directly into flight without any forward run. This type is held in the air by the movement of the rotor "windmill" blades which generate lift as they move in a horizontal plane. The usual propellor pulls the ship forward.

A few months ago the army purchased six of these wingless planes from the Kellett company for $238,000 for military purposes.

Had One Husband

Walter A. Long, 29 years old, 901 North 11th street, Melrose Park, and Mrs. Ruth Talbert Westerman, 28 years old, 4032 Irving Park boulevard, were married April 8, his attorney, Harry X. Cole, told Judge Donald S. McKinlay yesterday.

Then a strange man began ringing their doorbell. Long said he learned he was Mrs. Long's first husband, whom she had neglected to divorce. So Long left her on May 27 and sued to annul their marriage.

As a witness for Long, Mrs. Long blithely told the court she thought her double marriage was legal and that she could divorce No. 1 at her leisure. Judge McKinlay explained the law to her with diagrams, then granted Long an annulment.

TEACHER ASKS TOWN TO PROVE MALICIOUS TALK

Saugus, Mass., July 16.—(AP)—Miss Isabelle Hallin tonight challenged "any one in town" to prove the "malicious rumors" she charged led to the school committee's refusal to reappoint her an English instructor. She shouted her denials to more than 500 townsfolk, who overwhelmingly favored a resolution seeking her reinstatement.

The meeting was arranged by friends of the high school instructor after school committee members had denied her a public hearing. Gossip has been spread that Miss Hallin, who is 26 years old, served cocktails to a student theatrical group in her home. She denies the story.

C. Fred Hallin, her father, urged the audience to drop a previous motion asking the resignation of three school committee members who opposed his daughter's reappointment.

The Rev. Harold Thurston Handley, pastor of St. George Episcopal church, called on the school committee to make public its charges, "if any," against Miss Hallin.

TAMMANY HALL BACKS COPELAND IN MAYOR RACE

New York, July 16.—[Special.]—Tammany hall, under the leadership of James J. Dooling, split away from the other four Democratic county organizations today.

Tammany will back Senator Royal S. Copeland for the nomination for mayor.

Senator Copeland, in a telegram to Mr. Dooling, has made clear his willingness to accept Tammany backing and enter what will probably be a three cornered primary fight.

The other four county chairmen who are pro-Roosevelt were reported to have selected Grover Whalen as their choice. Whalen accepted. It is expected that Copeland will receive the backing of the Republicans who are against Mayor F. H. LaGuardia and who seek a clearcut fight between Roosevelt followers and their adversaries.

SPEED UP STEEL FOR LINK BRIDGE DELAYED BY C. I. O.

Officials Move Up Opening Date Three Weeks.

General Superintendent George T. Donoghue and other Park district officials took steps yesterday to overcome delays in completion of the new outer drive bridge caused by the C. I. O. steel strike. Donoghue had announced that the bridge would not be opened until Oct. 1, but last evening he said that work can be rushed to have it ready three weeks earlier than that date.

Donoghue said that as a result of his appeals the Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing company of Aurora had promised to begin delivery next week of the steel posts for the safety barricades on the bridge. The strike put the company behind two months in its work on these posts. The order will be completed in three weeks. To accomplish this the steel company switched part of its material purchases from strikebound steel plants to those that have been operating.

The safety barricades, for which electrical parts are also being awaited, will be the last parts of the bridge to be completed, Donoghue said. With earlier delivery on the posts assured, he held a meeting of park engineers yesterday afternoon to coördinate their efforts to speed up work all along the line.

"If we get all the posts by Aug. 7 it will take from 20 to 30 days to finish the barricades," the superintendent explained. "We are making every effort to get the job done."

G. H. Gneiss, head of the Central States Electrical Construction company, subcontractor for the barriers, declared that they would be in operation within five weeks. He said installation would probably be completed before permanent electric equipment for raising the span is in place.

Posts Rise from Pavement.

The barriers will drop the customary wooden crossing gates, with warning lights and bells, in front of motorists. Behind these will be the steel posts, rising two and one-half feet from their recesses in the pavement, to stop any car that crashes through the gates. This feature is found on no other bridge, according to park engineers who designed it.

North and south approaches to the bridge from the outer drives will be completed by Aug. 1, Superintendent Donoghue said. Stone work is being performed by all available masons.

MOTHER OF THREE WINS A DIVORCE ON DESERTION CHARGE

Married for six years, Mrs. Lucille Dillman, 30 years old, 12031 Lowe avenue, was granted a divorce yesterday from Cecil Dillman, on her cross-bill charging desertion. She told Judge Joseph B. David that her husband before he left her blacked her eye on Feb. 4, 1935, then threatened her with a shotgun. Judge David awarded Mrs. Dillman $15 a week and custody of three children, Shirley, 7; Dolores, 6; and Cecil Jr., 4.

REPORT BLASTING COURT BILL BEING SENT TO PASTORS

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—Senator Edward R. Burke [D., Neb.] is undertaking to place a copy of the senate judiciary committee's report condemning President Roosevelt's scheme to subjugate the Supreme court in the hands of each of the 244,000 clergymen in the United States. To date the senator's office has sent out 60,000 copies to clergymen of all religious affiliations.

The committee report is not available for free distribution, but when people write to Senator Burke asking what they can do to aid in the court fight they are told that if they will supply 1,000 copies of the report the senator's office will handle the mailing. Copies are available at the government printing office at $19.01 a thousand.

SEEK PICKPOCKET AFTER FORFEIT OF $2,000 BOND

The police yesterday continued their search for Joseph [Slippery] Harris, a pickpocket with a long record, who failed to appear in the Felony court Thursday to answer a charge of attempted larceny. He was arrested for attempting to pick the pockets of William L. Porter, 4741 Malden avenue June 28. A $2,000 real estate bond was ordered forfeited.

The property scheduled as security for the bond is a vacant lot at 1305 South Peoria street, worth $3,500, according to the owner, Morris Goldstein, who signed the bond. The bond was approved by Municipal Judge Eugene L. McGarry. The records show the property had been scheduled for bail bonds a number of times in the last few years.

ADMITS KILLING WOMAN; PASTOR READY TO DIE

Toils Over His Confession All Night Long.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsfield, Ill., July 16.—[Special.]—The Rev. C. Ellsworth Newton, a gangling country pastor from Paris, Mo., smoked cigarets in an endless chain in his cell tonight, after expressing a willingness to face the electric chair for the roadside murder of his "dear friend," Mrs. Dennis Kelly, a parishioner.

Her battered body was taken late Tuesday from the Illinois side of the Mississippi river, opposite Louisiana, Mo., where the Rev. Mr. Newton said he threw it earlier in the day. The pastor confessed he clubbed her to death "with a hammer, a dumbbell, or something" during a quarrel as he drove her on a flight from her husband and two children.

Signs 11 Page Confession.

State's Attorney Merrill Johnston of Pike county told of the minister's desires to accept whatever punishment the state chose to inflict after the prisoner, who weighs only 125 pounds despite his 6 feet height, signed an 11 page confession.

Prosecutor Johnston also said a statement given him by an intimate associate of Newton supported a theory that the pastor had planned to "rid himself" of his wife, but he refused to elaborate and withheld the name of the associate.

All night long, in rolled shirt sleeves and stockinged feet, the 51 year old parson toiled over his masterpiece, an amazing document which described in meticulous detail his long intimate friendship with Mrs. Kelly and the events on the night of her murder.

These included a midnight dash through the rain in his automobile, he wrote in his confession; their quarrel and her murder; his consolation from a whisky bottle which his foresight provided; and the Mark Twain bridge across the river from Hannibal, Mo., where he heaved her body into the muddy water.

Pastor Takes All Blame.

Despite a clear web of circumstantial evidence, including the mention of his name in a farewell note Mrs. Kelly left for her husband, a rural mail carrier, the Rev. Mr. Newton maintained his innocence until late yesterday.

Then, confronted with the statement of Miss Myra Hanan, 36, who had been reared in his household, the minister confessed. Miss Hanan told Prosecutor Johnston that Newton gave her $1,930 of Mrs. Kelly's money to dispose of, and that after the murder she and one of his three children, Noel, burned part of her clothing.

The Rev. Mr. Newton was insistent in his confession that neither his wife, Miss Hanan, no any other relative, had any prior knowledge of his actions on Monday night when he killed the 45 year old woman who had brought him dressed chickens, vegetables, and butter for years. None of the others was held.

Takes Problems to Him.

His friendship with Mrs. Kelly developed during the normal relations of a pastor with a member of his congregation, the minister's confession related. She came to him with her problems, he declared, and he learned of her growing domestic unhappiness and a physical ailment which doctors told her would soon cause her death.

Then came her decision to leave home and harth. The pastor, after inveighing against this action, declared he bought suitcases and agreed to let her use his car. Mrs. Kelly said she would try and get some one else to drive, he wrote, but if she could not, Newton said he agreed to help her in this way despite the danger of trouble from Dennis Kelly and his own wife.

Monday evening, by arrangement, the parson said he left his automobil in the driveway with the ignition key in the switch. If no one came for it by 11:30, he said he understood that he was to do the driving.

Goes for Ice and Groceries.

"After supper I went over to my youngest son's," read the confession, "and together we went to the ice plant and loaded fifty pounds of ice on the ice carrier of the car and went to the baker's, where I had left groceries and other things, loaded these in and went home.

"I later went back downtown and out to the house. I have been using whisky for two and a half years and remembered that I had none and was feeling nervous and upset, anticipating trouble.

"I went back and got in the car and drove to Madison, Mo., twelve miles west of Paris, and went to the drug store and got a pint of whisky which I put in the dash pocket of the car, returned to Paris and took the whisky to my study and put it in my desk drawer."

After waiting for the substitute driver to appear, Newton wrote, the 11:30 deadline arrived, and he prepared to play Lochinvar to Mrs. Kelly.

"I think I went out to the car," his confession continued, "then returned to the study and took the whisky out of the desk drawer, also a revolver, and put them in the car.

"I had been out several days and was weak and nervous and felt like I wanted whisky and also anticipated possible danger and wanted the pistol along. I backed out of the driveway and drove north."

There follows in the confession a detailed account of his meeting Mrs. Kelly at the side door of her home and how he helped her load her belongings into the car.

Suggested That He Return Home.

Then their drive began. Newton told of suggesting that he leave Mrs. Kelly at some town not too distant, so that he might return to his own home without being missed. But she would have none of it.

"We had to drive slowly because it had been raining ever since we left Paris," continued Newton's confession, "and I began asking her what she thought we could do, where I could leave her most consistently and be back in Paris by daylight.

"She repeated that she didn't know and that she was depending on me. I repeated that I didn't know these towns, but thought she had better stop the first place we could find a decent hotel so I could go home.

Stops Car to Talk It Over.

"She said, 'Are you going home?'

"By this time we were some distance this side of the river, but I cannot say how far. I stopped the car that we might decide definitly what we were going to do and said, 'Maybelle, you know that I have to be home by daylight and it is getting late now. We can't go very far. Also we might get caught in the high water and kill the engine and then we would be in a jam.'"

But Maybelle had different ideas. Unless the elderly parson, who does not look over 37, would go with her, Maybelle said, according to his confession, that she would not move. In fact, the preacher wrote, she became hysterical, and "to quiet the spell," he got out of the car. So did Mrs. Kelly.

"She half screamed that she would never get back in the car unless we were going together," Newton continued. "I tried to pick her up to put her in the car.

Moves Her Toward Car Door.

"I don't know how I took hold of her. She was facing me and I lifted her up and as I did with some difficulty she turned partly around as I held her and moved her toward the car door which was not fastened and I was about worn out and although she was small it was about all I could do.

"I got one foot on the running board and tried to support her with my knee and with my elbow tried to get the door open. It possibly was opened about four to six inches. She struggled and put her hand against the car and shoved me back, thinking only to shove herself back perhaps, and I lost my balance and staggered, I don't know how far, but it seemed to me my impression is about to the rear of the car by the side and fell, she falling over my shoulder and back and I fell on her.

"I think her head struck the pavement, for when I bent over her to pick her up and spoke to her she didn't reply, seemed unconscious and limp. I picked her up with some difficulty staggered under her weight and in trying to go to the car door I stepped off the edge of the pavement on the south side, for the car was facing east, and fell again, dropping her either on her face, or back of the head, I do not recall, and fell with her.

Feels Faint; Gulps Whisky.

"I think I picked her up the third time or tried to. At any rate while both of us were on the pavement I lifted her head and blood was spurting from it in a stream over my shirt and some in my face. I was feeling faint, so I took two or three drinks of whisky."

The pastor said he tore a strip from his shirt and tried to staunch the flow of blood.

"I became excited and I don't remember all that happened," he continued. "I think I struck her with something, hammer, or a dumbbell, and then I, with much difficulty, got the body into the car."

The minister started back towards the river. On the Mark Twain bridge he rolled her body over the railing into the water, following it with the old iron dumbbell used in the murder, which later was recovered.

"I went home and I think for the first time remembered that the money Mrs. Kelly had drawn from the bank before she left was still in the car," the preacher said. "It was her own suggestion that she put it in the dash pocket and I think she forgot about it. I took it into my study and put it in my desk."

YOUTH IS SLAIN CHASING BANDIT AFTER ROBBERY

William Karlovsky, 21 years old, was shot and fatally wounded yesterday by a bandit whom he tried to capture after the bandit had robbed his sister, Lillian, of $50, in the Karlovsky bakery at 2458 South Drake avenue.

The gunman entered the store alone, ordered Miss Karlovsky to give up the cash drawer contents, and fled. Miss Karlovsky's cries attracted her brother's attention.

He ran after the fleeing thief, and caught up with him in an alley behind 2437 South Central Park avenue. The gunman fired three shots, one of them striking young Karlovsky in the abdomen. The gunman escaped. Karlovsky died in St. Anthony's hospital.

WIFE CHECKS UP ON MATE'S JOB; ALIMONY RAISED

Mrs. Louise Bielfuss, 32 years old, 6957 South Bishop street, challenged the statement of her husband, Albert, that he was unemployed. On the husband's word Judge Philip J. Finnegan had recently set the rate of support of their daughter, Lois, 5, at $10 a week. So her attorney, Edward L. S. Arkema, had Bielfuss shadowed, and the attorney reported that Bielfuss was earning $68 weekly. Judge Finnegan increased the temporary alimony order to $25 pending hearing of Mrs. Bielfuss's divorce bill charging desertion.

150 INJURED IN ATLANTIC CITY GASOLINE BLAST

Flames Flood Street as Six Tanks Explode.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 16.—[Special.]—More than 150 persons were injured and a city block was saved from destruction today when a series of explosions occurred in the storage plant of the Pure Oil company here. Th explosion released nearly 50,000 gallons of burning gasoline which flowed like a river of fire through streets less than a mile from the business district.

The majority of those injured were firemen who battled to prevent the flames from igniting adjacent gasoline storage tanks. The fire was brought under control after three hours. A number of spectators, including women, also were injured besides employés and policemen. Forty-four were burned seriously.

The first of several blasts was preceded by a fire near one of the storage tanks. A total of six furnace tanks, one underground tank and numerous smaller drums of gasoline gave way during the explosions.

Because of the intense heat of the flames firemen were forced to fight the fire from roof tops. Buildings in the area were vacated.

Emergency first aid headquarters was established in the editorial offices of the Press-Union newspapers. The building was ordered evacuated during the fire, but was not damaged.

The most serously injured were taken to hospitals in the vicinity.

FIND BIGAMIST WED 20 WIVES INSTEAD OF ONLY 9

TORONTO, Ont., July 16.—[Special.]—Police investigation of the past life of George Roediger, arch bigamist and suspected Bluebeard, today revealed the German born sausage maker, now in prison a second time for bigamy, has been wed at least twenty times instead of nine times as previously credited him. A suitcase checked by Roediger here today was discovered to contain two razor-edged butcher knives.

Police now are trying to find Roediger's 1935 "wife," Mrs. Christine McKenzie, of Allandale, Ont., who disappeared shortly after their marriage. Roediger is 55 years old.

Others of his "wives" have disappeared, police learned, and at least two died under mysterious circumstances. They were Meta Roediger, who was supposed to have died of self-administered poison in St. Catherine's, Ontario, in 1926, and Bessie Schmidt, found dead in a bathtub in Freehold, N. Y., in 1931.

INSISTS WARNER HIRED WOMAN TO TEST GIRL'S LOVE

Los Angeles, Cal., July 16.—(AP)—District Attorney Buron Fitts said today Thomas Warner Jr., 22, years old, son of a wealthy automobile accessories manufacturer, hired a woman detective to discover whether the woman he loved really loved him or wanted his money.

This disclosure came as the Warners, father and son, conferred with Fitts on the $510,000 damage suit filed against Warner Sr. by Mrs. Pearl Antibus, private investigator, because of a raid on her home on June 21.

Fitts said wax records obtained by a device secreted in the rooms of Mrs. Jean McDonald, then obtaining a divorce, with whom Warner Jr. was in love, were seized when his investigators raided Mrs. Antibus' home and returned young Warner to his father.

Mrs. Antibus insisted Warner knew his son was in her home of his own violition.

"Young Warner retained my investigating firm to find out if the Mrs. McDonald really loved him just for himself," said Mrs. Antibus.

"A few days after the recording device was installed, Tommy, listening with earphones, heard Mrs. McDonald say to a friend:

"'I don't care anything about Tommy's filthy money. I love him.'

"That broke up the investigation. Tommy threw down the earphones and dashed into her apartment and they had a reunion."

ANOTHER SMART USED CAR BUYER

● "My wife and I recently decided that one car wasn't enough for our family and that a used car would be the answer, provided we could get one that was in good condition and at a low price,' says H. S. Dunlap, laundry manager. "Right while we were talking, I turned to the classified columns in our paper and started checking up. I noticed several interesting cars featured, but what attracted me most was a Dodge dealer's ad featuring a particular sedan at a real bargain price.

"I got in touch with the dealer and he explained that any car that bears the Dodge Dealers' Seal of Dependability has been triple-checked for appearance, condition and price, and is bound to be the utmost in value. TASKS THAT FIT

By CALEB

THE country is now full of boys and girls — pardon me, young men and young women —who have recently stepped off the deep end of the scholastic springboard. In the course of the next twenty years or so their blood pressures will begin to betray the courses they have pursued since their schooling.

Many of them will enter upon a man-killing pace of keeping up with the Joneses. Some of them will fail to evidence one of the prime proofs of civilization — a consideration for the morrow. They will live for today alone.

Some of them no doubt will early learn the philosophy of calm. This does not mean reclining in a hammock. It means basing outlook and activity on something more than income— on something less than a frantic struggle for "success." It has for a foundation an ability to evaluate—to determine what is worth while and what is not.

Youth is vigorous. Energy which mounts high in college years is spent profligately. Why not? But that profligate use of energy should be considered what it is—a training and seasoning of the physique and not an eternal habit of life. There is a happy medium between the over-active and the sedentary.

In the old days a man with a weak back knew he would never make a blacksmith or wheelwright. We are but little beyond that simple discrimination in our selection of vocations and we need to exercise more discretion.

Here in our business we are attempting persistently to fit people to tasks that fit them. Some eyes are not good for some jobs. Some nervous systems are not suited for certain occupations. Physical strength should have a definite influence on the work one does. Many people are unhappy because their feet are unhappy, and work and feet influence each other. Aptitudes and temperament should be considered in the assignment of people in jobs.

Forty years from now certain physicians will be wagging their heads over semi-physical wrecks. This year's crop of graduates is beginning partially to determine right now who those physical sub-standards will be. The courses they are presently beginning to pursue in selecting occupations and recreations will tell the tale.

NEW TRIAL DATE FOR LIBEL SUIT OF CURTIS DALL

Based on Fake Suicide Story in Magazine.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 16.—[Special.]—The appeal of Time magazine against a bench ruling that Curtis B. Dall, former son-in-law of President Roosevelt, had been libeled when the publication printed a false story of his suicide will be heard by the Appellate division of the New York Supreme court this fall, it was learned today.

Curtis B. Dall.

Attorneys for both sides are preparing for a battle over the suit in which Dall is asking $250,000. The magazine's attorneys are engaged in printing a transcript of the hearing before the trial court, which will be filed with the Appeals division, while Caruthers Ewing, counsel for Dall, declared that his client would fight the case through to a finish because of the great embarrassment he had suffered. The date of the hearing has not been set.

Court Overrules Verdict.

The arguments will be heard on a plea of the magazine against the ruling of Supreme Court Justice Bernard L. Shientag. Judge Shientag ruled that Dall had been clearly libeled and set aside a jury verdict that declared otherwise on May 5.

"The verdict of the jury is against the overwhelming weight of the credible evidence," asserted the jurist. "The plaintiff clearly established a deliberate libel. To allow this verdict to stand would be a travesty on justice and I have no hesitancy in setting it aside. The motion to set aside the verdict and for a new trial is granted."

The case hinges about a sensationalized mixture of news and fiction, characteristic of the magazine's style. The editors of Time insisted that all its readers understood the incident was imaginary "except a few dunces in the back row."

Used as Comparison.

The fiction was used, they insisted, to contrast French and American newspaper methods of displaying news in connection with the actual suicide of the son-in-law of Mme. Gaston Doumergue, wife of the French president, which had received little attention in the Parisian press although the act had occurred before the eyes of Mme. Doumergue and her daughter. The purported taking of his life by "America's No. 1 son-in-law" in the White House was then depicted.

The article appeared in the April 23, 1934, issue of the magazine when Mr. Dall and the President's daughter, Anna, were still married although living apart. Dall said he had first read the item in Atlanta, Ga., and became "terribly upset." He maintained that it had caused him a great deal of annoyance besides proving embarrassing to his associates in the brokerage business. His wife obtained a divorce a few months later at Minden, Nev.

The jury deliberated for more than two hours before finally determining there was no libel. Judge Shientag promptly set aside the verdict.

BROKER PORTER SENTENCED TO 5 YEARS IN PRISON

Waterman William Porter, former investment broker, who was convicted of mail fraud by a federal court jury on June 25, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Charles G. Briggle to serve five years in Leavenworth penitentiary and was fined $1,000.

Waterman W. Porter.

Porter, who operated several extensive get rich quick investment concerns until stopped by the government in 1935, was accused of causing losses totaling $1,500,000 to his 2,000 customers. He had luxurious offices at 30 West Washington street.

The sentence was the maximum for the one count on which Porter was convicted by the jury. In denying a new trial Judge Briggle also denied Porter an appeal bond but granted a stay of execution of the sentence until Monday so that Porter could secure supersedeas bail from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Until then Porter was allowed to remain at liberty on his previous bond of $10,000.

PASTOR RETURNS TO ZION AFTER MANN ACT TERM

After serving five months of a six months' sentence at Milwaukee for violating the Mann act, the Rev. Finis Jennings Dake returned yesterday to his parish, the Christian Assembly church at Zion. The Rev. Mr. Dake joined his wife, Dorothy, who carried on his duties in his absence, at their home, Shiloh House. Julius Johansen, a deacon of the church, announced that the parish was 100 per cent for its pastor and that he would preach tomorrow. The Rev. Dake was convicted of taking a Kenosha, Wis., girl, 18 years old, to a hotel in East St. Louis.

Prize Winner Pens Another Unusual Novel

John T. McIntyre Writes on Labor Troubles.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

A NOVEL by the American prize winner in the All-Nations novel contest and a tale from England which has been an amazing best seller there are offered readers this week.

American Idiom Ably Recorded by Author.

"Ferment," by John T. McIntyre. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.] Published Monday.

With the same brilliant skill in recording American idiom that was the prize winning quality of "Steps Going Down," John T. McIntyre has written "Ferment." Like its predecessor, it deals with the kind of people who speak the American patois rather than the kind who speak the type of English that is written, and Mr. McIntyre makes the reader feel complete assurance in his recording of that patois.

John T. McIntyre.

The people in this book are mainly fomenters of labor trouble—spies for employers, fake labor leaders, and one rather mythical professor who has a new plan for a scheme of life, in which money and labor will ally against industry. The author has done a poor job of this Dr. Jenns, and the reader is never able to understand the immediate conversion of the hardboiled crooks who are so sold on him that they will lie, steal, commit practically any crime to get money for him.

The hero is a thoroughgoing, consistent louse, aided and abetted by good looks, a gift of gab, and an adoring mother. He is almost too complete . . . he raises the reader's hackles. The heroine is sweet and doomed by her love for him . . . but all is not lost as the book ends.

"Ferment" is unusual not only for the idiomatic language which its characters speak, but for its material —labor racketeering and the mulcting of the honest worker.

This Story of English Has a Special Charm.

"Cathedral Close," by Susan Goodyear. [Scribners, $2.50.] Published yesterday.

Still sizzling from the English excitement over it comes "Cathedral Close," a novel about the lives of the canons, bishops, and deans of a cathedral town in England. It is a tale with quiet charm, likened by its admirers, inevitably, to Trollope and Walpole, but with a special charm which is inherent in the pen of "Susan Goodyear."

The heroine of the book, the wife of the dean, recently arrived in "Silbury," is a rare character in any book —a woman with uncommon common sense, a long view of life, a sharp wit, and a true sense of humor [which is something quite different].

Into the quiet life of the "Cathedral Close" is injected the virus of scandal, a 25 year old one, almost forgotten by the sedate old canon who had his youthful fling. What little plot there is to the book concerns that misstep. But its true charm is in its quiet recording of the daily life of the "good" people who live there, highlighted here and there with the author's ironic wit.

We American readers can read it and enjoy it for itself, but the English got almost as excited over it as they did over the former King Edward and his matrimony.

It was known that "Susan Goodyear" was a pseudonym of some one who knew a great deal about upper church circles and everybody had a candidate for the town of Silbury. The sleuths found she was Mrs. Matthews, wife of the Very Rev. W. R. Matthews, K. C. V. O., D. D., D. Lit., who succeeded Dr. Inge as dean of St. Paul's in 1934 and who had previously been dean of Exeter. And the conclusion was that "Cathedral Close" was about Exeter.

Then suddenly the book became a tremendous best seller and immediately every cathedral city in England claimed Silbury for itself. Which means that it is generic . . . and very good!

Book Views in Brief

Four Books on Music, Essays in Explanation.

"Toward a New Music," by Carlos Chavez. [Norton, $2.]

"Listeners' Music," by Leland Hall. [Harcourt, $2.]

"A Book of the Symphony," by E. H. Haggin. [Oxford, $5.]

These four books are essays in explanation, two looking forward to the music of the future, two interpreting the classics.

Chavez, who is Mexico's most noted composer and conductor, boldly breaks away from professional musicians' traditional scorn of music machines and predicts that they will make possible the music of the future. He explains the mechanism of the player piano, phonograph, sound film, radio, and similar electrical devices, then points out how they emancipate the composer from conventional notation and the limitations of present day instruments. Finally he candidly surveys the esthetic and commercial obstacles in the way of the socialized music of the future.

Roger Sessions, Carl Engel, Franz Werfel, Otto Klemperer, and Leopold Stokowski are among contributors to the sumptuous volume of essays in appreciation of the place of Schoenberg in modern music.

Prof. Hall of Smith college writes for the music lover to whom notes and the jargon of the performer are equally unintelligible. He explains music as sound in motion toward some goal satisfying to the ear, and exhibits an unusual talent for crystalizing the essence of a classic in words. The reader will emerge from these pages, which call upon the phonograph for supplementary illustration, with a satisfactory knowledge of the elements of polyphony, harmony, musical forms, and musical history.

"A Book of the Symphony" is a much more elaborate study. It analyzes, with ample musical quotations, the symphonies of Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Brahms, Tschaikowsky, and Franck that have been recorded for the phonograph. An elaborate method is provided for synchronizing the reading of the book with the playing of the records.

London Zoo Is Setting in an Absorbing Tale.

"People in Cages," by Helen Ashton. [Macmillan, $2.50.]

Zoo enthusiasts will want to read this novel, not particularly to follow its involved plot, but to absorb the knowing, sympathetic studies of wild animals Miss Ashton presents. She must have spent weeks—if not months—collecting material in the London zoo, where most of the story's action takes place, and, in addition, apparently has sought out many animal lovers, collectors, and British colonials, and listened for hours to some fascinating jungle reminiscences.

The animals haven't much to do with the story of "People in Cages" except to provide a logical background for all classes of society to forgather. The major character, a pompous scoundrel named Capt. John Canning, visits the zoo partly to minimize detection and also in hopes that he will see the woman with whom he is half infatuated. He finds her and many others he knows but didn't want to meet.

Far more interesting are the descriptions of the animals and the tales of those who have lived most of their lives on colonial duty in the far places.

Elizabethan Dramatist is Hero in This Novel.

"Mermaid Tavern," by George W. Cronyn. [Knight, $2.50.]

With surprising ease this smartly handled novel makes us friends with its hero, Kit Marlowe, founder of the Elizabethan drama, with young Will Shakespeare, and the other robust scribblers who frequented the Mermaid tavern.

George W. Cronyn had little to guide him except Marlowe's plays and the general history of the times. But he has created a credible Marlowe who grasped tankard, sword, or wench as readily as a pen. Nimble witted Kit, drifting from Cambridge into adventure, is a tribute to Cronyn, the author of "The Fool of Venus."

Mile square London, as full of excitement, nearly, as of odors, is the main setting for Kit's tosspot ramblings. He is made one of Elizabeth's pawns in the famous Babington conspiracy which paved the way for the execution of Mary of Scotland. This provides an entry for Raleigh and the other bold greats of her reign.

Animal Adventures in the Rocky Mountains.

"Wilderness Wanderers," by Wendell and Lucie Chapman. [Scribners, $3.75.]

In this attractive volume, beautifully illustrated and with unusually readable type, the two authors tell of their absorbing adventures among wild animals in Rocky mountain solitudes. Mr. Chapman, tiring of investment banking in California, quit the business world and, with his wife, a car, cameras, a tent and supplies, spent several years in the mountains of Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, and British Columbia. This book covers mostly their experiences in the wilder parts of the Yellowstone National park and is a delightful account of unusual contacts with animal life.

Throughout the pages the human-like traits of the four footed inhabitants are pictured, but never more vividly than in telling the results of putting the elk on relief. Hay cut during the summer is fed during the winter.

"Once the government dole begins the elk cease foraging for themselves for the rest of the winter," the authors say. "If feeding is stopped many loiter and starve rather than forage. Not until spring grass comes do they regain their independence."

Two Books Delving Into Mental Science.

"The Mind of Man," by Walter Bromberg. [Harpers, $3.50.]

"The Spectacle of Man," by John Coignard. [Jefferson House, $2.]

One of the youngest of the sciences is that of psychology and psychotherapy, man's fight against mental disease. "The Mind of Man," by a senior psychiatrist at Bellevue hospital in New York City and assistant professor of psychiatry at New York university, goes back 7,000 years and traces the history of the deranged mind, its interpretation during various periods, its connection with the supernatural and the religious, and its treatment during the present day.

Dr. Bromberg explains the methods of the great psychiatrists and concludes with a chapter on the future of psychotherapy. He writes in a simple, vivid, human way that cannot fail to hold one's interest.

"The Spectacle of Man" tells the story of a young man who went to a psychiatrist to be cured of his terrific jealousy and of his stammering.

The author is an expert writing under a nom de plume. He combines his scientific knowledge with considerable ability as a story teller. This is not a pleasant tale, but it is fascinating to any one interested in modern methods of treating the mentally ill.

Adventures in Fishing Make Arresting Tale

World Wide Experiences Related with Zest.

"Fishing Round the World," by Leander J. McCormick. [Scribners, $5.] Published yesterday.

LEANDER J. McCORMICK'S record of his fishing around the world is the same kind of interesting record as a good volume of reminiscences of contacts with the great. He has met countless queer, amusing, regal, bellicose fish, and he tells about them just as a good raconteur tells about meeting all the strange fish that inhabit the human sea.

To a layman his encounters have zest and are highly illuminating—for to most of us the aquarium is our only social contact with the great of the fish world. To the fisherman each page must be read with the greenest of envious eyes—for Mr. McCormick has fished in many of the seven seas and the rivers that go down to them, as well as in famous fresh water lakes and streams of four continents.

He claims that fishermen are born and that once a child has happily fished with a bent pin and a worm he is doomed to be a fisherman his life long. His first fish was caught off a pier in Lake Michigan in his native Chicago.

"I was five years old," he writes, "and after that I knew what I wanted to do."

He tells of catching in South America salmon, a pretty silver fish, which has nothing to do with what we call salmon—salmo salar. He tells of the pirana in the same waters. The pirana is more feared by the natives than sharks by sharks' neighbors, because it nips off bits of flesh the size of a nutmeg every two seconds and it always hunts in shoals.

There is nothing pretty about the manners of the shark, either, as Mr. McCormick describes them. One lady shark broke eight teeth trying to eat his boat before she was stopped.

At the end of the book he gives some practical advice to fishermen and names his candidates for the thirteen best game fish in the world. He says they are: Black bass, bonefish, dorado, grayling, Mako shark, sailfish, salmon, swordfish, tarpon, tigerfish, trout, tuna, and wahoo.

HITLER DECREES 'JOYFUL FACES' IN NEW NAZI ART

Fuehrer's Great Festival Opens in Munich.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUNICH, Germany, July 16.—"Reichsfuehrer Hitler stands before German art not only as its protector but also as its greatest master."

This proclamation was made today by Adolf Wagner, outstanding Nazi leader in south Germany, when he opened the Munich art festival.

The festival was organized under the supervision of Hitler, who sees in the new buildings and the works of art and crafts in the new Germany the fulfilment of the artistic dreams of his youth.

Thousands Visit Festival.

Hundreds of trains, airplanes, automobiles, and buses are converging on Munich, bringing thousands of persons to the "capital of German art and the Nazi movement" to learn what the fuehrer wants German art to be.

Hitler personally directed the hanging of pictures in the art show in the newly built Palace of Art. Artists were summoned and the fuhrer explained to them what he felt the new art should be.

"I want to see joyful countenances full of faith in life, and gay colors," he said.

So many works have failed to comply with the fuehrer's conception of art that he ordered a shakeup and rejuvenation of the old traditions of the academies, which at an earlier date had been purged of all Jewish or part Jewish elements.

Sees "Indestructible Unity."

"Through the teachings of Hitler, who gave indestructible unity to the German people, we have the certainty that our Germany is a nation immortal," Wagner said in his opening speech.

The art show, he added, will help Germans to learn the "certainty that today and all the time in which we live and will live, there is no human culture and will be no human culture without German culture."

Rumors that Premier Mussolini of Italy would fly to Munich for a week-end visit to help Hitler open his art festival persisted despite denials. Diplomats asserted that Il Duce was eager to see the fuehrer personally to discuss Italian-German policy in Spain. Mussolini is said to be willing to help the Nazi cause in Austria if Germany helps the Italian cause in Spain.

ORDER SENT OUT FOR NEW SILENT BRIDGE SIGNALS

Commissioner of Public Works Oscar E. Hewitt yesterday sent copies of an order drafted by the city council to all river bridgetenders and 60 boat owning corporations asking their cooperation in the new signal system designed to eliminate the river boat whistle nuisance.

Mr. Hewitt will put the system into operation some time next week. It directs bridgetenders to use telephones at each station to notify bridges in the path of an approaching boat, instead of waiting for the whistles. Eventually a permanent telephone system is to be installed with a dispatcher at the outer link bridge.

ALBION FACES ITS 2D CENTURY AS ENVOY OF CHRIST

Views Religion as Vital in Student's Life.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albion, Mich., July 16.—[Special.]—Albion college, founded by two Methodist ministers and a doctor in 1833, faces its second century with the feeling that it has driven a golden nail into the edifice of Christian living built across this new continent by John Wesley.

"You are ambassadors of Christ to the students," President John Lawrence Seaton tells his teachers.

"We have no desire that you should all be Methodists — otherwise we should have appointed none but Methodists. As teachers in a college under auspices of the church, and seeking to make religion vital in the life of youth, it is important for you to connect yourself with the church of your choice and do all you can to help in its work. The spiritual and religious forces of a college depend almost wholly upon the personal qualities of the members of the faculty.

Weigh Proper Values.

"He [the teacher] should regard human values as the great and lasting values. He should believe in the final triumph of right and 'the progress of mankind onward and upward forever.' In short, he should be a religious man with all that religion implies in this day of our Lord.

". . . I do not believe a teacher is free to do or to teach things after he has obtained a position on a faculty which, if done or taught before, would have prevented his appointment. . . . It hardly is necessary to say that proclaiming his views to students or the general public usually is inadvisable and often is in plain violation of loyalty to the college."

Albion, which began with a few students, including Indians, gathered from the families of education-hungry pioneers, has grown in the atmosphere of struggle, self-reliance and courage. It has sent out men and women who have taken positions of leadership in science, teaching, preaching, business and social service.

Service Through Alumni.

"Any college lives and functions and serves the community, small and large, chiefly through its alumni," writes Homer Folks, Albion, '89, secretary of the State Charities Aid association of New York City.

"Through them, in some degree, permeates the state, and, in less degree, the nation, with a type of citizenship which thinks before it decides, is not easily stampeded, resists domination from any source, and faces realities with poise and patience.

"But Albion adds another quality to its output of citizenship. Its alumni not only insist on knowing the facts, they also interpret these facts in the light of a social conscience. They not only seek to serve individuals, but, with a certain strain of idealism, aim to serve and improve the standards and processes of community life. They never are wholly discouraged, or cynical, in facing problems of the common good."

Illustrious Alumni.

Among the alumni to whom Albion points with pride are Dr. Forest R. Moulton of Chicago, '94, astronomer and mathematician; Dr. E. R. Downing, '89, editor of "Nature Study and Science" series; Dr. J. Harlan Bretz, '05, an authority on cenozoic geology.

Dr. William T. Bovie, '05, research fellow of the cancer commission and professor of biophysics at Harvard and Northwestern; Dr. Carl Weller, '08, research pathologist; Dr. Floyd Bartell, '05, an authority in colloid chemistry, who served as a research chemist in the war; and Dr. B. S. Hopkins, '96, discoverer of the new element Illinium, are among other scientists named.

Among the business men are Stanley Kresge of Detroit, '23, son of S. S. Kresge, who gave the college a gymnasium; Ralph Connable, '88, head of the Woolworth interests in Canada.

Five Head Colleges.

Five colleges have called Albion men as presidents. Other alumni are Arthur Millspaugh, former financial adviser to the government of Persia; Milton Potter, superintendent of the Milwaukee schools; Floyd Starr, head of the Starr Commonwealth for Boys; D. W. Springer, former secretary of the National Education association; Gerard T. Smith, head of the Starrett school for girls in Chicago; Senator Prentiss M. Brown of Michigan, Dick Verner, president of Chicago Rotary; the late Charles Beecher Warren, Dr. Harold Moulton of Brookings institute.

Anna Howard Shaw, '78, was the prophet of the movement for extending suffrage and civil rights to women. Samuel Dickie, '72, late president of the college, was the chief organizer of the dry movement.

Creative scholarship is emphasized in the college and the members of the faculty report each year on original research. The record of the last year in this is impressive.

Freshmen adjustment is another strong feature, the application of the best intelligence tests and individual study to the incoming students each year so they may be oriented along the lines of individual ability. This work is under Dean W. W. Whitehouse.

Albion's roots are deep and tenacious. The first principal, the Rev. C. F. Stockwell, in 1844 married Louisa Peabody, daughter of Tenney Peabody, Albion's first settler. Their daughter, Mrs. Madelon Turner of Kalamazoo, upon her death a few years ago, left $300,000 for a building to be erected in her parents' memory. Today the sound of the hammers is heard in this new building, a library, which is to house the vast treasures of thought which connect this living present with that which gave it birth and which charts its future by the only compass that we know.

They were married June 6, 1916. In 1932, according to Mrs. Lorndale's attorney, Robert Cantwell Jr., she accompanied her husband to Denmark. Ten months later he sent her home with their son, Robert, 11, promising to join them, but never did. Under an agreement Mrs. Lorndale will have custody of the son, but every other year she will take him to Denmark to visit his father.

U. S. AND BRITISH PLANES FINISH ATLANTIC HOPS

New York, July 16.—[Special.]—Two huge flying boats, one American and the other British, completed today round trips between Newfoundland and the Irish Free State in their trail blazing flights in the interests of trans-Atlantic commercial air service.

At Foynes, meanwhile, the Caledonia, Imperial Airways' plane, settled on the Shannon at 4 a. m. [10 p. m. Thursday, Chicago time]. It had flown from Botwood in 12 hours and 7 minutes, as compared with the 12 hours and 20 minutes in which the Clipper made the same flight a week ago.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Flora of Chicagoland (The Sumac)

HUGGING the borders of fields, standing along winding farm roads, and often marching boldly away from the sturdy oaks, the smooth sumac [Rhus glabra] found on the Experimental farm and throughout Chicagoland is a shrub that always seems to be filling a cheerful rôle on the landscape. It gladly moves into any open spot around the woods or along the fence, brightens every corner it occupies, and finishes the season with a blaze of color from its scarlet leaves.

The smooth sumac, a decorative shrub. At left, a branch showing the leaves. Right, crimson berries now developing.

This week the smooth sumac is a symphony of green and crimson. Its sharply serrated leaves give the shrub all the green it needs to blend smoothly into the landscape. But an added attraction now are the closely packed bunches of red fruit which are developing on each shrub. It's only July, but already the sumac symbolizes the harvest season and hints at the rich color it will contribute when crimson berries ripen and turn to a deep wine red.

Variety of Shades.

We were noticing this week that some of the smaller shrubs on the farm have leaves which are rather light green. Leaves on older ones are a darker green above. On the under side they are a different shade, almost a sea green. We found some shrubs with fruit entirely green. But most of the sumac now is displaying clusters of bright red berries.

Each tiny berry is covered with short, sticky hairs. These hairs tell you that this sumac is a friendly shrub, because on the poisonous sumac the berries are devoid of hairs. All too frequently we find the handsome sumac condemned as poisonous. There is a poisonous species, but it inhabits swamps. The variety that is quite abundant on the farm belongs to the uplands and is just what nature intended it to be—a decorative, good looking shrub that is colorful from spring to late autumn.

On the Experimental farm the smooth sumac is considered one of the pioneering shrubs. It [along with the ash and the haws] is never afraid to move out to claim new land. This natural tendency is not curbed with the result that many square yards of open ground near oak timber now is more attractive because the sumac has been allowed to take it over and flourish as a friendly contributor of color.

Shrub of Many Uses.

Few shrubs on the farm that grow from 6 to 12 feet have as many medical and practical uses as the smooth sumac. The leaves, and to a less extent the bark, are a source of tannin for tanning lether. The berries were a favorite of the old time herb doctors, who used them for many diseases and ailments. Pioneers also used the berries to get a heavy oil which eventually could be molded into candles. Using the same berries for a wine they could obtain a tonic drink.

Thus the smooth sumac, a colorful shrub, is able to pay its way through every season by providing wine, oil, and tannin from berries and leaves, and a tonic, astringent, and antiseptic from the bark.

THE PEOPLE'S REPRESENTATIVES.

President Roosevelt's letter to Senator Barkley starts with an accusation of bad breeding. Mr. Roosevelt says the Democratic opponents of the court packing bill have not adjourned hostilities in respect for the memory of Senator Robinson. That fact, he says, justifies him in renewing the controversy himself. He does so by demanding that congress pass a law giving him control over the judiciary. He is not insistent upon the original bill; he will accept the Logan-Hatch amendment or any other measure which congress can devise which will accomplish the same end.

There was in all this a misunderstanding—and it is difficult to believe it was not deliberate—of the remarks of some of the Democratic opponents of the scheme. They were greatly shocked by the death of their colleague, whom they respected and admired. They had ample reason to believe that Mr. Robinson was not himself in sympathy with the plan to pack the court, though it became his duty as leader to defend the measure. This duty he accepted without reserve, but the exertion it imposed upon him was more than he could bear.

Senators who felt that Senator Robinson was the victim of a conflict of loyalties which should never have been forced upon him could not fail to express their hope that no more sacrifices of the same sort would be demanded. Their remarks were prompted precisely by their affection for their colleague, as every one except Mr. Roosevelt seems to have understood.

They knew how difficult had been the choice between party loyalty and its rewards on the one hand, and loyalty to constitutional principles on the other. They knew that there is not a handful of senators who, in their hearts, favor the court packing plan. They knew of the political and social pressure which the White House has brought to bear upon Democrats in congress to support the scheme. They knew that the country does not favor the plan and that it is indefensible on the platform. They remembered what had happened to the men in congress who, against their better judgment, had supported the entrance of the United States into the league of nations as demanded by the President of the moment.

Knowing all these things, the President's Democratic opponents hoped that for the sake of their party and their country the whole subject would be dropped. Otherwise Senator Robinson would have died in vain.

The Democratic senators and representatives who have dared to oppose the President have earned the gratitude of the nation. Nothing the President can say in derogation of such men as Wheeler and Burke, O'Mahoney and McCarran, Scott Lucas and Sumners can alter the fact that these men have sacrificed their selfish interest for the preservation of free institutions in a free land. They have done so in the certainty that their political careers may be blighted by an administration already committed to acts of vengeance. The leaders of the debate against the court bill have fought with dignity, courage, and extraordinary intellectual power. To find speeches in congress equal to theirs in vigor of thought and expression it is necessary to turn to the records of the great debates preceding the civil war.

And this is precisely what might have been expected. The proposal which the President has forced upon a reluctant party constitutes a threat to the future of our country without parallel since the threat of disunion. The resistance to his plan by courageous men within his own party has gone far to rehabilitate congress in the esteem of the people.

MORE SILVER FROM CHINA.

In a story just out of Washington it was stated that Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau had signed documents giving effect to the new agreement under which the United States will barter gold and silver. The details of the agreement were not given, but that it is another transaction by which the United States is to give up gold in exchange for silver is indicated by Mr. Morgenthau's statement, "we won't say how much gold and silver is involved. It will show up in time in the reports on the silver certificates."

Silver is selling for less than 45 cents an ounce in world markets. In a previous transaction with China we purchased 50 million ounces of the metal, paying 65 cents an ounce for it. Thus we have a loss of over 10 million dollars on the previous deal. The treasury will not tell at what price silver is now being acquired, and how much metal is involved. The last deal was such a bad one for this government that Mr. Morgenthau won't let himself in for the same embarrassment again.

The latest deal is more objectionable than the last one with China because that country is now on the verge of war with Japan. The secretary of state on Monday held conferences with the ambassadors of the two countries over the impending storm. But with the reports from the orient growing daily more ominous, Mr. Morgenthau has made a deal with China which will improve that country's ability to buy war materials, elsewhere if not here.

The silver deal was bad, apart from international complications. It was bad because the silver buying program of the government is without the slightest justification. No one authority has ever justified it or explained it.

GOOD NATURED VISITORS IN A GOOD NATURED TOWN.

The summer vacation shift of population is not generally to be noticed in Chicago by the disappearance of people going to the woods, the small lakes, or the mountains, except when one friend misses another. But the flow into the city from the countryside is to be seen wherever there is an attraction. To the people of the smaller towns and the farming region the big city is in itself the big attraction. During the two years of the World's Fair Chicago came to know more about its neighbors than it had at any time since the Columbian Exposition, and it can be truthfully said that Chicago liked these vacationists and enjoyed seeing them.

American life, at least in the regions about Chicago, does not conform to the ideas entertained of it by reformists in Washington. It is not precisely as the planning gentlemen would like it to be. The people are not all of equal pocketbooks and don't expect to be, but they haven't the sour conviction they have been denied some privilege granted them as a birthright, and they don't find that they are different from other people or that they must have a feeling of respect for some and of anger and resentment against others. The old line Americans were not brought up that way nor were their adopted sons and daughters.

The people from the country should be at home in Chicago. For years they were the principal elements of its growth. Old time reporters will recall that one essential item in an obituary notice was the date of the arrival of the late citizen in Chicago. It was not to be assumed that any person had been born in Chicago except Fernando Jones. Our population was recruited from the surrounding country—ambitious young men and women coming in to take their part in the life of the city and realize their ambitions to the full of their ability.

When the people from the country come to Chicago they come to see what they still may regard as the product of their own activities. If in Illinois there is a certain manifestation of political antagonism between country and city, that does not have a social content. We may be certain that the people of Illinois, along with the people of all the neighboring states, have an affection for a city which has retained most of the traits of human good nature.

Our country visitors feel at home here in the attire used on their own streets and walks, and it the Chicagoan thinks anything of it the only reflection is that probably they're more sensible than he is. For years the city has been making itself more interesting not only for its inhabitants but for its visitors. Its lake front has become a thing of beauty which, because of its great and consistently developed shoreline, has no equal—possibly this is a boast—in any other city in the world. Others have their beauty spots, but Chicago has a prodigality of nature men have done much to utilize and little to destroy.

The variety of attractions in parks, music, exhibits, shops, museums, and zoos may be better known to some of our out-of-town friends than they are to the native Chicagoan. One thing, however, the out-of-town summer visitor does not come to Chicago to see. That is the latest movie release. He has seen everything Chicago exhibits a month or so before it ever arrives here.

If you want to be sure that the country visitor is having a good time see her or him in a tall building elevator when it starts its descent.

OUR PLATFORM

THE TRIBUNE makes three alterations in its platform for Illinois and Chicago in this morning's issue. "Overcome Crime" has been stricken out and "End the Parole Business" has been moved to first place. This change is made because it has become clear that the way to overcome crime is to end the parole business. The parole business is the connecting link of crime and politics. When we destroy that we end the rule of crime. This plank has been moved to the top of the flag because it is even more important than "Build Deathproof Highways," which is better understood.

Editorial of the Day

WAGES-HOURS LAW ANALYZED.

[Danville (Ill.) Commercial-News.]

After careful analysis, Dr. Charles Frederick Roos, former director of research of the old NRA and erstwhile permanent secretary of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, has branded President Roosevelt's wages and hours bill as a brake on industry, a plague on agriculture, a calamity for labor and a blight on recovery.

This research authority puts the administration's social reform measure dispassionately through the crucible of economic analysis in the July issue of Rural Progress magazine. Although the magazine's publishers selected the former NRA expert, because they felt their readers in some two million farm homes should know how the proposed law would affect them, Dr. Roos' analysis indicates the measure will affect city and farm folk alike—all adversely.

Conceding that the announced purpose of the proposed federal dictation of wages and hours, as a social reform law, is admirable, Dr. Roos gives as his considered judgment that, among other disastrous effects, it would increase rather than decrease unemployment; decrease the production of distributable wealth and lower the average standard of living; decrease consumption of raw materials, including farm products, and lower the prices received for them so farmers would be caught in the vise of rising prices for things they buy and curtailed markets with lower prices for things they sell.

"Contrary to widely spread statements, there is practically no remaining unemployment to be combated," the former NRA executive claims, adding that "at least two million workers, or 4 per cent of the employables, must needs be in the process of changing jobs, of moving from one city to another, of taking vacations without pay, and of loafing. Aside from those who are drawing pay from the government [on relief or WPA] involuntary unemployment cannot exceed 1 million and may be considerably less."

In short, Dr. Roos believes the prime need of this nation right now is for greater capacity and more productive workers. The first need is to get a half million workers off the relief rolls or, through apprenticeship training, into industry. If this can be done, industry can quickly hire the remaining two and a half milion workers who are on relief and involuntarily unemployed.

Guard well your jealous scythe above my grain . .

Sir: No one has come forth with my classic Honest John story, so here 'tis. Uncle John was in the Klondike during the gold rush. All the husky dogs outside began fighting at once and the players (except one) leaped to their feet to quell the commotion. When the dogs had been quieted the quieters returned and found Uncle John. The stove still in place in the corner. Ever after that he was called Honest John. Dub of Sakraf.

ITCHING—A UNIVERSAL COMPLAINT.

ITCHING is a symptom with many causes. It is like a kite with several tails. The literature of every age bears evidence of this irksome affliction. Shakespeare says in "Troilus and Cressida": "I would thou didst itch from head to foot and I have the scratching of thee." Hooke in his "Micrographia" calls it "an itching, tickling pain" and Chaucer says in "The Miller's Tale," "My mouth hath itched all this longe day."

Socrates dilated at length upon the pleasures of scratching. To most of us mortals, however, it constitutes little more than a persistent nuisance.

There is scarcely an area on the body that may not be affected at one time or another. To the dermatologist [specialist in skin diseases] it bears a comparable significance with pain, which conveys to the physician who is searching for the origin of disease much information as to the seat of the trouble.

In some instances the source is easily detected and removed; in others, for example, itching about the rectum, great difficulty may be encountered in abating the distress. Occasionally it is persistent; at other times fleeting. Observe how often your friends scratch the face, the neck, the ears, the nose, the scalp, or some other part in an effort to allay the annoyance.

Temperature and the character of the clothing [its fit, texture, and composition] are factors and of course much depends upon the irritability of the cuticle. From the standpoint of the structure of the epidermis there are no special nerves that convey the sensation. In other words, the same filaments which transmit the consciousness of pain carry the information to the brain.

What are some of the possible causes? To begin with, there are lice and the itch mite [scabies]. Bites caused by mosquitoes, fleas, jiggers, and bedbugs are responsible, as well as plant parasites such as ringworm and infections with bacteria. We must think also of irritating chemicals; those produced by plants—poison oak, ivy, or sumac—and various dyes, oils, and solvents used in industry. Sometimes drugs taken internally will bring on the disorder. A few are susceptible to some well known headache nostrum with the result that an eruption may break out which will itch intensely. There is also the allergic type brought on by proteins to which the patient is sensitive.

Constitutional disease should be thought of, and one of the most troublesome accompaniments of jaundice is the desire to scratch constantly. In older people bath or winter itch, or that which attends drying of the skin, is often exceedingly disturbing. Finally, there is a group in which, because of some nervous or emotional state, the patient will declare that he cannot endure the suffering.

Obviously, with so many factors there can be no single panacea. Relief can be secured only through a careful search for the basis, followed by the application of the proper remedy. We must grant at the outset that the manifestation is a protest on the part of the skin against something to which it objects. There is no actual pain, but it may be even more distressing because of the intolerable sense of futility. It is important to find the culprit quickly, because the skin may be seriously infected through scratching with dirty fingernails and the original source may be hidden in an inflammatory mass of tissue.

Let us identify the starting point before we attempt treatment. Every case that is not obvious demands a careful and critical examination to rule out systemic disease or to identify the particular irritant which is responsible.

Tomorrow's article will discuss the management of itch.

DIPHTHERIA INOCULATION.

D. C. writes: My 5 year old girl was inoculated against diphtheria when she was 9 months old and given the Schick test successfully several months later. I am going to enter her in school in the fall and would like to know if she should be inoculated again, as I was told the immunity wears off in a few years.

There was an epidemic of diphtheria in this neighborhood last winter, taking the lives of several children who, I understand, were not protected. My little girl played with two of the children who a few days later were stricken and died. Does this indicate that my child is immune?

REPLY.

Yes, in all probability. Immunity lasts for at least seven years. In many cases it persists for a lifetime. Repeating the Schick test is a safeguard.

PRECAUTIONS.

Mrs. S. writes:

A member of my family has a slight case of tuberculosis. I wash all the dishes together, first pouring boiling water on those used by the patient. Is tuberculosis catching if all the dishes are washed together?

2. Is mineral oil harmful if taken every night and is it fattening?

REPLY.

1. It is safer to handle the patient's dishes separately. They should be thoroughly washed with soap and water and then sterilized in boiling water.

2. Mineral oil is not harmful if taken every night. It is not fattening.

INFECTED THROAT.

H. H. writes: I have had a sore throat for a week. I gargle, but the blisters and white patches do not go away. There is quite a bit of pus coming from my throat, which is nauseating.

1. Is this dangerous?
2. Can this be the cause of underweight.
3. Should I have my tonsils out?

REPLY.

1. Yes—much too dangerous a condition to try to remedy with home treatments.
2. Yes.
3. By all means, as soon as ALL signs of acute infection have subsided.

IODINE FOR EYES.

Mrs. A. L. writes: I have been told that a few drops of iodine taken internally each day will improve poor eyesight? Is this true?

REPLY.

There is no value in this prescription as far as eyesight is concerned.

NO ACTION WARANTED.

Chicago, July 7.—[Friend of the People.]—The sanitary district recently finished the Ashland avenue bridge over the north branch of the Chicago river and the improvement has been completed. There are two old boat hulks along the dock between this bridge and the one over the Chicago North Western bridge. These hulks are certainly a disgrace and greatly depreciate the beauty of the new improvement. Surely the sanitary district can compel some one to remove these, and only your people can get action on this, as I have found out on several previous occasions. A. S.

Please be advised that we have again given this matter our consideration. We find that the owner of these craft [present address unknown to us] received permission from the owner of the adjoining property to tie up the boats at said location. Inasmuch as this is within the right of a dockowner and that navigation in that section of the river is not obstructed, no action can be taken by this department.

O. E. HEWITT.
Commissioner of Public Works.

LOUD SPEAKER.

Chicago, July 7.—[Friend of the People.]—A café two doors from our home has installed a loud speaker which is very annoying and is played all evening and into the early hours of the morning. Have phoned them repeatedly and asked them to turn it off. Please see that this nuisance is remedied. L. S.

The officer assigned to investigate reports that the owner of the café in question stated the speaker was supposed to be operated for ball games and that the night man neglected to disconnect it. He promised to see that this speaker caused no further annoyance.

JAMES P. ALLMAN,
Commissioner of Police.

NO EXAMINATIONS SCHEDULED.

Chicago, July 7.—[Friend of the People.]—Please let me know when the next examination for policemen and firemen will be held; also where I can get the application blanks. J. P. O.

Inasmuch as the examination for patrolmen is practically completed, and as we have a very large eligible list for firemen, these examinations will not again be called for a few years. However, we placed the writer's name on our mailing list for notification of these examinations when again called. At the time the examinations are officially called he may secure application blanks.

THEY DROWN IN SHALLOW WATER.

Chicago, July 13.—To Mr. E. Bushman who is peeved at the life guards and wishes to know for whose benefit the beaches are open, I wish to say this:

Strange as it may seem, relatively few bathers drown in deep water. Small children walk out and suddenly fall from sight, making no outcry or gesture of any kind. These are the things that must be seen if the lives of these unfortunate children are to be saved. The Chicago park district life guard is always watching for these things. Many people faint in knee high water and if not seen by the guard would drown.

If a guard is calling back or rowing after a person who has passed the boat, his attention is diverted. I am sure that if any of these unfortunate incidents happened to some one dearly loved by Mr. Bushman he certainly would not want the guard chasing after a would-be swimmer who believes his enjoyment is worth the safety of thousands of others. The Chicago park district life guard is not trained to punch people, but to safeguard the bathers courteously and efficiently. Please coöperate with the life guards to safeguard our bathers.

HAROLD BECKER,
Life Guard No. 6, Jackson Beach.

FOR NICKEL BEER.

Chicago, July 14.—Those who are running the various tavern keepers' associations are certainly wrecking the tavern business by trying to force out 5 cent beers. Five cent beers drew people to the taverns. Ten cent beers keep them out. Of course there are some localities where the people don't mind paying 10 cents for a beer, but in most cases the public balk. Beer drinkers buy it at the liquor stores by the case or half gallons at more reasonable prices and take it home.

The tavern business was pretty good until these System Sams got busy trying to force the public to pay 10 cents for eight ounces of beer. As a result there are more taverns for sale in Chicago than any other businesses. I am an old time saloonkeeper, who paid $1,000 a year city license. I served a 14 ounce stein of beer for 5 cents, besides free lunch, and made money enough to retire when prohibition came. My place was always well patronized, for my patrons knew I was not trying to gyp them. Even with the present too high price for beer, a 7 ounce glass could be served at a good profit. C. P. MURPHY,

POLICEMEN'S SHIRTS.

Chicago, July 14.—Why wouldn't it be a wonderful idea to grab the crowd responsible for making our policemen wear those black torture shirts and dress them up in the same uniforms and compel them to stand on our downtown or any other corners or street crossings in some of this torrid weather? Our police force should be dressed to keep cool so that they will be able to keep their heads.

H. A. R.

UNFAIR TO THE MASTERS.

Lakeside, Mich., July 13.—Why, O why do the jaz orchestras have to jaz up our classical music? Don't they have music better suited to their talents? We heard such masterpieces as Schubert's Serenade and Rachmaninoff's Prelude jazzed and we do not think it fair to the old masters. RUTH AND LIBBY.

THE VENEREAL TESTS.

Chicago, July 12.—In recent issues of THE TRIBUNE I have been following with interest the reactions of young couples in regard to the new law requiring medical certificates of freedom from venereal diseases.

Being a registered nurse and having seen so many cases in the hospital of pain-wracked bodies brought about by the lack of proper treatment of venereal diseases, I favor this new law strongly.

Syphilis and gonorrhea are often innocently contracted and any one using ordinary common sense will, with a little thought, realize that if their marriage is to be a happy one, freedom from these diseases is absolutely necessary. By ignoring their presence the patient is only inviting far more expense and heartache than by treating it immediately.

So I feel sorry for those individuals who hurried to another state to avoid a law that is by far the best ever put into force in Illinois. I do think that if the public knew the little expense entailed and that in submitting to this test they need not spend more than five minutes while a sterilized needle is injected into the vein and a few drops of blood extracted, they would take an entirely different attitude and realize it is for their own protection the law was made.

CATHERINE WINGFIELD, R. N.

NEWS OF CRIME.

Chicago, July 14.—Have crime and sensationalism diminished with all the publicity? I do not think so. Why not try a different policy? If the newspapers must print the mess, why not write as few words as possible and hide it in small print on some of the last pages? Let the police and the proper authorities take care of the necessary details and adjustments.

Newspapers have a responsible place in molding public opinion. Why not feed the public's mentality with that which is good and uplifting?

A. T. HOFF.

YOU'LL HAVE TO WAIT YOUR TURN.

Evanston, Ill., July 14.—During the presidential campaign I was one of many who criticized THE TRIBUNE for its bitter denunciations of the President's avowed policies and your gloomy forebodings of his future actions.

Now I am ready to go to Canossa. I offer to kotow in the approved manner, three times, before the editorial desk and to remain kneeling while the staf files past and kicks me as hard and as often as they please. There are none so blind as they who will not see.

Kindler Plays His Version of Purcell Classic

BY CECIL M. SMITH.

Hans Kindler, conductor of the National Symphony orchestra in Washington, D. C., opened the second of his four concerts in the Ravinia festival last night with his own arrangement for modern orchestra of two fragments from Purcell's "Dido and Æneas."

The two portions of Purcell's seventeenth century opera which Mr. Kindler has chosen to transcribe are the stately introduction to the ominous first scene of the last act, in which three horrid witches plot the downfall of Dido, and Dido's Lament, toward the close of the opera. This latter scene is one of the great moments in all the music written before the time of Bach. The melodic line allotted to Dido, as she is about to bring death upon herself by her own hand after Æneas has deserted her, reaches heights of tragic declamation seldom paralleled in the entire literature of dramatic music.

Mr. Kindler's arrangement giving Dido's part to the violins, and the accompanying parts to the modern orchestra with its full complement of woodwinds and brasses, is a far cry from the string ensemble and harpsichord of Purcell's original score. Yet by avoiding sensationalism and seeking a sober, impersonal color, Mr. Kindler has added force to the music without destroying its genuineness.

Immediately after the "Dido and Æneas" music the program catapulted from the sublime to the ridiculous with a suddenness not much less than revolting. The second item of the evening was a brief set of children's pieces by Paul White of Rochester, N. Y., entitled "Five Miniatures."

José Iturbi introduced these trifles when he conducted the Chicago Symphony orchestra last January. If Mr. White wants to write music about mosquitoes and hippopotami which is so determinedly cute as to be almost unbearable on second hearing, that is his affair. At any rate, I am sure the "Five Miniatures" must now have concluded their slight span of life in the orchestra's répertoire.

The second American composition on the program was the suite "Circles of Washington," by R. Dean Shure of that city, played here for the first time. The four movements depict the idiosyncrasies of four of that city's chief trafic circles. From the standpoint of sheer orchestral color the suite is grateful. Its musical substance, however, is scanty at best, often marked by stretches of sheer padding, and dependent for inspiration upon the mannerisms of French impressionist composers.

I am inclined to think that Mr. Shure sees more in his music of a pictorial nature than the audience can, and that his music depends too largely on its setting to make much impression in any city except Washington.

The Tschaikowsky Fourth symphony came after the intermission. An accident in the slow movement gave two of the orchestra's players an opportunity to show the musical discipline which lies behind their daily performance. In an eloquent gesture to the cello section Mr. Kindler swept to the floor the music of the first stand cellists, Richard Wagner and Theodore Ratzer. Until Clarence Evans, crouching under Mr. Kindler's active baton, could recover the music for them, the two cellists continued to play faultlessly from memory. I find special pleasure in recounting this incident, since last week I accused the orchestra of making some mistakes which were really Mr. Ansermet's.

Mr. Kindler gave the symphony a ringing performance, well within traditional lines, but full of force and dramatic impulse.

Tonight Mischa Mischakoff, former concert master of the Chicago orchestra, returns to play the Tschaikowsky concerto. In addition Mr. Kindler will conduct Schubert's "Unfinished" symphony and excerpts from two music dramas, Wagner's "Das Rheingold" and Moussorgsky's "Boris Godunoff."

Schipa Will Be Soloist at Park Concert Aug. 11

Tito Schipa, celebrated tenor of the Chicago City Opera company, will appear in Grant park on Aug. 11 as soloist with the Chicago Civic Opera orchestra under Jerzy Bojanowski, it was announced yesterday by James C. Good Morning!

"She was launched in blood—she will end in blood!"

So prophesies truly an old man to the small boy clinging in terror to him. For both have just witnessed a dreadful sight! The brave new barque "Wanderer" has crushed a man as, freshly christened, she glided down her ways to the sea and her maiden voyage.

First "The Wanderer," then "The Silver Queen," then "The Albatross"—but an evil ship under any name is just as dangerous, according to superstition, and so, "The Albatross" which has brought every owner and every crew bad luck, at last is bought for a song—and the sea jinx becomes a "blackbirder" engaged in unlawfully transporting slaves from Africa to America.

Reared as a slaver, Capt. Jim Lovett thinks nothing of his calling till he meets—and marries . . . gentle southern Nancy Marlowe—who is ignorant of the manner in which he makes a living . . .

He decides to become the respectable planter she believes him to be, but his mate and crew, all of whom are shareholders in the ship, won't let him.

Made prisoners, husband and wife have a strange terrifying honeymoon. . . . The picture's final scenes are bloody and tempestuous, but, with this ray of sunshine beaming brightly,—the ending is all the most romantic could desire.

The story is located about 1847. Sets and costumes are effective and direction was intelligent.

Warner Baxter turns out a fine, believable performance as Lovett. Mickey Rooney and Joseph Schildkraut give shining portrayals. Elizabeth Allan is charming as Nancy. Mr. Beery is Beeryish, but I didn't care for him this trip. The rest of the cast was well chosen.

If you enjoy this brutal type of entertainment, "Slave Ship" will be to your liking. Otherwise—nix.

Charles Tells Why He Wants to Go to Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[The activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.]

There were so many good letters for our next party that I was like the little old woman who lived in a shoe, and didn't know quite what to do. However, the winners were selected, and 100 boys and girls will find their names printed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Here's what one little boy had to say about the party:

"Dear Sally: I never played in a real playroom and would like to. My brother could not go as he isn't 4 yet and anyway he breaks things. I am very careful. I would like to see the dolls houses even if I am a boy, because I like little tiny things. My soldiers have a little tent and mother got me a bed for it. It is just as long as my thumb. I would like to see the trains too. I like trains only my little brother broke my train and his train is only a baby train made of wood and no fun at all. At Christmas mother took me to see the trains in the big stores only they cost too much.

"I went to one of your parties before and liked what you had to eat. I never had popcorn and candy and ice cream all at once before. I was so full. Big playrooms sound like lots of fun and I would like to go if you have room for me. I would be very careful and not break things like my brother because he isn't 4 yet and doesn't know any better. Charles . . ."

Central City Will Open Drama Festival Tonight

Central City, Colo., July 16.—(AP)—For the first time since an impressive collection of cobwebs was swept out of the old Stone Opera house five years ago, Central City's play festival is being "given back to the miners" this year.

The sixth annual celebration in this little town hidden in the mine-dotted high Rockies opens tomorrow night with a "modernized" version of Ibsen's "A Doll's House" in the theater that looks about the same as it did on that long gone opening night back in 1878.

The play, directed by Richard Aldrich and produced by Jed Harris, will present Ruth Gordon, Walter Slezak, Dennis King, and Sam Jaffe in the leading characterizations.

B. & O. Engine of 1837 Will Run for Movie

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 16.—[Special.]—The two most important performers for "Wells Fargo" to date, seem to be Herman Oberender and Lawrence W Sagle, respectively a locomotive engineer and fireman from Baltimore, Md.

They arrived on a train pulling a flat car transporting the 100 year old, funnel stacked, wood burning locomotive, "William Galloway," better known among railroaders as "one-armed Billy," because the ancient Baltimore and Ohio engine has a drive shaft on only one side.

Oberender and Sagle are the only men in California and perhaps in the world who know "one-armed Billy" well enough to coax him through a film rôle. The locomotives of 1837 were made without brakes, and the engineer and fireman developed a knack of slowing the engine by shoving a bar through the engine wheels. If any Hollywood actor tried to do that, it probably would mean a funeral.

Oberender and Sagle will be dressed up with wigs, must let their hair grow long, and put on duds 100 years old, after which they will play parts in the film sequences which feature the old engine. The locomotive at present is on tracks of the Southern Pacific road at Chino.

Paramount also intends using another old engine, "Brass Betsy," of the Virginia [Nev.] and Truckee railroad, which had stood for years on an unused siding in Nevada before it was bought by the movie company last spring. "Brass Betsy," which is locomotive No. 22 of the V. & T. line, and which was built by Baldwin in 1868, already has made her film début. This was in the recent Irene Dunne-Randolph Scott picture, "High, Wide and Handsome."

Plans for the David Selznick production, "Tom Sawyer," have been changed to become still more pretentious, and the early sequences which have been shot have been discarded. The picture will be shot in technicolor, instead of black and white, as originally begun. There have been some cast changes, among them the introduction of Jackie Moran, Chicago boy actor, as Huck Finn. Tom Kelly, 12, of New York, plays Tom Sawyer.

H. C. Potter has been replaced as director by Norman Taurog, and work on the new and expanded film version of Mark Twain's story will commence Monday on location at Lake Malibu. Beulah Bondi plays Aunt Polly; Walter Brennan is Muff Totter; Ann Gillis, 12, is Becky Thatcher; Victor Jory is Injun Joe; Davy Holt, 10, is Sid Sawyer; Spring Byington is the Widow Douglas, and Cora Sue Collins, 10, is Amy Lawrence.

Foot Posture Important to Entire Figure

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Yesterday, in the posture smartening course we've been covering this week, we started with the feet pointed straight ahead and weight falling not on heels nor balls of feet but directly over arches and ankle bones.

Now, beginning from the ground up, today we arrive at knees. If you've been carrying yours rigidly for a long time [locked tightly and stiffly] you'll have a little difficulty at first in loosening the tension of the whole body that accompanies the stiff kneed hold. The knees should be held easily, flexibly, but not loosely. One sees people walking along whose knees seem to be propelling them along. This is not right. Knees are held straight, but not stiffly. For proper body balance a good deal depends upon the knee action.

Many women have the shoved back hip, which results in a sway back and a projecting lower back in rear. Janet Lane, in her excellent little book, "Your Carriage, Madam" [Wiley], describes the right hip rule as neatly as it ever has been done. She says: "Hips are a story in themselves, the storm center for figures and the skill center for sports. . . . In the checkup it is enough to say that the hips should be, at all times, walking or standing, in the same forward position you assume when you make yourself small to squeeze through a narrow space."

Now for the chest position. You don't want to go around propelling a formidable dowager's chest, naturally. Nor are you eager to have the "proud manly chest" expansiveness. The chest position you should aim for is the very position you'll earn for it when you pull your head up tall and drop your shoulders easily but straight. Not easy and slumped, you understand. If you strain on the shoulder muscles to keep the chest up you look strained. You do not throw the shoulders back. You couldn't, in a thousand years, swing a tennis racket or a golf stick with shoulders forced back that way. They must be free, swing freely. Pull them neither forward nor backward, and think of them as free and wide like a bird's wings, ready for flight or other action.

To top your lovely new carriage with that air that makes one woman more distinguished than the next, just remember that your head belongs on the top of your body and that if you dangle it forward or hold it back on a tight rein you pull everything off balance, to say nothing of spoiling your otherwise charming getup.

This completes our lineup for you. Now it is up to you to do your own upright and comfortably easy posture duty. But keep this maxim in front of you: Your makeup, your coiffure, your chapeau, and your imported model weigh not a single grain in your favor if you haven't the smart, young, chic carriage with which to put yourself over.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

We were thrilled to be told in Berlin they are training the blind to give massages. It opens up a new and profitable profession for them—and they should be expert at it, provided they first absorb a working knowledge of anatomy and the scientific purpose of massage.

We hear that the plan is practically flawless. The sensitivity of the hands of the sightless makes them perfect for the vocation. Wouldn't it be a good thing to do this in America?

We staggered slightly when we came on a green—yes, a green—rouge the other day when we saw some fine French rouges being made. It's a real pistachio tint, sold only in France. The buyers, as far as we could learn, are women with extremely dark skins. Worn in the evening it makes dark skins look light and luminous.

Between fifty and seventy-five thousand hairdressers are coming to Paris this fall for the annual hairdressing and perfumery exhibition. Several hundred are coming from America. It's a huge, swank, and serious show. The best cosmetic and perfume houses exhibit in it, also many of the dress houses and of course all the manufacturers of beauty shop equipment.

There are deadly serious makeup and hairdressing competitions and sound studies of the relationship between clothes and coiffures. The International Association of Master Ladies' Hairdressers [don't you love that name?] sponsors it each year. The late, beloved M. Marcel was the guiding spirit of this association.

Patricia Nash Is Engaged to Oliver Knode

BY JUDITH CASS.

The week-end's interesting romantic news in the announcement Mr. and Mrs. James Bertram Nash of Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., are making of the engagement of their daughter, Patricia, to Oliver Morton Knode Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver M. Knode of Hubbard Woods.

Mr. Nash's unexpected arrival in Chicago yesterday brought the news to light at a family luncheon party at the Vassar house, where his oldest daughter, Betty, and her husband, Webb Harrison, as well as young Mr. Knode, joined the group. The engagement will be celebrated more formally tonight at the Nash home in Wisconsin Rapids, where Miss Nash and her fiancé will spend the week-end.

The wedding will take place quietly early in September in the century old Mission church on Madeline Island in Lake Superior, where the bride's family has a summer home. Only the families and a few intimate friends will be present. The bride's other sister is Miss Nancy Nash, a student at Smith college, who is at the island now.

Miss Patricia Nash, who attended the Finch school in New York, has been living in Chicago. Mr. Knode, who always is called Jack, is a graduate of the Hill school and of Dartmouth, and is engaged in business here.

His mother and sister, Miss Nancy Knode, returned last month from a trip to England. Another sister, the former Betty Knode, and her husband, Horton Conrad, live in Glencoe.

Reveal Betrothal of Margaret Gould.

Further romantic news this morning is the announcement from Mr. and Mrs. Allen R. Gould of Winnetka of the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Louise, to Benjamin Taylor Porter, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Porter of Chicago.

Miss Gould was graduated from Wellesley college last year. Mr. Porter is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. The wedding will take place in October.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer John Schafer of 950 Sheridan road, Evanston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mimi, to Charles H. Buresh Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Buresh of 650 Forest avenue, Evanston.

Miss Schafer is a graduate of the Roycemore school and of Swarthmore college and has been studying interior decoration. She is a member of the North Shore Junior board of Northwestern University settlement.

SYNOPSIS.

On his return from abroad Michael Eden, heir to millions, postpones his marriage to Katharine McCann because his foster-father, John Millis, tells Michael his foster-mother is ill and needs him. Katharine's roommate, Joan, is engaged to Michael's friend, Terry Newton. From all sides Katharine is warned to break Michael away from John Millis. Millis asks Michael to sign a will making him Michael's heir. Michael signs, expecting to change the will after his marriage to Katharine. Mrs. Millis attempts suicide when she discovers her husband flirting with her nurse. Michael rescues her and agrees to take her away from Millis without telling any one where they are going. Millis wreaks his hate against Michael on the young man's room and tricks Katharine into a ride with him and forces his kisses on her. Amos Newton, uncle of Terry, believes that Millis killed Terry's father, who was Michael's co-guardian. Michael returns to the home of Amos Newton and Katharine and he plan to be married the next day, although Michael is not well. Michael's mother left him to go to her sister's to live. That night Michael disappears. Amos Newton and Katharine learn from the Millis chauffeur that Michael, in delirium, returned to the Millis home where he was put to bed with typhoid fever.

INSTALMENT XXX.

GIVEN HIS LAST CHANCE.

Katharine and Amos Newton listened to Hobson's story without a word of interruption. "Mr. Michael went on with his rambling talk. All houses are much alike, Pratt," he said. 'This is where we keep our honest men, too. What's that you are saying? It's too cold up here? Not cold for Maine—warmish—sickish—hellish. But it is the best you can afford.

"With that he crawled into bed in my own room, sir, and pretended to snore. I was standing looking at him, wishing I had some one to leave him with while I called Miss Katharine, when I looked up and saw Mr. Millis at the door. I was fearful of what Mr. Michael would say when his eyes fell on John Millis. But I needn't have worried. He was clear gone by that time. He sat up and looked Mr. Millis over from head to foot.

"'I can't remember you, sir,' he said regretfully. 'I'm sure that you are somebody I never cared for.' Then he laughed and began to snore again.

"Then Mr. Millis took charge."

"He called a doctor?" Newton asked.

"Yes, sir." There was a barely perceptible hesitation in his answer. "Mr. Millis told Hobson to get a neighborhood doctor, a Doctor Sloane —" Katharine volunteered.

"Yes, sir," Hobson agreed, rather eagerly.

"Doctor Robert Kittredge?" Amos exclaimed.

"Yes, sir," Hobson said anxiously.

"Was that all right?" Katharine asked, scarcely less anxious. "It was I who suggested Doctor Kittredge. Hobson came to me, Dr. Kittredge wouldn't touch the case until we used your name, Mr. Newton. We told him," she said, laughing somewhat hysterically, "that you begged him to go to Michael."

Newton drew a breath of relief, and rose in an obvious effort to relax.

"Thank you, both of you," he said, with a sober smile. "You have given Michael his chance."

Robert Kittredge was a physician of unimpeachable character and of recognized ability. He was a lifelong friend of the Newton family, and had been a close friend of Amos' dead brother. As early as he dared next day Amos Newton called at the Kittredge home. The interview was not a happy one.

"Don't thank me, don't thank me," Kittredge said impatiently. "When I got there, and saw the situation, I felt a little different. The boy is in for a tough time. He has a plain case of typhoid. I knew it before we made the tests. He has been walking around with it for some days. It took a decided change for the worse last night. He's pretty sick, Amos."

"So I suspected." Amos said quietly. "Bob, I want Michael transferred to a hospital. Will you do that for me? Will you order him to a hospital?"

At this insistent request, a certain difficult patience which had marked Kittredge's manner gave way.

"Amos, go home!" he exclaimed. "I suspected, when the girl told me that you wanted to see me, what I was up against."

"Is it unreasonable, Bob, that I should wish to get exact information in regard to Michael?" Newton said sharply.

"Not at all. You have it. Go home."

Newton rose.

"Look here, Amos," Kittredge said, struck by his friend's tired face and the hurt look in his proud, steady eyes, "you know very well that you came here to give me instructions about the boy—to warn me. You came to rehearse once more that old story of Charley's death. At first I was on your side. Even tonight, I took this case for your sake. I went to the Millis house deeply prejudiced against John Millis, whom I had never met. Well——"

"You have met him, and you know now that I am quite crazy," Newton said dryly.

"I like the man. I do not intend, in order to humor you in an obsession of which you should have rid yourself years ago, to make life any harder for him. It's about enough to be deserted by one's wife, and to have a son down with typhoid, with no more than a fifty-fifty chance for recovery! I refuse pointblank to make things harder for Millis."

"O, hang it all, Amos, you're impossible!" Kittredge growled. "Sit down! Listen to me now, for I do not intend to repeat this, nor do I intend to see you again until this boy is well."

"Or dead," Amos put in bitterly.

Kittredge frowned. "You don't by any chance intend to saddle Mr. Millis with responsibility for this illness? He can scarcely be suspected of having given the boy typhoid."

"My ideas would not interest you in the least."

"No, they wouldn't," Kittredge returned shortly. "However, to set your mind at rest, I turned off the nurse whom Millis—with praiseworthy dispatch—had already installed."

"Just why did you do th-t?"

"In a critical case I prefer to choose my own nurses," Kittredge retorted. "I have put two nurses on the case, both men, big Swedes who are strong and gentle and absolutely trustworthy. I have given orders that no one, no one, shall be admitted to the sickroom without my written order. That goes for John Millis. That goes for you. I have even installed a capable woman dietitian to prepare whatever food is required. What criticism have you to offer?"

"That you do not take him to a hospital."

"Well, I won't. I'm having very fine cooperation from John Millis, Amos," he said. "Rather better than I am getting from you."

Newton bowed.

"And it wasn't so easy for the man. He flared up when I dismissed the nurse he had, and asked my reasons. I told him what I told you, that I always preferred to choose my own nurses, especially in so critical a case as this might well be.

"'I understand,' Millis said. 'Just as I might prefer to choose my own doctor. I did not call you in, doctor. You were an accident.'

"'Mr. John Millis,' I replied, 'when you get sick you shall call in whom you please. I am here now, on Michael Eden's case. If I meet anything but obedience from you, I shall immediately move the boy to a hospital.'

"'That,' John Millis said, 'is practically the way you should have answered me. You will get nothing but support and obedience from me, Doctor Kittredge. Thank God we have a man on the job.'

"After that all went smoothly. Now Amos, what more can I do? What can I do to comfort you?"

"I am greatly reassured, Bob," Newton said simply. "I must leave Michael's fate in your hands. I shall make no effort to see you again."

Urges Safety Instruction in School Science Classes

Urbana, Ill., July 16.—[Special.]—Science instruction offers a place for safety training in the high school, Ray C. Soliday, instructor in the Oak Park-River Forest Township High school, told the conference on instruction being held at the University of Illinois.

He said that the science of accident prevention is truly a part of science in its recognition of cause and effect relationship. Among the science factors which enter into a study of safety, he pointed out inertia and momentum, gravity, velocity, friction, braking force, horsepower, centrifugal force, spontaneous combustion, and fireproof materials.

Orphanage Benefit at Lake Forest.

A center of activity in Lake Forest today will be Mrs. Harry M. McIntosh's estate, Belorme, which again will be the setting for the garden party that is given each summer for the benefit of the Lake Bluff Orphanage. Mrs. Alden B. Swift is general chairman of the party, which starts at 10 o'clock this morning and lasts until 6 in the afternoon.

Luncheon and tea will be served, under the direction of Mrs. Owen West, and Miss Annie May Henry has charge of a fashion show that will be presented during the afternoon with a number of Lake Forest post-debutantes as mannequins.

The John F. Jelkes have loaned their Sicilian pony cart which will be drawn by Johnny Lee's pony to give rides to all of the children at the party.

Mrs. T. Philip Swift has charge of the flower booth, and Mrs. Nicholas Starosselsky and Mrs. John A. Vincent have charge of the cake booth. The Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind will have a booth at the party in charge of Mrs. Stanley Morrill and Mrs. Howard Emig. Baskets woven by blind men at the Lighthouse, filled with fresh vegetables, will be on sale there. Modeling children's clothes at 2 o'clock in the fashion show will be the Gordon Kelleys' daughters, Deirdre and Lind; Betty Swift, the Philip Swifts' child; Joe Carney, son of the Roy Carneys; Patsy Mulligan, daughter of the Lawrence Mulligans; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reynolds' Ann; Audrey Fentress, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Fentress Jr., and the Charles Edward Browns' "Townie."

Two other Lake Forest parties over the week-end are the dinner-dance Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill are giving at home tonight for Miss Priscilla Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Welch, and a "free lunch" and beer party the Bachelors at 503 East Deerpath avenue will give tomorrow from 5 until 9 o'clock. Miss Curtis is forgoing a formal debut party this year.

Give Party Tonight at Knollwood Club.

One of the gayest parties at the Knollwood club this summer will be the Night in Hawaii party to be held this evening at the pool. The David J. Molloys, the James Bremmers, Edward F. Wilson, the Robert E. Kenyons, the Donald Boweys, the Charles W. Canfields, the Charles MacDowells, George Rasmussen, and Mr. and Mrs. August Kochs are among those who will be entertaining guests.

"The little children who are sick
And lie in bed all day
Will all receive some benefit
If you will come and play."

So reads the final verse in the rhymed invitations the White Elephant Rummage shop has issued to a party at the home of Mrs. D. Mark Cummings in Lake Forest from 2:30 until 5 o'clock the afternoon of July 22.

Surely no one of the shop's friends will need to be urged a second time to attend the gala event, and have a cooling drink, and cake, high above the lake. Contract, keno, and mah jong are on the program.

No tickets are required, but as usual the guests are asked to bring something they don't like to satisfy the elephant's appetite.

The gifts later will be sold at the White Elephant Rummage shop in East Ohio street, which is conducted for the benefit of the Children's Memorial hospital.

Mrs. Harry McLeod to Visit in East.

Miss Margaret Conover and her niece, Miss Elinor Talbot, subdeb, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Talbot, have sailed to spend a month abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall G. Sampsell [Margaret Carr] are among the latest travelers to return from Europe with thrilling tales of coronation scenes. Her parents, the Walter S. Carrs, arrived at home a few weeks ago from Europe.

Mr. Carr's brother, George R. Carr, cabled from London that "We are sailing on the Queen Mary" early in August, but it is not certain that both of his daughters, Miss Martha and Miss Catherine, will be his companions.

Robert A. Carr, the Walter Carrs' son, arrived yesterday by plane from California, where he spent the last week.

Another air enthusiast is Mrs. Frank S. Sims, who left for New York Thursday afternoon, and is returning tonight or tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Adams and little Joan Roby are returning to their home in New York tomorrow after spending three weeks with Mrs. Adams' mother, Mrs. Cornelius Lynde, and Mr. Lynde, in Winnetka.

Mrs. Peyton C. March in City for Few Days.

Mrs. Peyton C. March, wife of the wartime chief of staf of the United States army, arrived in Chicago yesterday from her home in Washington, D. C. She will stop for several days at the Lake Shore Drive hotel and then will depart for a visit at Mackinac Island.

Mrs. Philip B. Maher is returning today from Waterford, Va., where she has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Festus Foster.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. McCreary [Margaret Ward] are the parents of a daughter born Tuesday at the Evanston hospital. The baby has been named Martha Ward.

Dr. Franco Fontana, recently appointed Italian consul, and the Jason F. Whitneys were guests of the Ross J. Beattys at the Ravinia concert Thursday. It was incorrectly reported that the Whitneys had Dr. Mario Carosi, former Italian consul, as their guest. Dr. Carosi has been transferred from Chicago.

Versatile Outfit for Sun

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

This versatile sun ensemble will see you through all the difficult hot days of the season. You may wear it, without the jacket, for active sports. With the jacket it is ideal for town. The frock has a becoming shirt-waist collar and raglan armholes. Two pockets grace the simple bodice, and the paneling which creates the distinctive lines of this frock begins in the waist. Your shoulders and the entire back are exposed to the sun's rays whenever you decide to take off the coat. The garment buttons snugly at the waistline in the back, making a belt unnecessary.

The jacket is a boxy one, with raglan sleeves and a couple of adorable patch pockets. If you're smart you'll combine printed and plain materials in this model. There seldom is an opportunity such as this for the scheme. Either garment may be printed and the other in a harmonizing plain shade.

Style No. 2816 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 30, 32, 34, 36, and 38 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 2¾ yards of 39 inch material for the dress, with 1¼ yards of 35 inch fabric for the jacket.

The hat pattern, No. 2729, which costs 10 cents extra, is available in one size only.

Universal Christian Church Urged as Way to Peaceful World

OXFORD, England, July 16.—(AP)—A universal Christian church cutting across national lines would force governments to abandon war, Dr. Samuel McCrea Calvert of New York City told the world church conference today.

If membership in the church mean't a loyalty above the nation, he said "then perhaps governments might realize that they could no longer demand of Christians, in the name of patriotism, the kind of action which would nullify their fellowship with one another in Christ."

Urging an international Christian church, the speaker said it would satisfy the craving for community now manifested in collectivist movements which are limited and "false," and "result only in setting one group over against another."

A conference of the youth group representing 15 countries agreed on a statement that "modern capitalism carried the seeds of its own destruction because it refused to accept the Christian insight that individual personality is sacred and used it as a commodity."

Canning Tips Are Timely in Present Season

Most fruits are easy to can and will keep well even if canned without sugar. Highly acid fruits, such as gooseberries and rhubarb, may be canned without any processing period at all, if the cold water used is pure and the fruit is fresh.

Apricots, cherries, plums, strawberries, and gooseberries are ready for canning now, and before long peaches and pears suitable for canning will be available. So it's high time to get out the glass jars and invest in new caps and rubbers for them. I prefer to use the self-sealing jar covers which eliminate the use of rubber rings. These may be used for any method of canning, and they make the process a simple one.

Canning by the open kettle method still is popular, and results usually are satisfactory. Yet there are definite flavor and nutritional losses which make hot or cold pack methods much more desirable. The pressure cooker may be used for fruits, but isn't necessary as it is when vegetable canning is contemplated.

DIRECTIONS FOR CANNING FRESH FRUITS.

[July and August Markets.]

APRICOTS—These may be canned peeled or unpeeled. If they are unpeeled wipe with a damp cloth. Halve and pit the fruit. Pack in jars and cover with boiling sirup made in the proportion of 2 cups water to 1 cup sugar [medium sirup]. Process for 20 minutes in boiling water, or for 40 minutes in the oven at 275 degrees, very low heat.

If the open kettle method is used drop the prepared fruit into the same medium sirup and simmer for 10 to 15 minutes. Then bring to a full boil, pack into sterilized jars and seal at once.

CHERRIES [sour]—Wash, stem, and pit if desired. Pack into jars and cover with a thick boiling sirup made of 1 part sugar to 1 part water. [For sweet varieties the same method is used, but a thinner sirup is desirable.] Process in hot water bath for 20 minutes, or in 275 degree oven for 30 minutes.

For canning cherries by the open kettle method no water is needed. The cherries are sweetened to taste and brought to a boil and then are packed immediately into hot, sterile jars, filling the jars to the top. An immediate seal is necessary.

BERRIES [except strawberries]—Wash, stem, and pack the berries into jars. Cover with boiling medium sirup [2 parts water, 1 part sugar] and process for 20 minutes in hot water bath or for 35 in the slow [275 degrees] oven. For gooseberries use equal parts sugar and water for the sirup.

To can berries by the open kettle method add from ½ to 1 cup sugar per quart of berries and bring slowly to a boil over low heat. Boil for 5 minutes, fill hot sterile jars, and seal.

STRAWBERRIES [hot pack]—Wash, stem, and add berries to a thin sirup, 3 parts water to 1 part sugar. Cook gently for 15 minutes. Pack fruit in jars and add sirup [do not seal] and allow to stand for three or four hours. Seal and process for 15 minutes in hot water or 30 minutes in a 275 degree oven.

PEACHES — Select firm, ripe peaches. Scald, dip into cold water, and remove skins. Halve and pack in jars, covering with boiling medium sirup, 2 parts water to 1 part sugar. Process for 20 minutes in hot water bath, or for 35 minutes in a 275 degree oven.

Recipes for canning plums were given last week, and other fruits for canning will be discussed in this column when they appear on the market in quantity and condition for canning.

Many women prefer to precook fruits for a few minutes before packing them into jars for any type of jar-cooked processing. This shortens the processing time a good deal.

In using the pressure cooker process fruits at 5 pounds pressure for 10 minutes cold pack, 5 minutes hot pack. Apricots and peaches need 10 minutes hot pack also.

Culbertson's "Gold Book of Bidding and Play"

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily instalments.

CONTROLS.

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

At any trump bid you can have anywhere from 13 to 19 sure winners in the combined hands and yet make only 11 tricks. These, of course, are extreme cases of duplication of values, but in varying degrees the principle is the same throughout most hands.

A card or cards that can win the indicated lead of a suit is called a control. There are three degrees of suit control: 1. An ace or a void [with trumps] is called first round [primary] control. 2. A king or a singleton [with trumps] is called second round [secondary control]. 3. A queen or a doubleton [with trumps] is called third round control.

Slam bids need controls more than anything else, because control means time. Aces, voids, and singletons gain precious time by blocking the enemy's strongest line of attack. Thus, the time factor is behind every slam bid, as it is behind every play.

TODAY'S HAND.

North-South vulnerable.

NORTH
♦ A Q J

WEST
♠ 9 5
♥ 6 4 3 2
♦ K 10 9 8 4 3
♣ A

♠ 7 4 2
♥ K 9 8 5
♦ 6 5 2
♣ J 10 9

SOUTH
♠ A Q J 10 3
♥ J 10
♦ 7
♣ K Q 8 5 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	2 diamonds	3 no trump	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	4 no trump	Pass
5 spades	Pass	6 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

With no appreciable hesitation, and probably even less thought, West laid down the club ace. After the dummy appeared he looked frantically, but, of course, fruitlessly, for a means of putting his partner on lead, so that he might ruff a club for the setting trick. His heart shift, however, met no success. Declarer climbed up with dummy's ace, drew trumps, and finessed his singleton diamond, discarding his losing heart on the diamond ace. The rest of the tricks then could be claimed, since the club suit was solid.

For West to have expected his partner to have a quick entry was nothing less than naive. The bidding was clearly indicative of the fact that North and South held almost all of the missing high honors. But if, by a miracle, East had had a quick entry, there would be no need for a club ruff in order to defeat the contract. Surely the club ace always would be a trick. Therefore, East's supposed entry would of itself defeat the contract. In that event, a ruff would be merely the inconsequential second setting trick.

West should have held on to his club ace for dear life, and unless declarer had peeked into his hand and seen that the club ace was blank, the contract would have failed.

The conclusion, therefore, is that the slam was fulfilled only through West's outrageous optimism.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question. Using the two-way three-bid, should partner's three spade opening bid be raised to four with the following:

♠ 6 4 3 ♥ 9 8 7 4 3 ♦ 9 ♣ 10 8 6 4 ?

Answer: Yes.

Duck Creek Puzzle.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Addres Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

This attractive "Duck Creek Puzzle" lends itself to the use of gayly colored materials of both printed and plain varieties. The patches are easily set together and the completed blocks are used to form an all-over pattern rather than being set together with alternate plain blocks. Sixty-three 10 inch blocks are surrounded by a 10 inch border and a one-half inch bias binding, so that the completed coverlet has an over-all dimension of 90 by 110 inches. This type of quilt pattern may be used to utilize the excess material in the scrap bag, which was the purpose of the original quilt. The aged Tennesseean who gave us the block said the pattern was named for Duck Creek Hollow, which was a tiny stream in the vicinity of her home.

The Doll Type Seldom Makes a Good Wife

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A young man writes that he is falling for a girl who is pretty but, aside from her looks, she has little to recommend her. She's a selfish person, always looking out for herself. Her disposition is nothing to brag about, for if she isn't given her own way all the time she's irritable. She doesn't seem to know there is such a word as compromise. And he wonders if he is foolish to continue seeing her.

The thrill you get from presenting this lovely looking girl to your friends, and listening to their flattering comments, may be music to your ears now, but if there is nothing back of those looks, you're bound to be bored to death with that same beauty later on. You'd better make the break now, while you can. The pretty, doll type of girl will expect and demand that you continue to flatter her, for that is all she has. If you don't, life won't be pleasant for you. When she serves you burned toast, and coffee you can't possibly drink, you'll have to be contented with her beauty as a substitute for good palatable food. But just how long do you think you can do that? Not long, I venture.

The man who chooses as his mate a girl who can and will be a companion, even though she may not be a Ziegfeld number, is much smarter. He has a mate with whom he can share his problems. His hopes and his plans for the future will be hers, and she will work with him, helping him along the road to success. She is the type of mate who makes a man want to do things and get places. She'll do her share. She'll make of the home a place to rush back to when the day's work is done.

Your pretty doll type won't be interested in your affairs and will be of no help to you in solving your problems. Her chief interest will be in dolling herself up, buying new clothes, visiting beauty parlors. Her demands will be unreasonable, and life with her will be boredom. Even her beauty will fade, and there will be nothing left.

Child Often Has Certain Secret Fears

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

The vacuum cleaner was going full force. They are obstreperous things, aren't they?

"How I used to hate that noise," announced a girl of 15 as she stopped writing a letter to which she needed to give her full attention. "It used to scare me so. Do you remember?" she asked her mother.

"I should say I do," was the answer, "but I didn't imagine you would recall it."

"Ugh! I should say I do. You know, Mommie, there were a lot of things I used to be afraid of when I was little. I wonder why. Do you remember how at camp I wouldn't go out on the road alone on those black nights we used to have, when you couldn't see a foot before you? Little kids have kind of a hard time in some ways, don't they?" she said reminiscently.

On the whole, small children have many more fears than we imagine, or than they ever let us know.

"Why didn't you tell me?" asked a mother who was talking this same thing over with her boy.

"O, I guess I thought you knew. I thought you knew everything, you see," he replied.

A child doesn't have to be of an overly nervous nature to experience fears. Neither the boy nor the girl mentioned here is of that sort. They are both sensitive, but also distinctly normal, with steady nerves, and they are fearless rather than fearful now. Under a generally wise upbringing and a good general scheme of eating, exercise, sleeping, and so forth, they have outgrown the fears of their younger years.

You know what some of the fears of young children are. We will discuss them tomorrow. What to do about them is the thing we are concerned about just now.

We must, of course, do all we can to first prevent them. Avoid allowing your child to hear tales of terror, to be threatened, to be startled or bullied, to see weird illustrations, films or radio programs.

We must do all we can to dissipate fears, once they have shown themselves. We do this in various ways: By explanations, by jokes, and even by games about the fear inducing objects, and in general by bringing the fear out of its shadowy corner in a child's mind and "hanging it out in the sunlight."

But sometimes we simply have to admit that we can neither prevent some fears nor cure them. When that is so we may either gently continue our efforts in the hope of a cure, or we may desist. At the same time we see to it that our child's way of life is a good one—wholesome and well rounded.

This subject will be discussed further on Monday.

A large, 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope will bring our reading list for children to you. Be sure to mention your child's age. Address Mrs. Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Bevans' column also appears in The Sunday Tribune.

THREE CHILDREN DIE AS RESULT OF AUTO ACCIDENTS

Boy Killed as Car Swerves to Avoid Hitting Girl.

[See editorial page for the massacre clock.]

Three children died yesterday as victims of automobiles. One was killed outright during the day. The two others were injured on Thursday. The youngsters were Kenneth Paschke, 6 years old, 1144 Pleasant street, Oak Park; John Dekalaita, 10, of 611 Woodland park, and Geraldine Herschfield, 5, of 8037 South Carpenter street.

The Paschke boy and a girl playmate ran out into Maple avenue near his home, into the path of the car of Leonard Berenson, 1337 North Spaulding avenue. Berenson struck Kenneth to avoid hitting the girl. The Dekalaita boy was injured Thursdays by an automobile driven by Robert Jones, colored, 3647 South Kedzie avenue, in front of 3450 Cottage Grove avenue. He died in Michael Reese hospital. The Herschfield girl died in Auburn Park hospital of injuries suffered Thursday when she was struck by a car driven by Peter Riddening, 9421 South Albany avenue, in front of 8041 South Morgan street.

Woman Crushed to Death.

Mrs. Jennie Bus, 61 years old, 1736 North Long street, was fatally injured yesterday when she was crushed under the rear wheels of a Central avenue Surface lines bus at Madison street.

Lewis Dressler, 55 years old, 5242 Hyde Park boulevard, died in the Woodlawn hospital yesterday of injuries incurred on June 11 when he was struck by a taxicab in Michigan avenue near 55th street. Oliver Skinner, colored, 4705 South Michigan avenue, driver of the cab, is to be charged with manslaughter, police said.

Mrs. Hattie Jones, 42 years old, colored, of Robbins, was killed early yesterday when the car in which she was riding skidded in South Kedzie avenue and ran into the ditch near 141st street, Blue Island. Two of her children were injured in the accident.

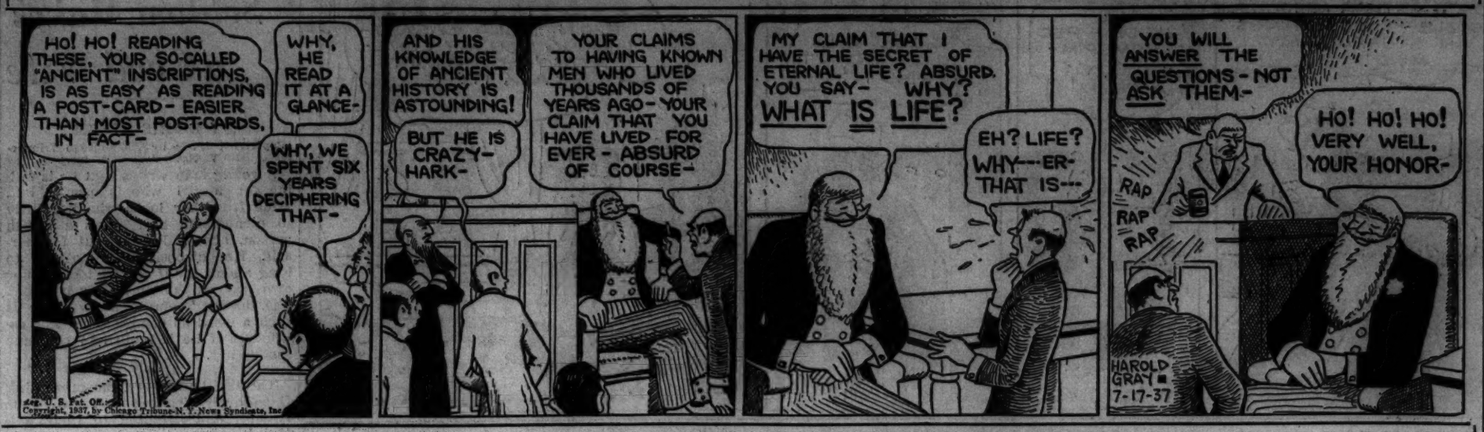
Leaps as Train Hits Auto.

A quick leap yesterday saved the life of Ralph Brown, 55 years old, 1315 Chestnut avenue, Wilmette. His car stalled on the Chicago and North Western tracks at the Forest avenue crossing in Wilmette just as a fast passenger train approached. Brown jumped out a second before the train crashed into his car. A Scotty dog in the car was killed.

On June 30 the state legislature, because of a patronage feud, missed its last opportunity to enact a driver's license law which has reduced traffic accidents in some states. Since then and up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 25 persons have been killed and 1,065 injured in automobile accidents in Chicago.

Since Jan. 1 trafic accidents have killed 548 persons in the county, including 424 in Chicago, according to the coroner's office. During the same period 11,666 were injured in automobile accidents in the city.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Little Minds, What Now?



SMILIN JACK—HEARING THEIR OWN OBITUARY

News of Radio

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Eugene F. McDonald Jr., radio manufacturer, has decided to find out whether there is any truth in recently published reports in scientific journals that homing pigeons lose their sense of direction when flying under the influence of strong radio frequencies.

This morning Karl Hassell, chief research engineer of Zenith Radio, which Commander McDonald heads, and J. B. Baggaley, pigeon fancier of Winnetka, are to release pigeons from the bases of the transmitters of WBBM at 9:30 a. m. and WJJD at 10 a. m.

Homing pigeons when released spiral upwards directly overhead for about 20 seconds, then wing swiftly in a straight line for their home lots. If confused they are likely to return to the coop from which they were released.

Commander McDonald has raised the question whether the pigeon's homing sense may be assisted by frequencies in the spectrum of which little or nothing is yet known, and perhaps are hindered by others of which something is known.

"There must be an explanation for that which we call instinct," he declared yesterday. "Is it something in the nature of the earth inductor compass, or does the explanation lie in the great band of frequencies in the spectrum, still hidden from the scientists? We must begin by the simplest of experiments to build toward the revelation of new answers."

Mutual network put on an interesting exclusive broadcast from the mine head where the Sullivan, Ind., disaster occurred the other evening. Interviews with survivors and mine officials provided a graphic picture of the catastrophe. Earlier in the evening Senator McKellar was presented in a eulogy of the late Senator Robinson. Mutual's special features division has been showing considerable enterprise. Another feature scheduled is a series of daily broadcasts of the America's Cup Races by land, sea and air, off Newport, R. I., starting Saturday, July 31. Cameron King and Dave Driscoll will be the leading commentators.

The Chicago and North Western railroad is to assume sponsorship of broadcasting the Northwestern University home games and some of those abroad this season over WJJD with Russ Hodges at the microphone. Football notables may be used as guest commentators. First broadcast is set for Oct. 2.

5 AUTOISTS LOSE USE OF CARS FOR ERRATIC DRIVING

Five more reckless drivers were deprived of the use of their automobiles yesterday by Judge Charles S. Dougherty in Safety court. Three of them lost the use of their cars for one year, the maximum period allowed under the new Illinois drivers' law. They are James Lyons, 22, of 2800 Washington boulevard; Willie Smith, 45, of 721 East 42d street, colored; and John Laurie, 26, of 4902 Potomac avenue. Laurie and Smith were also sentenced to five days each in the county jail. Howard Smith, 26, of 4619 Calumet avenue, colored, was fined $10 and prohibited from driving for 60 days, and Fred Williams Jr., 30, of 1542 West 108th street, got three days in jail and was deprived of his car for 30 days. All were charged with reckless driving.

AUTO TEST LANES CROWDED FOR 2D DAY AFTER DRIVE

Automobile safety inspection lanes were crowded to capacity yesterday for the second successive day since the police drive on delinquent motorists began. As a result of the rush Edward J. Gorman, deputy vehicle license commissioner, temporarily called off arrests.

Mr. Gorman said that nearly half the 10,154 cars that went through the safety lanes on Thursday were refused stickers because they were out of order. This showed, Mr. Gorman said, the absolute importance of the tests, which are required to get dangerous junk cars off the streets.

U. S. NAVY FLYERS SHIFT HUNT FOR AMELIA TO NORTH

HONOLULU, Hawaii, July 16.—(AP)—A study of equatorial winds and currents sent naval aviators farther northward today in the closing phase of their South Seas search for Amelia Earhart, American aviatrix.

Forty-two planes again left the aircraft carrier Lexington west of Howland Island to explore 28,000 square miles along either side of the international date line to a point 220 miles north of the Equator.

The survey of currents and winds led to the belief that the plane of Miss Earhart and her navigator, Frederick J. Noonan, might have drifted farther north than originally indicated.

This brought the Lexington nearer the point where the search started on July 2, the day the Earhart plane disappeared while attempting to fly 2,570 miles from New Guinea to Howland Island.

Still battling fierce heat and rain squalls, the flyers expressed belief that if Miss Earhart and her navigator are alive they will be found in the new searching zone by tomorrow.

WIDOW, 80, KILLED IN 7 STORY FALL AT OAK ST. HOTEL

Mrs. Alice Harvey, 80 years old, widow of Curtis Harvey, lawyer and former member of the Illinois legislature from Galesburg, was fatally injured early today when she fell from a window of her seventh floor room in the 40 East Oak street apartment hotel.

Police investigation indicated that Mrs. Harvey's fall was accidental. She had been ill three years and was under the care of a nurse, Mrs. Lillian Sheehan. While Mrs. Sheehan was sleeping this morning Mrs. Harvey rose, evidently to open a window, and fell through the screen. She fell in front of the building and was found alive by William E. Hewitson, the night clerk. She died while being taken to the Henrotin hospital.

Mrs. Harvey's daughter, Mrs. Grace Penfield, wife of William H. Penfield, chief engineer for the Milwaukee railroad, who occupies an apartment next to her mother's, said that Mr. Harvey died 50 years ago.

The spectator identified himself as Thomas Bolton, 29, of 1518 South Hamlin avenue. The two others seized were Blanche Hauser, 29, and Helen Thompson, 23.

Police said the place was a massage parlor. The names on the two entrances were A-Abar Health institute and Charme Salon of Body. The case will be heard in the Women's court next Tuesday.

BONURA, DYKES, KREEVICH LEAD ATTACK ON A'S

Statistician Runs Out of Threes.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The third place White Sox beat the Athletics yesterday in the third and final game of their series, 9 to 4, and in so doing registered a few freak statistics featuring three and multiples of three.

It was Sugar Cain's third victory of the season, and in accomplishing their total of nine runs, nine being three times three, the third placers made three hits in each of six innings.

All nine Sox who played throughout the game hit safely. Mike Kreevich made three runs and three hits, Zeke Bonura made three hits and drove in three runs and Jim Dykes also made three hits and drove in three runs. Luke Appling made three hits and scored one of the three runs the Sox made in the fifth inning.

The Sox first took the lead in the third inning, but a three base hit by Bill Werber bloomed into the tying run in the following inning. The Sox went ahead again with their third run and never lost the advantage the remainder of the way. The only innings the Sox didn't make three hits were the first and the seventh.

Enough Is Enough.

The Sox played errorless ball but never had a chance to make a triple play. They did their best in this respect by ending the game with a double play.

The mystic three perhaps appeared in many other spots such as the three strikes Cain took in the second and fifth innings. But it is very warm and we feel ourselves getting just a little screwy on the subject and will not go deeper into the matter.

The Sox waited until the second inning to balance a run which the Athletics rang up in the first inning as the result of a homer by Moses. Bonura opened the second with a double to right center, a beautiful drive which might have been a triple on a cooler day. Zeke moved up on Radcliff's infield out and scored on Appling's single to right. Dykes beat out an infield hit but Sewell filed to Finney and Cain struck out.

Sox Take Lead.

The Sox again made three hits and one run to go ahead in the third. With one down, Kreevich singled to left and stopped at second as Walker beat out a bunt. Bonura singled to left, Kreevich scoring. Radcliff and Appling flied to Moses.

In the fourth Werber pushed off with a triple, held third on Dean's single to Appling, and scored the tying run on Hill's fly to Kreevich. Conroy fanned and Cain threw out Peters.

The Sox again operated on a three hit-one run ratio in the home fourth. Cain beat out an infield roller and completed the trip on singles by Piet and Kreevich.

Sox Renew Attack.

The sixth inning was the fifth straight in which the Sox made three hits and the fourth inning in which

The Boys Are Fooling.

Judging from the public prints, major league players resent the All-Star baseball game because it deprives them of a three day vacation after the arduous Fourth of July schedule. Would the complainants understand it if some one pointed out that there would be no three day recess if the contest were abandoned?—R. M. B.

Arch: All one hears these days is about the prowess of the New York Yankees and what they will do to the ultimate winners of the National league race. However, averages in last Sunday's paper show the Cubs as a team are batting 10 points higher, have made 49 more hits and have scored only 13 less runs than McCarthy's powerful sluggers. At Last! A Winning System.

A young woman recently attended the races at Arlington. She placed five bets and won all of them. In the first race she liked the color of the jocky's shirt. In the next race the horse had a Spanish name and as the lady was born in a Spanish speaking country she put her money on this one. In the next race the experts around her said a certain jocky never had won a race, so she bet on him and won. Later the same jocky rode again and she won and on the fifth race she liked the horse's name. Can you suggest a better system?

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., July 16.—Lou Fette, who languished in the minors for ten years because scouts were suspicious of his skill, today unwrapped a large parcel of masterful pitching before the eyes of the Cubs. The Chicagoans were so amazed by what he displayed that they could collect only three hits as they flopped before the Bees in the series final, 6 to 1

Fette's skill cost the Cubs the series two games to one, but they remained at the top of the National league race because of difficulties encountered by the contending Giants in their 11-inning battle with the Pirates.

Lee's Eighth Defeat.

While the aged Fette, who really showed himself a past master in the pitching art, proceeded cautiously toward his eleventh victory of the year, the Bees caused trouble for Bill Lee. They furnished the Louisiana tall man with a gentle hint in the first inning. They gave him a more important blast in the fourth, scoring two runs to break a 1 to 1 deadlock. Then they proved themselves real batting culprits by making five hits for three runs in the eighth. All this contributed to Lee's eighth defeat. He has nine victories.

During his day's sufferings Lee was able to strike up an intimate acquaintance with one of the San Francisco Di Maggios. The Bees have a lad named Vincent of the Frisco family. Vincent tormented Lee from start to finish this afternoon. His single gave the Bees a run in the first inning. In the fourth he tripled to inaugurate a two run rally. In the eighth he hit a homer for two of the three runs with which the Bees turned the battle into a rout. Vincent is two years older than Brother Joe, the Yankee star, who will have a hand in the next world series.

Four Cubs Reach Base.

Fette, who by experience knows how to aim at batters' weaknesses, permitted only four Cubs to reach first base. Two of these survivors produced singles in the second inning for the tying run. Acting Manager Gabby Hartnett was one of the producers in this instance. Later Rip Collins scratched a single and Pinch Hitter Frey drew the only pass issued by the American Association graduate.

GRIMM LEAVES FOR TREATMENT, BUT HE'S JOVIAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., July 16.—Charley Grimm, manager of the Chicago Cubs, started for St. Louis early this afternoon in search of relief from the sciatic nerve misery in his right leg. Grimm made up his mind to depart after 36 hours in bed at his hotel room.

"I can't sleep, so what is the use of hanging around?" declared Grimm, who instead of seeking sympathy for his trouble tries to laugh it off with wisecracks.

"They're going to meet me at the St. Louis depot with an ambulance," said Charley. "I know there won't be any room in it for me. All my uncles will climb in for the ride. My uncles make up half of St. Louis."

Wheeled to Depot.

Grimm was taken from the hotel to the depot, a matter of a couple of blocks, in a wheel chair. Even this was an unusual event for Boston, where parades of one kind or another are daily occurrences. Leading the procession was Robert [Round Man] Lewis, traveling secretary and court jester, who looked around occasionally to make sure that the procession hadn't turned a corner. Pushing the chair was a uniformed hotel porter.

Grimm sat upright in his chair, holding his cane like a scepter and bowing like a true politician to spectators along the line of march.

May Be Absent Six Weeks.

Grimm will reach St. Louis tomorrow noon and will be taken direct to St. John's hospital for examination by Dr. Robert Hyland, who for years has treated big league ball players. Grimm talked with Dr. Hyland by telephone this morning, but the latter refused to intimate that he had a clew as to the cause of the trouble. The ailment is generally believed to be the result of a back injury incurred 12 years ago.

The length of Grimm's vacation will depend entirely on the course of treatment prescribed by Dr. Hyland. If it is necessary to place his back in a cast Grimm may be absent five or six weeks. If he can be given temporary relief he'll rejoin the Cubs at Chicago and delay treatment for a permanent cure until next fall.

Before leaving the team Grimm advised the acting manager and captain, Gabby Hartnett, as to the rotation of pitchers.

Waldorf, McMillin, Layden Agree on 3 All-Star Players

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Sam Francis of Nebraska is the best full back in last year's group of senior university football players. Merle Wendt of Ohio State is one of the two best ends. Ed Widseth of Minnesota is one of the best tackles.

These three men are the unanimous choices of the coaches who last year assisted Bernie Bierman of Minnesota in preparing the College All-Stars for the battle against the Detroit Lions at Soldiers' field which ended in a 7 to 7 deadlock. These coaches, who today cast their ballots in THE TRIBUNE'S fourth annual nation-wide poll, are: Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern; Elmer Layden, Notre Dame, and A. N. [Bo] McMillin, Indiana.

Lynn Waldorf.

Indicates Talent Available.

That only three players on these three ballots were identical choices indicates again the talent available for this year's All-Star squad. Each team, however, is well balanced. Each has a sturdy, rugged defensive line which also has speed and drive for attack. Each boasts a back field which has exceptional kicking and superlative passing as well as speedy runners.

Here is Layden's All-American eleven:

Center—Mike Basrak, Duquesne.
Quarter back—Nello Falaschi, Santa Clara.
Full back—Sam Francis, Nebraska.

This is McMillin's All-Star team:

Center—Mike Basrak, Duquesne.
Full back—Sam Francis, Nebraska.

Tackles—Ed Widseth, Minnesota, and Jerry Dennerlein, St. Mary's [Cal.]
Center—Bud Svendsen, Minnesota.
Quarter back—Sammy Baugh, Texas Christian.
Half backs—Ray Bulvid, Marquette, and Ace Parker, Duke.
Full back—Sam Francis, Nebraska.

"There are several Northwestern seniors," Waldorf said in discussion of the personnel of his All-Star team, "who deserve consideration. I feel it best not to name any of them, however, and I have confined my selection to players I saw in action in the last two years. All of them have been consistent and they have more than held their own against good competition. This team is well balanced. It has running power, excellent forward passing, and it is a fine defensive team. This team really can go places."

Layden Boosts Deutsch.

Layden gives St. Benedict's Deutsch a boost.

"Deutsch probably was the most underrated end of the year. His performance in the East-West game in San Francisco proved this. Ryan is a tremendous punter as well as a great all around back. With Haines, Francis, and Falaschi, Ryan forms a back field which is exceptionally versatile. Falaschi was as brilliant a field general as the game saw last year, taking full advantage of his team's ability and opponent's weaknesses.

"The line has everything," Layden continued. "With Basrak as the pivot man and wheel horse playing either in the line or roving, it should be almost impregnable defensively. The running attacks of the teams from which these linemen are picked indicate their blocking ability."

McMillin believes his eleven can whip "any team in the country, the Green Bay Packers included." He added: "These boys have size, speed, kicking, and passing ability with plenty of finesse offensively. They

Lassie Field

FOLLOWING is the field for the $28,000 Arlington Lassie stakes at 6 furlongs, richest 2 year old filly race in the world, arranged in the order of post positions:

Horse and jocky—	Wt.	Prob. odds.
FANTINE [P. Roberts]	117	8-1
PRETTY PET [L. Turner]	117	20-1
INHALE [J. Gilbert]	122	3-1
HERMANA [No boy]	117	10-1
DOLLY E. [J. Westrope]	114	12-1
THEEN [E. Anderson]	117	4-1
MIGHTY SWEET [L. Turner]	117	20-1
WELL REWARDED [Haas]	122	2-1
MANIE O'HARA [Rob'rts'n]	117	2-1

BY FRENCH LANE.

Once again the ladies will go out after the big money at Arlington Park this afternoon. It will happen in the ninth running of the Lassie stakes which will have a gross value of approximately $28,000.

The nine leading 2 year old fillies in the country were named in the overnight field. The entry of Well Rewarded and Manie O'Hara, which will represent Mrs. Ethel V. Mars of Chicago, will rule as the favorite. The odds against the pair likely will be 8 to 5 or 2 to 1.

Two year old filly races are almost always thrillers. The renewal of the Lassie today should also be that kind of an affair. Two year old fillies when sent out against one another run as fast and as far as they can. Six furlongs at this early stage of their racing career is quite a long journey, however.

Theen Shows Gameness.

Only one in today's stylish field has shown a willingness to come up from behind and settle the issue at the line of finish. That one is Warren Wright's big tomboyish looking filly named Theen. She is a daughter of Sickle-Potheen. Because she has demonstrated such stretch running gameness she has an excellent chance to carry away today's rich prize.

Well Rewarded, Manie O'Hara, Inhale, Dolly F., Fantine and Mighty Sweet will be fighting for the lead in the early stages. Some of them will run one another into exhaustion and when that happens Theen may drive up from behind and whip all of them.

That's just one diagnosis of the way the race may be run. Every now and then a horse race isn't run just the way one imagines on the night before that it should be run.

Inhale May Be Second Choice.

The lone eastern color bearer Inhale likely will be the second choice in the wagering at post time and Theen possibly will be the third choice. The others in the field, including John Oliver Keen's Fantine, Bomar stable's Pretty Pet and Mighty Sweet and M. L. Emerick's Dolly E. will be long shots. And one of them could easily get into a running mood and carry away the big bag of gold.

The Lassie stakes will be supported by the best program that has yet been arranged by Racing Secretary McLennan.

Warren Wright's Sun Teddy, hero of the 1936 Arlington handicap, will make his 1937 debut in the six furlong Edgewater purse. He is matched against a powerful band of six rivals including horses now being pointed for the 1937 renewal of Arlington's closing day stake for older horses.

Rounding out the card will be a race at a mile and a quarter and another at two miles.

Value May Total $28,710.

Should nine start the Lassie prize will gross $28,710, and will net the winning owner $17,630. The owner of the second horse will receive $5,000, the third $2,500, and the fourth $1,000. Breeders also are remembered in the prize money, the nominator of the first horse to receive $750, the second $500, and the third $250.

Much interest attends the running of the Bayshore purse, because of its bearing upon the Classic stakes to be run a week from today. Entered in this race are Eagle Pass, Orientalist, Gerald, Dellor, Old Nassau, Yellow Tulip, Sunset Trail II., and Sir Midas.

Sun Teddy Popular.

Sun Teddy's return to racing will be hailed with joy, for he is a strong favorite in the middle west. Last year he finished second to Granville in the Classic and then went on to beat older horses in the Arlington handicap.

M'DOWELL LOSES TO HOLMSTROM IN JUNIOR GOLF

Title Is Decided on 38th Hole.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Those lugubrious gents who are wont to chant a dirge about the waning future of junior golf in America would have done well to witness the 36 hole final match for the western championship at the Cherry Hill club yesterday. They would have seen gangling Johnny Holmstrom of Rockford win the title from Bert McDowell of Kansas City, 1 up, in a 38 hole match which ranks with the best that the Chicago district has enjoyed in years.

Holmstrom, at 16, the youngest player ever to capture the western, appeared to have the championship comfortably wrapped up at the end of the morning 18 which he negotiated in 72, one over par, to leave himself four up at the intermission. The gritty McDowell, six down after the 21st, steadied until he had whittled his opponent's lead to three up at the 27th. Eight holes later he dropped a thirty foot putt to square the match. They halved the 36th, and Holmstrom after earning a magnificent half on the first extra hole sank an eight foot putt for a winning birdie on the 38th.

Is Good Athlete.

The match was the longest in the history of the western's 24 years, and also marked the first time that a player making his debut in the tournament had come out of it the champion. Holmstrom, who was not old enough to enter last year, had been of an age, however, to win the Illinois junior crown and finished runnerup in the state amateur tournament, where he disposed of a number of his elders, including the famed Gus Moreland. A six footer of Swedish-Norwegian lineage, Holmstrom is adept in other fields also. Entering his junior year at Rockford High, Johnny is an end in football and a guard in basketball.

McDowell proved yesterday that he is more than able to carry on the collegiate fame of Fredde Haas and Paul Leslie at Louisiana State university, where he will enter his sophomore year this fall. Bert is a young man who has trod the heights and plumbed the depths of golf in his 18 years. He is the same one who took an 11 on one hole in the national open at Detroit last month, and who has a hole in 1 to his credit in the trans-Mississippi.

Miss Veatch Wins Western Junior Golf

Losing only one hole of the fifteen played, Miss Veatch left no doubt as to her ability. She was out in forty, one over par, to take a three up lead at the turn.

Beats Defending Champion.

The cards:

Miss Veatch wins, 5 and 3.

Mary Wilder Wins.

Mary Wilder of Skokie won the consolation championship from Kathleen Carey of Cedar Rapids, Ia., 6 and 5, and Dorothy Schildmiller of Cincinnati defeated Janet Gilmore of Detroit, Mich., 3 and 2, for first flight honors.

Mary Shaverick of Skokie defeated Dorothy Campbell of St. Louis, 6 and 5, in the second flight; Virginia Holtz of Mohawk won from a clubmate, Loella Bansbach, 7 and 6, in the third flight, and Marcie Fisher of La Grange took a one up struggle from Elaine Scavone of Chicago in the fourth flight.

PARDI WILL MEET BOYWID TODAY IN MIDWEST FINAL

In yesterday's semi-finals Pardi beat John Bodevin, 4 and 2, and Boywid beat Sterling Dawson of Medinah, 4 and 3.

Today's final will be a 36 hole match.

Time, :23 2-5, :47 3-5, 1:13 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Walter Morton, $22.20 straight, $10.60 place, $7.40 show; Parva Stella, $16.40 place, $10.20 show; French Boy, $27.20 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 2:41.

WALTER MORTON, a good distance back for a half mile and on the extreme outside the final three-sixteenths, rallied stoutly in the final quarter and after getting up drew out slowly. PARVA STELLA, a strong factor from the start, drew into command on the stretch turn and went with good courage in the drive, although unable to hold the winner. FRENCH BOY, under steady restraint for about three-eighths, and then wide, worked his way to the front under strong riding but faltered in the late stages.

THIRD RACE—One mile. Purse $1,100. Net value to winner, $800; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :23 :5, :46 3-5, 1:11 2-5, 1:38 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Rare Ben, $39.40 straight, $12.00 place, $7.80 show; Le Miserable, $67.20 place, $19.20 show; Cottingham, $8.60 show. Winner trained by E. E. Childs. Went to post at 3:03.

RARE BEN forced the pace under light restraint, drew into command under mild urging, was taken out when entering the stretch and outstayed LE MISERABLE in the drive. LE MISERABLE, well up from the start, bothered with, was forced very wide by the winner as they entered the stretch and, finishing on his own courage could not get up. COTTINGHAM moved up slightly soon after reaching the stretch, then hung but outstayed MISS FIREFLY.

Time, :22 3-5, :46 2-5, :59 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Teddy's Comet, $5.00 straight, $2.40 place, $2.40 show; John One, $2.40 place, $2.40 show; Dolly Val, $3.80 show. Winner trained by J. Flanigan. Went to post at 3:35. At post 2 minutes.

TEDDY'S COMET had the speed from the start, drew into a command as CHISPA began to fall back on the turn, responded to repeated pressure in the stretch and, with standing the bid of DOLLY VAL, was safe from JOHN ONE. JOHN ONE, raced wide turnout and always under stout pressure, bettered his position steadily after reaching the final quarter and, wearing down DOLLY VAL, was getting up to the winner. DOLLY VAL, under strong restraint early, challenged gamely but could not get to TEDDY'S COMET and failed to withstand JOHN ONE, although she held on well.

HASTY GLANCE away fast and having good speed, held away easily the first three-eighths, drew clear under light urging on the stretch turn, but was vigorously ridden to hold BARTERING KATE safe. BARTERING KATE, on the inside practically from the start, had to be hustled to keep up and could not get to the winner, but held on well. TERPSICHORE, never a great distance back, saved ground much of the race and, holding on well, outstayed BEAUTY SLEEP.

Time, :22 4-5, :45 4-5, 1:10, 1:36 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Grey Streak, $8.80 straight, $3.80 place, $2.80 show; Boston Pal, $5.80 place, $2.80 show; Faust, $4.40 show. Winner trained by A. Pulleteri. Went to post at 4:31½. Off at once.

GREY STREAK, quick to begin, but taken under restraint after meeting interference before leaving the chute and rated to the stretch turn, responded strongly when called upon and, taking a good lead before reaching the last eighth, won in hand. BOSTON PAL, raced wide throughout, was placed to pressure after reaching the last five-sixteenths and closed resolutely. FAUST had good speed from the start, was under energetic riding after five-eighths and weakened in the stretch.

LINA'S SON, away fast but kept under stout restraint until reaching the final half mile, took command without need of strong urging, but was placed to punishment in the stretch and had little left. SUN SPICE bettered his position slowly, swerved out suddenly in the stretch, came again when straight but pulled up lame. CATOMAR, taken back several times during the first five-eighths, closed well under only mild pressure.

Winner trained by F. Abbate. Went to post at 5:23. At post 13½ minutes. Start good. Won easily, place driving.

TECHNOCRACY made the early pace under steady restraint, increased his advantage on the stretch turn and, continuing strongly, held away thereafter. WESTERN SLOPE, under steady reserve for almost three-quarters, held on well when placed to vigorous riding. DISCOURSE began to move up after reaching the last turn and held on well in the drive.

PIRATES WHIP GIANTS ON WILD THROW IN 11TH

Win, 4-3, on Whitehead's Error.

New York, July 16.—(AP)—The Giants threw away a fine chance to regain the National league lead today by yielding an unearned run in the 11th inning and thereby handing the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4 to 3 victory.

The Giants remained only a few percentage points from the league leading Cubs, who lost to the Boston Bees today.

Cliff Melton walked two of the first three batters to face him in the eleventh inning and was replaced by Dick Coffman. Pep Young then hit what should have been an easy double play ball, but Burgess Whitehead made a two base wild throw past first, allowing Al Todd to score the winning run. The Pirates' earlier runs came on homers by Young and Bill Brubaker.

The Giants did all their scoring in the first three innings off Cy Blanton, who was removed for a pinch hitter in the fourth.

Tigers Make 7 Runs on 1 Hit; Whip Yankees

Detroit, Mich., July 16.—(AP)—The Tigers trounced the New York Yankees, 14 to 7, today, scoring seven runs on one hit in the sixth inning.

In that inning Monte Pearson, Yankee starter; Pat Malone, and Frank Makosky walked seven batters to fall one short of the major league record. Gerry Walker, the Tigers' slugging outfielder, struck out twice to equal the major league record. And Red Rolfe and Frank Crosetti committed errors to complete the fiasco.

The Tigers added two more runs in the seventh to clinch the game, and then completed their run production with five more in the eighth off Johnny Broaca, four of the five runs coming on homers by Rudy York and Elden Auker. Auker had taken over the pitching assignment in the seventh from Poof Poffenberger, removed for a pinch hitter.

The Yankees scored four runs in the second inning and added another in the fifth on Frank Crosetti's homer Their last two came in the ninth inning.

Whitehead Picked to Pitch Against Red Sox Today

Manager Dykes shook up his batting order yesterday with a view of getting some hitting in the bottom division of his array. He benched Jack Hayes, .242 hitter, and Tony Piet, who played in Hayes' position, batted in the No. 1 spot; Radcliff dropping to No. 5, Appling's former spot. Appling was dropped to the No. 6 hole.

Earl Brucker whose hitting on Thursday beat the Sox and stopped the A's losing streak at 15 straight, was rewarded with a day off yesterday. Bill Conroy, Illinois Wesleyan graduate, did the catching.

Jimmy Isaminger, only author traveling with the Athletics, claimed to be in receipt of confidential information that tickets for the Athletics-Browns series which opens in St. Louis today are in the hands of scalpers. He forecasts an outpouring of 300 to 400 patrons at the opener.

Sox Score 9-4 Victory Over Macks

three hits were good for one run. Kreevich opened against Nelson with his third straight single and advanced on Walker's sacrifice. Mike scored on Bonura's third hit, a single to left. Radcliff fanned and Bonura stole second. Appling singled to right for his third hit, but Bonura stopped at third. Dykes fouled to Werber.

Cain Has Trouble.

Cain bogged down a bit in the seventh and was reached for two runs. After Ambler had lined to Piet, Nelson singled to center, and so did Finney. Moses walked, filling the bases. Werber flied to Kreevich, Nelson scoring. Dean came through with his second straight double and third straight hit, scoring Finney. Hill flied to Walker.

The Sox made two runs in the eighth. The usual three hits were made by Walker, Radcliff, and Dykes.

INDIANS' OWNER DENIES O'NEILL MAY LOSE JOB

Cleveland, O., July 16.—(AP)—President Alva Bradley of the Cleveland baseball club stated today that Steve O'Neill, manager of the Indians, would keep his job for the rest of the season and maybe "for years to come."

Bradley's statement came in answer to rumors that O'Neill might not finish the season with the fifth place American League club.

"You may say for me," Bradley said, "that the club is not even considering the possibility of replacing O'Neill, who has many of the qualifications that make an ideal manager.

Bradley said that many of the Indians' defeats this season were caused by circumstances over which O'Neill had no control.

Fette Baffles Cubs on Three Hits; Wins, 6-1

until two batters had been disposed of on infield taps. Then the Bees made a couple of hits and, aided by Demaree's error, scored a run. Di Maggio singled to right center and the ball took an unexpected hop. Demaree wasn't prepared for this, and in the ensuing pawing around on the ground he fumbled long enough to let the runner go to second. Cuccinello singled to center and Di Maggio ran home.

The Cubs propelled a couple of hits into unguarded spaces in the second and this was enough to get them into a 1 to 1 tie. After Demaree had been thrown out, Herman slapped a bouncer to Fletcher, who let the ball escape from his grip for a single. Acting Manager Hartnett hung around the plate until he had worked Fette into a hole and then singled through short, Herman sprinting to third. Jurges' fly to Moore gave Herman time to reach the plate.

Lee Perfect for Two Innings.

Lee was so good in the second and third that he was perfect, not a man reaching base. The fourth was less favorable for the Cub cause. Di Maggio opened with a fly to right center and the wind blew it beyond the reach of Demaree and Cavarretta for a triple. Cuccinello popped to Jurges, but Moore lined a single to right and Di Maggio sauntered across the plate. The usually reliable Herman then fumbled Mayo's slightly torrid grounder, Moore reaching third before Jurges could recover the ball. Fletcher sent a deep line drive to Cavarretta, and Moore scored.

Lee turned out three more pleasing innings prior to being annihilated with five hits, good for three runs, in the eighth. Garms touched off this explosion with a two bagger to right. He was nailed at third on Warstler's bunt. This was where Di Maggio spoke for the third time. He blew his homer into the left center field bleacher, a mere matter of 394 feet to the fence. Then Cuccinello singled, went to second on an out, and scored on Mayo's single over Herman. Fletcher also singled, but this tap didn't hurt.

MEDWICK RAISES BATTING MARK WITH FOUR HITS

Joe Medwick stretched his National League batting lead to 25 points over his nearest rival yesterday as baseball's big six hitters went through the day without a change in the standings. The Cardinal outfielder hit four times in eight chances in a double header to boost his average two points to .413 over .390 for Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs.

Hartnett, with a .390 average, is having his best season at the plate. His best complete season for the Cubs was .344 in 1935. Last year he hit .307, in 1930 he averaged .339 and in 1929 he hit .302. In other years he was below .300.

If Hartnett maintains his present pace he will surpass the achievements of former Cubs, notably: Rogers Hornsby's .380 in 1929, Hack Wilson's .353 in 1930, Riggs Stephenson's .367 in 1930, and Kiki Cuyler's .360 in 1930.

COCHRANE MAY REJOIN TIGERS WITHIN MONTH

Detroit, Mich., July 16.—(AP)—Mickey Cochrane expects to be in uniform and managing the Detroit Tigers again within a month, but he won't catch any this season.

Cochrane, convalescing from a fractured skull, said today in an interview—his first since his injury May 26—that he still was uncertain whether he ever would be able to play again.

Cubs Open Four Game Series in Brooklyn Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., July 16.—The Cubs hustled to the depot right after their game with the Bees today to catch an evening train for New York. They open a four game series with the Brooklyn Dodgers tomorrow, two of the games being booked for Sunday. Larry French will employ his southpaw skill in the opener.

After enjoying two comfortable days here the Cubs paid off today. The mercury soared up over the 90-degree mark, but the boys accepted it as a warmup for what they probably will encounter in New York.

The ground ball that Billy Herman booted in the fourth inning when the Bees scored two runs gave the young man a bump on his bare hand. Doc Lotshaw rushed to the scene, told a few funny stories while massaging the wrong hand, and the patient recovered.

The Cubs announced the purchase of Julian Tubb, righthanded pitcher, from the Helena, Ark., club. Tubb is 6 feet tall and weighs 180 pounds. His record to date is 12 victories and 9 losses. He will report next spring.

Budge, Grant Face German Players Today

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 16.—(AP)—Don Budge of Oakland, Cal., and Bryan M. Grant of Atlanta, Ga., today were nominated to face Baron Gottfried von Cramm and Heinrich Henkel of Germany in the opening singles matches of the Davis cup inter-zone finals tomorrow on Wimbledon's center court.

EXPECT CHICAGO TO BUILD 4,000 HOMES THIS YEAR

Residence Scarcity Shown by National Survey.

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago will build 4,000 single family residences during 1937, according to a prediction made yesterday by the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, based on a nation wide survey just completed by that body. George H. Patterson, secretary, announced that 74 per cent of the members replying to a poll reported a scarcity of houses, while only 36 per cent told of a shortage of large apartments.

"Our reports indicate that whatever shortage of housing exists today lies principally in single-family dwellings" said Patterson. "This fact explains the lead taken by residential construction in the building industry."

Foresee Wide Variations.

Single family house construction over the country during 1937 will vary widely, according to needs, whether the community has been over-built or underbuilt, and other economic conditions, according to Patterson.

Based on the average reports from the association's members, Dallas will build the next largest number of single family homes to the predicted Chicago total. The Texas metropolis is expected to erect 2,200 residences.

Forecast for Other Cities.

Some other cities listed by the association and the number of single family residences predicted are: Evanston, 100; Milwaukee, 1,800; Denver, 1,250; Pasadena, 1,000; Miami, 1,500; Atlanta, 875; San Francisco, 1,800, and Buffalo, 200.

Only 33 per cent of the members of the association reported a shortage of two and three family buildings in their communities. The poll was one of a series taken periodically by the association and includes reports from its members in forty-one states.

STOCK EXCHANGE SEES ENLARGED TRADING NEEDED

New York, July 16.—(AP)—The New York Stock exchange, in its monthly bulletin issued today, contended some recovery in security market activity "seems necessary for achievement of a well balanced prosperity."

Trading in recent weeks has been the smallest in more than two years, despite the rise of the business curve generally almost to 1929 levels. Volume on the exchange "in relation to the shares listed has experienced practicall no net recovery from the low points of the depression," the bulletin noted, citing data for trading in United States Steel common, one of the industrial leaders.

Asserting regulatory restrictions may have permanently lowered the proportion of dealings to listed shares, the exchange argued that inactive markets "are not conducive to the financing of productive expansion, much deferred during the depression."

AM. COLORTYPE SALES RISE.

Second quarter sales of the American Colortype company totaled $2,02,387, an increase of 11.2 per cent over sales of $1,872,593 for the same period last year.

Investors' Guide

Saturday, July 17, 1937.

[Copyright 1937 By The Chicago Tribune-Southern United Ice.

Investors' Guide: May I have all information on a $1,000 first mortgage 6 per cent bond of Southern United Ice company which is due Oct. 1, 1947?—Mrs. N. H.

Answer: Following default of the bonds in 1933, the company filed a petition for reorganization in 1934. The reorganization was completed in 1936 and is binding on all security holders.

The plan provides for issuance of $1,000 of new first mortgage 4 per cent bonds due in 1950, 10 shares of $1 par common stock and $20 cash [in lieu of back interest] for each old $1,000 bond. Capitalization now consists of $2,403,300 of new bonds, an unsecured 4 per cent cumulative income note for $432,800, and 241,950 shares of stock. United Public Service corporation holds the note and controls the company by ownership of 217,917 shares of stock.

You should exchange your bond for new securities. The new bonds are paying interest, but nothing has been paid on the stock yet. New interest requirements were just covered in 1936. It was the first time more than a small fraction of charges had been earned since 1931, prior to which earnings were favorable.

The company has ice manufacturing plants and storage facilities in Memphis, Houston, and 17 other cities in Mississippi and Louisiana. It supplies ice to communities with a population in excess of 700,000 and does most of the railway car icing for the Illinois Central between Memphis and New Orleans.

The new bonds are more a speculation than an investment.

Butler Building.

Investors' Guide: I owned $2,500 first mortgage leasehold 6 per cent bonds on the Butler building, Chicago. After receiving a communication from the receiver, I sent in my certificate and received in exchange a second mortgage bond. I want my old bond back or a new first mortgage bond. What shall I do?—Mrs. E. A.

Answer: Under terms of a reorganization of Butler building, holders of old first leasehold 6s received an equal principal amount of general leasehold income 6s of Butler building. Such a procedure is not unusual when new funds are needed in the course of a reorganization, claims of old security holders frequently being subordinated to new issues.

WHEAT CLIMBS AS REPORTS OF DAMAGE SPREAD

Spring Grain Areas Hit by Rust.

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$1.28¾	$1.25¼	$1.05¼
Corn	1.13¾	1.12½	.80¾
Oats	.37½	.37½	.39¼
Rye	.89⅝	.87	.72¾
Soy beans [Oct]	1.15½	1.15½	....

A flood of crop damage reports from the American spring wheat belt yesterday more than offset the effect of additional rains in the Canadian northwest. There also were reports that the Canadian wheat board had disposed of the last of its holdings of cash grain and futures, except wheat retained for seed in the drouth areas.

Wheat prices soared as much as 5¾ cents a bushel, with the September and December deliveries reaching the highest levels since 1929 on the Chicago Board of Trade. September wheat sold at $1.29¾ and December at $1.31½ a bushel at the extreme. Profit taking and hedging pressure shaded the best prices, but the close was at net gains of 2½ to 3½ cents.

Other Markets Higher.

All deliveries of wheat in Winnipeg, the September and December deliveries in Minneapolis, and the December contract in Kansas City were also in new ground for the season. Winnipeg advanced the limit of 5 cents a bushel on the July contract and held the bulge. Kansas City was 3 cents or more higher, and Minneapolis gained as much as 2¾ cents.

There was a small recession early in the day in the North American markets in sympathy with the relative easiness in Liverpool and on the more favorable weather reports from Canada, but the offerings were quickly absorbed by houses with eastern connections and cash and milling interests, and later there was general speculative buying. Liverpool closed ½ to 1⅛ cents higher on futures.

Evidence that the Aug. 1 crop estimates by Chicago statisticians would be considerably below the 229,000,000 bushels of spring wheat indicated on July 1 accumulated yesterday.

Report Damage by Rust.

The Norris Grain company's crop expert reported that between Jamestown and Fargo, N. D., 150 miles, black rust was nearly as prevalent as in 1935, and he looked for almost a crop failure with a very light yield of lightweight grain.

The Cargill Grain company's weekly report estimated the possible damage to the American spring wheat crop at 50,000,000 bushels, taking into consideration the rust infection in the Red river valley. The Lake of the Woods Milling company, Winnipeg, said their field men reported black rust in the southern and central portions of the province of Manitoba and that unless there is an immediate change in weather conditions the resultant damage may be as extensive as it was in 1935.

Expect No Wheat Shortage.

Despite prospects of considerable damage to the American spring wheat crop, and the possible reduction in the winter grain crop due to rust, Chicago experts yesterday said there was no danger of the aggregate yield falling below estimated domestic requirements this season. They pointed out that requirements are around 675,000,000 bushels, while the July 1 department of agriculture returns suggested a yield of 882,000,000 bushels. This would be the first year since 1932 the United States has raised more wheat than was needed to cover actual needs.

There were rumors of liberal export sales of domestic wheat yesterday. Large flour sales were reported to have been made by southwestern mills to the domestic trade.

Canadian Report Influences Trade.

Reports that the Canadian wheat board had sold the last of its holdings of wheat had considerable effect on trade sentiment. The government agency has been liquidating its holdings on every price advance for many months and traders figured that the removal of this pressure would permit the market to fluctuate more in accord with the character of the reports regarding the outlook for the crop.

Other grains joined the upward movement in wheat. Corn gained ⅞ to 1⅛ cents; oats, ⅝ to ⅞ cent, and rye, 2¼ to 5 cents a bushel, the latter on the July delivery. The trade had estimates yesterday suggesting as high as 1,000,000 bushels of American rye had been sold so far this season for export to Europe. Crop reports on corn yesterday were extremely optimistic.

Rise Boosts Farm Income.

Wheat futures in the leading world markets have advanced 23¼ to 34¾ cents a bushel from the low point on June 21, when the current crop scare started to affect the market. The upturn is estimated to have added more than $100,000,000 to the income of American winter wheat farmers.

The range of prices on the September delivery of wheat futures in American markets and on the October delivery in Winnipeg and Liverpool since June 21, follows:

Chicago	$1.28⅝	$1.29¾	$1.06¾
Kansas City	1.24½	1.26	1.02½
Minneapolis	1.46⅝	1.44⅞	1.15½
Winnipeg	1.45¼	1.46¾	1.19⅝
Liverpool	1.43¾	1.47⅛	1.22⅝

A membership on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday sold for $4,850, an advance of $100 over the last transaction.

Armour Profit "Satisfactory," Cabell Reports

R. H. Cabell.

Earnings of Armour & Co. during June continued at a satisfactory rate, Robert H. Cabell, president, informed directors at their quarterly meeting here yesterday. He said, however, that the domestic meat business is not contributing to the company's results in the ratio to the volume which it represents.

"High live stock prices, the all-time peak wages which we are paying to our employes and the higher operating costs which accompany reduced live stock receipts are rendering the sale of meats difficult at currently higher prices," Cabell said.

"During June hogs reached eight year high prices and cattle climbed to the highest point of the last seven years. Indications are that live stock supplies will be short until well into the autumn and this will be reflected in the maket prices of all meats.

View on Price Situaton.

"Up to now prices have not advanced over the corresponding period of last year in the same proportion that wages have risen, and we do not anticipate such a shortage as to warant prices out of line with increased wages."

Cabell said subsidiary divisions of the business "are giving a good account of themselves," and that South American results were satisfactory.

Directors declared the usual quarterly dividends, 20 cents a share on common, $1.75 a share on Armour of Delaware guaranteed preferred stock, and $1.50 on the 6 per cent prior preferred of Armour of Illinois.

A. Stein & Co., Chicago manufacturer of garters and garments, declared a dividend of 40 cents a share on common stock. This was an increase of 15 cents a share over the 25 cents paid on May 14 and Feb. 15, last.

Other Dividend Actions.

Directors of Scotten-Dillon company, makers of snuff and cigarets, ordered a disbursement of 40 cents a share on common stock. Previous payments this year were 30 cents on May 15 and 50 cents on Feb. 15.

Koloa Sugar company declared a monthly dividend of 25 cents a share and announced that directors adopted a resolution that a monthly payment of the same amount be made until further notice, payable on the last day of the month to stockholders of record the 25th. The company has been paying monthly dividends of 50 cents a share.

HOLIDAY CUTS FREIGHT TRAFIC LESS THAN USUAL

Railroad freight car loadings last week totaled 682,205 cars, a decline of 123,963 cars, or 15.3 per cent, from the 806,168 cars loaded in the preceding week, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday.

The decrease, caused by observance of the July 4 holiday, was said to be less than normal. Loadings for the week ended July 3 were the highest since the week ended Oct. 31, 1936.

The total number of cars loaded last week was only 42,072, or 5.7 per cent below loadings in the corresponding 1936 week, but was 116,703 cars or 20.6 per cent, above loading in the 1935 period. Both the 1935 and 1936 periods had six business days.

Business Books

"Studies in Securities," 11th annual edition [published by James H. Oliphant & Co., Chicago, free].

The book contains 223 pages of analyses of 51 leading industrial, utility, and railroad companies. In a foreword, the firm takes occasion to point out that investors often fail to take full advantage of the growing amount of information available concerning publicly owned corporations. The concise analyses in the book are packed with figures, but maintain a good degree of readability. Although not intended to take the place of comprehensive analyses, they present a compact, worthwhile picture of the companies discussed.

"Business Law Decisions, 1936-'37" [compiled by Commerce Clearing House, Inc., 205 West Monroe street, Chicago. Price $1].

This book is a compilation of the full texts of leading decisions affecting business, except taxation, handed down by the United States Supreme court during its October term, 1936.

Stocks Droop Despite Steel Drive for Rise

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 16.—Prices on the stock exchange dropped today despite the efforts of several industrial and utility issues to inject a bullish note into the proceedings, and the majority closed fractionally lower. U. S. Steel common made repeated attempts to lead the list upward, at one time reaching 117½, but it closed fractionally lower. Rails were soft throughout. Turnover was 704,280 shares.

While traders were said to be disappointed by the failure of the market as a whole to follow the repeated bullish leadership of "big steel," brokers reported that there was little if any evidence of bearishness on the floor or in commission houses. The day's easier tendencies were in the main attributed to week-end evening up by professional as well as outside interests.

Independent Steels Mixed.

Independent steels moved in a narrower range and at no time could they attract steady support. The "little steel" issues closed mixed. Inland gained 1 point and Youngstown rose a fraction, while Bethlehem and Republic sagged fractions.

The continued weakness in motors, particularly Chrysler, inspired selling in other sections of the list. That stock was in supply and dropped two points to 100½ before meeting support, which, however, could not wipe out more than one-quarter point from that loss. General Motors held around previous closing, losing a small fraction on the day. Lower priced auto stocks moved in a narrow range.

While rail losses were not large they were common. New York Central and Southern Pacific were leaders on the downside, losing more than a point each, while a majority kept losses to fractions. Union Pacific was an exception, working fractionally higher.

Copper Shares Decline.

Copper shares sold off in line with the rest of the list. Losses were kept to a minimum, only a few, notably Cerro and Kennecott, showing losses of as much as a point.

Some utilities picked up fractions. American Telephone rose 1 and Consolidated Edison ⅞. Western Union closed unchanged.

Farm equipments met some profit taking. Case was pushed more than 3 points lower. Deere dropped 2, Oliver 1¼, and Allis-Chalmers a fraction. International Harvester worked against the trend to add a fraction, Sears-Roebuck, up a fraction, was outstanding in a generally lower mail order group.

ALUMINUM UNIT HELD TO ANSWER ANTI-TRUST SUIT

New York, July 16.—(AP)—Federal Judge Vincent J. Leibell declined today to quash the government's anti-trust complaint against Aluminum, Ltd., Canadian subsidiary of the Aluminum Company of America. The government is attempting to dissolve an alleged monopoly of the Aluminum company and its affiliates.

At hearings several weeks ago, the Canadian company offered testimony that it was not engaged in business within the United States, while government attorneys contended that it was an arm of the parent company, which owns or controls all its stock.

As did the Aluminum company, Aluminum, Ltd., denied after service of the complaint that it is controlled by former secretary of the treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, and members of his family, who are named with him in the suit. It asked that the service of complaint be set aside and that the complaint as applying to it and certain of its officers be quashed.

Trade in Produce Futures Expands in Chicago Mart

Trading in butter, egg, cheese, and potato futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange in the first six months of 1937, aggregated 26,670 car lots, a gain of more than 30 per cent over the corresponding 1936 period, Lloyd S. Tenny, business manager, said yesterday. The volume of business transacted in the period this year was the second largest since 1930, being exceeded only in 1935.

GERMANY HAS FIRST UNFAVORABLE TRADE BALANCE SINCE 1935

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 16.—Germany's favorable foreign trade balance, steadily dwindling in the first five months of this year, turned into a deficit of $9,500,00 in June. This deficit, the first since 1935, threatens the plan of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, economics minister and president of the Reichsbank, to balance imports and exports.

For the first half of the current year the exports, valued $1,084,000,000, exceeded imports by $77,000,000. Exports to the United States in the half year amounted to $39,000,000 and purchases from the United States were $47,000,000.

The general change from a surplus to an adverse balance in Germany's foreign trade was due to the food shortage, especially the shortage of grain. Purchases of wheat alone in the six months exceeded $28,000,000.

'AD' IN TRIBUNE CHANGES WAY OF OFFERING STOCK

Appearance in THE TRIBUNE yesterday of an advertisment of the Ahlberg Bearing company concerning the sale of an issue of stock caused considerable interest among unwerwriters. It omitted the usual qualifying statement carried in most advertisments which reads: "This is under no circumstances to be construed as an offering of stocks [or bonds], or as a solicitation of an offer to buy such securities. The offering is made only by means of prospectus."

According to Edward E. Barthell Jr., formerly with the Securities and Exchange commission and attorney for W. R. Stuart & Co., underwriter for the Ahlberg issue, there is nothing in the SEC law which requires such a statement.

Barthell said the phrase was devised in the early days of the SEC by a New York legal firm and has been followed by advertisers since. While he said the actual sale of securities must be made by means of prospectus, it is "silly to assume that the advertiser is taking newspaper space for any reason other than to sell his securities. SEC officials have long laughed at the practice."

STEEL SCRAP PRICES BOUND; DEMAND RISES

Sudden revival in demand for steel scrap has carried prices in Chicago $1.50 a ton higher in the last week. Dealers yesterday were quoting number one heavy melting scrap at $18 to $19 a ton.

During the steel strikes scrap markets were quiet, but reopening of the mills has revived demand and prices have risen accordingly. Scrap prices touched a peak of $22.25 a ton in May, but declined when stocks and commodities moved lower, touching a low of $15 recently.

With stocks of the metal small the advance has been accomplished easily. In addition, speculative buying is said to have played a part.

Washington, D. C. July 16.—(AP)—The treasury announced an attempt today to stamp out alleged collusive bidding by firms seeking government contracts. REPORT RETAIL TRADE GAIN FOR WEEK AND YEAR

New York, July 16.—[Special.]—The volume of retail trade throughout the country this week was 2 to 5 per cent ahead of the preceding week's turnover, despite scattered rains interfering with shopping and a lull in the heat wave, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today.

"Buying of fall merchandise continued to gather momentum in wholesale markets," said the credit agency's weekly review. "Reorders for summer goods formed a major contribution to the enlarged volume. Clearance promotions continued to provide chief attraction in the retail division."

While the rate of advance in retail trade slowed somewhat, according to the review, no relaxation was noted of the public's quest for all kinds of merchandise. Gains for the country at large over figures of the corresponding week last year were estimated at 10 to 20 per cent.

Int. Telephone Goes to Swiss for Big Loan

Sosthenes Behn.

An agreement has been made with Swiss bankers by the International Telephone and Telegraph company to underwrite $9,150,000 of an issue of $30,000,000 of the United River Plate Telephone company, an Argentine subsidiary, the company, headed by Sosthenes Behn, announced yesterday. Selection of the Swiss market was said to have been due to expectation of difficulty in floating a South American issue in the American market at present.

The program contemplates that the balance of the $30,000,000 issue will be subsequently offered for sale and any unsold portion will be retained by I. T. & T. in settlement of its receivables from the subsidiary. Proceeds will be used by I. T. & T. to pay off a part of its bank loans and to retire part of a 4½ per cent convertible debenture issue, due Jan. 1, 1939.

Hammond Clock Plans Split-up.

Directors of the Hammond Clock company yesterday approved the preparation of a plan of reorganization whereby common stock would be split four for one and the name of the company changed to describe "more appropriately" products manufactured by the company. The concern makes electric clocks and electric organs. Stockholders will be asked to approve the plan at a meeting in August.

The management of the Ralston Steel Car company has proposed to stockholders a plan of capital readjustment providing for the payment of dividend arrears on preferred stock and paving the way for dividends on common.

Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., yesterday filed an amendment with the Securities and Exchange commission delaying the offering date of a proposed issue of securities to Aug. 3. Hearst Magazines, Inc., has postponed its offering of securities to July 29, according to another amendment. Abbott Laboratories announced it is delaying a security offering to Sept. 15.

New Financing Increases.

New financing in the week ended Thursday amounted to $74,948,635, compared with $14,132,185 in the preceding week and $123,355,854 in the same period of 1936. The largest single issue was an offering of $45,000,000 of American Rolling Mill preferred stock. Stock offerings made up $37,055,635 of the total financing.

A special meeting of stockholders of the American Insulator corporation has been called for Aug. 10 to vote on a proposed recapitalization plan which provides for the issuance of 23,220 shares of new $25 par 6 per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock, convertible for five years into 3½ shares of common stock and callable at $27.50 per share. Under the plan, holders of old preferred $50 par value stock, on which unpaid dividend accumulations were $42 per share on May 31, will receive two shares of new convertible and four common shares for each share held.

Esquire-Coronet, Inc., filed amendment to its pending registration of 150,000 shares of the capital stock, naming Lawrence Stern & Co. as the principal underwriter. David A. Smart, president of Esquire, said that unaudited figures for the three months ended June 30 indicated net income of $363,522 after normal income taxes, compared with $127,759 a year ago.

ARMOUR (DEL.) WINS SUIT FOR PROCESS TAXES

Armour & Co. of Delaware yesterday won its suit to recover from the federal government money paid in processing taxes on cocoanut oil in 1934. Federal Judge John P. Barnes, who heard the case without a jury, awarded the company a refund of $172,962.

The suit was regarded as important as a test case for soap manufacturers who stand to recover several million dollars.

The main point involved in the case was technical—whether the processing of coconut oil and similar oils is a continuous process or involves two separate processes. Judge Barnes held that Armour & Co., was not required to pay taxes on oil which the company had begun to process before the tax went into effect in May, 1934.

FRANCE'S MONEY SLUMPS ON NEW BREAK IN BONDS

Confidence Lacking in Fiscal Program.

The exchange value of French currency yesterday sank to the lowest figure since the Chautemps government came into power as another sharp break in French government bond prices occurred on the Paris bourse.

A growing belief that the new government cannot meet its financial problems by the hastily improvised program launched after the downfall of the Blum cabinet is credited with undermining prices of government bonds and indirectly causing the fall in the franc's value.

The franc closed 0.05¼ of a cent lower at 3.82¾ cents. At its low for the day it was down 0.05½ of a cent from Thursday's final quotation.

Franc Allowed to Drop.

The French stabilization fund, the resources of which have been nearly exhausted, gave no evidence of active intervention in the market. The currency was allowed to drop without apparent support. The movement of other foreign currencies in relation to the dollar were slight. The British pound closed at $4.97⅞, off 5-16 of a cent.

The 3 per cent French government bonds closed nearly four points lower in Paris. The 4½ per cent bonds in the last three days have declined 6¼ francs.

Lack of confidence among Frenchmen in the efficacy of the new government's program was seen in the action of the Paris market yesterday. Foreign securities traded in Paris rose in price as the value of government bonds declined, indicating that Frenchmen are shifting their investments.

France Faces Large Deficit.

The prospective deficit in the government's regular budget for the current fiscal year is officially placed at 11,313,000,000 francs [about $436,682,000]. This, however, does not give a comprehensive picture of the financial problems confronting the government.

In addition, it faces a maturity in December of a 4,302,000,000 franc loan [about $200,000,000], floated in London early this year by the railway system, which the government must meet if the railways cannot. The first instalment of the government's 1934 4½ per cent bonds falls due in October. The total amount to be raised during the remainder of the year is estimated at more than 20,000,000,000 francs 800 million dollars].

The New York Reserve bank reported that $270,000 gold was engaged yesterday in London for shipment to this country. Arrivals of gold yesterday included $1,200,000 from Switzerland at New York and $1,890,000 from Australia at San Francisco.

EXPORTS IN MAY ONLY SLIGHTLY ABOVE IMPORTS

Washington, D. C., July 16.—[Special.]—Exports increased in May to all grand divisions, except Oceania, compared with May, 1936, and imports increased from all grand divisions, the commerce department reported today in its monthly summary of foreign trade by countries.

The total dolla. value of exports, including re-exports, was $289,928,000, compared with $200,772,000 in the corresponding month of 1936, general imports were valued at $285,038,000, compared with $191,697,000 a year before.

Imports were set at $1,397,897,000 and $973,432,000, respectively. Of the exports this year, $483,865,000 went to Europe. Imports from Europe totaled $367,941,000.

Mesta Machine 'Backlog' Rises to New Record

The Mesta Machine company, Pittsburgh, manufacturers of steel mill equipment, yesterday reported that unfilled orders as of June 30 were more than 24 million dollars, a new high in the company's history and well above unfilled orders of about 18 million dollars at the beginning of 1937 and 10½ million dollars in midsummer of 1936.

New York Bonds.

New York, Juy 16.—(AP)—Government obligations were strong in an otherwise faltering bond market today. Gains in the federal list were as much as 11/32 point while the few declines were held to within 5/32.

Foreign dollar loans moved irregularly. Japanese obligations broke more than two points as word from the far east indicated an imminent clash of Chinese and Japanese forces outside of Peiping. Following announcement of a currency stabilizing agreement between Brazil and this country, Brazilian loans made modest gains.

Rail liens formed the rallying point of what little resistance there was in the domestic corporate sector. Chesapeake and Ohio 4½s gained a point at 121½. Great Northern 4s ended at 126, up ¾, and St. Louis and San Francisco 4½s at 24⅞, up ⅝.

Industrial liens were mixed and narrow. Bethlehem Steel 3⅜s dropped ½ to 96, while Younstown Sheet and Tube 3½s ended at 146⅜, up 1¼. Utilities were neglected and slightly lower.

OPENING QUOTATIONS ADDED

Because of numerous requests from readers opening prices of all stocks are now included in this table. The "dividend yield" column, for many years an exclusive feature in THE TRIBUNE'S stock quotation tables, has been dropped because most corporations have been forced by the new tax on undivided earnings to abandon the old practice of paying a fixed dividend return. Thus, the daily calculation of "dividend yield," where based on incomplete dividend information, has become not only confusing but, in many cases, actually misleading. To compute the yield on a preferred stock or a common stock still on a fixed income basis divide the amount paid in dividends for the year by the closing price of the stock. The table will continue to carry the amount of dividends paid per share.

[The figure in brackets after name of stock is annual dividend rate.]

ILLINOIS' IDLE INSURANCE LAW GIVEN APPROVAL

Every State and Territory in Federal System.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 16.—With the approval of the Illinois' unemployment insurance law by the social security board today, every state and territory now has unemployment insurance legislation that conforms with the social security act.

The board estimated nearly 21 million workers are covered by the 51 unemployment insurance laws, which provide compensation for employés who lose their jobs through no fault of their own. The amount of compensation and the length of time over which it is given varies in the states.

It is estimated approximately 1,433,000 workers in Illinois are covered by its provisions. The law provides for a statewide pool to which employers of eight or more workers contribute and out of which benefits are paid to all qualified workers of contributing employers.

Employés Do Not Contribute.

No employé contributions are required. Employers having eight or more persons on their pay rolls for some time in each of 20 different weeks during the current or preceding calendar year contribute at the rate of 3.6 per cent of wages payable for the six months beginning July 1, 1937. If such contributions amount to less than 1.8 per cent of the total 1937 wages, an additional lump sum to cover the difference must be paid by the employer by Jan. 31, 1938. In 1938 and thereafter, the rate of contribution will be 2.7 per cent.

Merit rating will begin after employers have had three years of experience. Under this plan the rates of contribution will be geared to the individual employer's benefit and contribution experience. Employers having favorable employment experience and therefore fewer workers drawing benefits will contribute at a lower rate than those with less favorable experience.

Payments Start in July, 1939.

Benefit payments in Illinois will begin in July, 1939. Workers who lose their jobs and are eligible for benefits will receive weekly payments amounting to 50 per cent of their regular full-time weekly wage, but not more than $15 a week nor less than $5, or three-fourths of the weekly wage, whichever is less. These payments may continue for a maximum of 16 weeks during the year, the actual duration of benefits depending on the worker's previous earnings. The law also provides for benefits to workers in part-time and seasonal employments.

The Illinois law will be administered by the director of the state's department of labor, who will appoint a commission of placement and unemployment compensation.

KUHN, LOEB & CO. TO HEAD ARMOUR BOND FINANCING

New York, July 16.—(AP)—Kuhn, Loeb & Co., investment bankers, announced today they will head the financing of a proposed issue of $75,000,000 of bonds of Armour & Co. of Illinois. Stockholders recently authorized the issue at a special meeting. The company may register the bonds in the near future.

It is said the issue will be convertible debentures. Proceeds will be used to call the 7 per cent prefered issue of Armour & Co. of Delaware, a subsidiary, of which there is $57,079,900 outstanding, and to repay bank loans of $18,000,000 to $20,000,000 contracted recently to pay off the 4½ per cent real estate bonds of the parent company.

Youngstown Sheet Calls Issue.

Youngstown, O., July 16.—(AP)—The Youngstown Sheet & Tube company today called for redemption on Aug. 25 all of its 3½ per cent convertible debentures outstanding, amounting to approximately $5,200,000, at par and accrued interest plus a premium of 4 per cent.

The debentures may be converted into common shares on or before Aug. 25, on the basis of 16 common shares for each $1,000 debenture, subject to adjustment for dividends and interest.

War Debts.

"I know," a reader writes, "that war debts owed the United States show who really won the world war, but what do they amount to and who owes them?"

The total of war debts originally owed the United States was $10,350,479,074 principal amount, representing war credits, sale of surplus war and relief supplies, Army of Occupation costs and claims. As of March 31, 1937, this total amounted to $12,014,850,216. On that date Armenia owed $11,959,917; Austria, $23,752,217; Belgium, $400,680,000; Czechoslovakia, $91,879,671; Estonia, $16,466,012; Finland, $8,272,685; Germany, $654,354,250; France, $3,863,650,000; Great Britain, $4,368,000,00; Greece, $31,516,000; Hungary, $1,908,560; Italy, $2,004,900,000; Latvia, $6,879,464; Lithuania, $6,197,682; Nicaragua, $289,898; Poland, $206,057,000; Rumania, $63,860,560; Russia, $192,601,297, and Jugo-Slavia, $61,625,000.

Since 1934 no countries have made full payments except Finland which has steadily met its obligations. Greece has made partial payments from time to time. All other countries have defaulted payment of both interest and principal since June 15, 1934.

AUTO OUTPUT RISES; EXPECT CUT NEXT WEEK

Automobile production in American and Canadian plants this week approximated 115,380 units, Ward's Reports estimated yesterday. This compared with output of 100,031 in the preceding week, which included the Independence day holiday, and 97,768 in the corresponding period last year.

A sharp curtailment in operations is expected this week when Ford closes for a three week vacation, and some other manufacturers complete production of their 1937 models.
